GIVE US OUR BUBBLES IN A GLASS

HINDSIGHT MAY BE 20/20, but it doesn't take pristine vision to recognize 2020 sucked. Locusts, floods, fires, murder hornets and a pandemic. If things weren't so dire, we'd make a Moses joke. The hurt was exacerbated by a deluge of polarized political vitriol that separated us when we needed cohesion. Bright spots were on ration. Fortunately for those of us who like our ice carved, the NHL was among them.

A team that features silver in its color scheme seized the silverware in a silver lining moment. The Lightning earned their championship. Instead of asterisking it, their triumph should be denoted with an array of gold stars. Because of the inherent challenges of playing in a bubble and the universal hunger for scraps of normalcy, Tampa Bay's 2019-20 Stanley Cup win should be remembered as one of the most important in league history.

Typically, we're stingy at praising the NHL, but it deserves plaudits for executing a near-flawless tournament. Regardless of the league's motives, the playoffs served a valuable, distracting role for two months of the pandemic. It also showcased the benefits of teamwork. We like to claim hockey is the ultimate team sport, that players are warriors executing orders and ensuring they have one another's backs. And while there can be a downside to conformity and adhering to a code, the troops' total buy-in to the plan is the type of unified effort that leaders dream of.

We're banking on more of the good stuff in 2021. Assuming we have a successful vaccine and rollout of it in the coming months, we could be returning to NHL rinks near us at some point in the new year. Imagine being happy about coughing up $30 for a hot dog and a beer? Or the joy of spending more time arguing over referee's calls and coaching decisions than politicians' promises. And we'll go back to trash talking our friends over pool picks instead of party affiliation.

On the ice, there will be fresh faces and an exciting new rookie class, highlighted by New York Rangers No. 1 overall pick Alexis Lafreniere. Ryan Kennedy assesses the baby bunch on pg. 14. Ryan also touts the rise and call of the expansion Seattle Kraken in the Pacific next autumn (pg. 13).

What else do you need to know about the 2021 campaign? Glad you asked. In the ensuing pages, we unfurl our annual top 50 players in the NHL (pg. 18), a list we know you'll totally agree with. Ken Campbell profiles the burgeoning best new blueliners in hockey, a trio of young stars whose skates are firmly planted in the west (pg. 26). Matt Larkin unearths the ultimate Toronto Maple Leafs fan, a dude who just happens to wear the team's 'C' (pg. 34). And we revisit an aging but still very relevant argument: who's better now, Sidney Crosby or Alex Ovechkin (pg. 16)?

As always, the heart of the magazine is our previews of the NHL teams, where we analyze strengths, weaknesses and prospect pools of the 31 franchises. Because of the uncertainty regarding divisional alignment at press time, we've ranked the teams in order of Stanley Cup contention, as we see it, and predict a champion (NHL team reports begin on pg. 42).

Here's hoping, at some point soon, we can safely toast the coming season in bars and basements of our choosing, locations in which bubble hockey remains where it belongs. H

Pucks and Politics

With the 2021 World Championship in Belarus, what will Hockey Canada's position be? BY W. GRAEME ROUSTAN

BELARUS IS ONE OF the most beautiful countries in the world, and I should know as I have been there many times and travelled extensively throughout the world. The city of Minsk is breathtaking as the architecture has everything from the classic USSR look to the ultra-modern. However, the best part of Belarus is not its cities, countryside or culture, rather it's the citizens who are as friendly as you will find anywhere in the world. Many of its citizens are friends of mine after having played in president Alexander Lukashenko's hockey tournaments in Minsk since 2008 on its IIHF, Canada and USA teams.

According to a Canadian Press story published Sept. 29, "Canada and Britain have levelled sanctions on the president of Belarus, his son and various government officials over what they say was a fraudulent election and abuse of those who have taken to the streets to protest it." With the IIHF World Championship scheduled to be co-hosted by Belarus and Latvia in May 2021, what will Hockey Canada's position be?

Canadian prime minister Justin Trudeau has levied sanctions on Lukashenko and 10 others in Belarus. Is Hockey Canada at odds with Trudeau and the Canadian government's position by bolstering Lukashenko on the world (hockey) stage, resulting from sending its citizen-players, coaches and staff representing Canada?

Does Hockey Canada CEO Tom Renney and his board of directors choose pucks and play hockey or politics and boycott the IIHF tournament to back up Canada's foreign affairs minister Francois-Philippe Champagne, who stated, "Canada will not stand by silently as the government of Belarus continues to commit systematic human-rights violations and shows no indication of being genuinely committed to finding a negotiated solution with opposition groups." Champagne added, "Canada will continue to stand with the people of Belarus and we will work with our international partners to ensure that their voices are heard and that those responsible for undermining democracy and for brutal actions against protestors are held to account."

Some Canadians may be confused as to how the government of Canada can condemn Lukashenko, but Hockey Canada will share a platform with him when they more than likely have a medal placed around the players' and coaches' necks by him. That confusion would be somewhat understandable, and Renney needs to explain to Canadians if Hockey Canada is going to play the puck or support the politics of Trudeau and the Canadian government.

Canadians should ask why Hockey Canada will or will not participate in the World Championship in Belarus in May 2021 and for that matter, the Winter Olympics in China just months later in February 2022. Do questions of human rights abuses in Belarus and in China cause Hockey Canada and the IIHF to play the puck or consider the politics of human rights?

Canadians should also hear what Bob Nicholson, chairman of the Edmonton Oilers and vice-president of the IIHF, thinks Hockey Canada and the IIHF should do. Nicholson, you'll recall, was also CEO of Hockey Canada, from 1998 through 2014.

Perhaps the issue will not have to be addressed to Canadians by Renney and Nicholson if the World Championship are cancelled due to COVID-19 health concerns, but that just inevitably kicks the puck and politics of the human right abuses question down the ice to China. Either way, they should be transparent and clearly state their positions since they represent Hockey Canada and the IIHF respectively.

These debates on pucks and politics date back to 1972 when Belarus was part of the

PORTRAIT BY MICHELLE VALBERG

USSR and they played against Canada in the Summit Series. The big difference between 1972 and 2021 is the internet, and although Canadians heard, primarily in newspapers, about how bad human rights abuses were in the USSR, no one saw any negative images on TV coming out of the USSR.

Today, you simply cannot keep up with all the video that is coming out of Belarus and you cannot hide behind ignorance like in 1972. Today, you need to take a position and defend it, one way or another, and Hockey Canada and the IIHF will make their statements either verbally or by their action or inaction. History will be the judge of whether or not they did the right thing.

As a 12-year-old watching the Summit Series, I instantly became a proponent of international hockey as I was amazed by the skills of the USSR players, and I believed right then that the North American style of hockey would evolve, and, thankfully, it did. Some would also say, including myself, that the Summit Series brought the East and the West a bit closer at a time of rising political tensions.

As the debate whether pucks and politics are independent or co-dependent continues, the one thing that everyone might agree on is how pucks bring citizens from around the world together and help create lasting friendships. I am proof of that being true.

I'm convinced that had the 1972 Summit Series not occurred, I would have never made so many new international friends and played hockey in Red Square on a line with Igor Larionov playing against members of the 1972 USSR Summit Series team, 37 years after watching them on TV, or travelled to Ufa, Russia, with its goalie Vladislav Tretiak, along with Slava Fetisov and Alex Medvedev for the first ever KHL game.

As for Belarus, I admit my bias as I have so many friends in and from this great country, and I want the very best for all of them, whatever the great people of Belarus legitimately determine that to be. I want people from around the world to visit Belarus, and I encourage you to put a visit to Belarus on your bucket list if you haven't already been there. The beauty of the country is worth the trip alone, but the friendships you will make with Belarusian people will have a positive impact on your life forever. It has for me. H

12 BIRTH OF THE KRAKEN: HOW SEATTLE IS BEING BUILT 14 ROOKIE REPORT
16 SIDNEY CROSBY VS. ALEX OVECHKIN: WHICH LEGEND IS MORE LEGENDARY?

Korpisalo set an NHL record with 85 saves against Tampa Bay – but still lost in quintuple overtime.

NHL

BEST OF 2020: NO, SERIOUSLY

Like everywhere else in the world, the COVID-19 pandemic wreaked absolute havoc on the hockey community in 2020. Let's remember these special moments instead BY KEN CAMPBELL

IT'S PROBABLY BEST THE NHL decided to put off the start of the 2020-21 season until at least Jan. 1. With the way the calendar year went in 2020, there's no sense tempting fate. But all things considered, the league had a pretty good run in 2019-20, what with holding a 24-team playoff tournament in the midst of a global pandemic without one positive test and all…

Man, that was crazy, wasn't it? While our inclination on New Year's Eve would be to tell 2020 to take a hike and not let the door hit it in the rear end on the way out, the fact is the 2019-20 campaign did contain some incredible moments, both pre- and post-COVID. Just in case you wanted to strike 2020 from your memory bank, these high points, in no particular order, might give you pause to reconsider.

CAPTAIN, MY CAPTAIN

The Lightning's Steven Stamkos played exactly two minutes and 47 seconds in the 2020 playoffs, but never has so much been done by one man in such little time. With the Stanley Cup final tied 1-1, Stamkos drew in for Game 3 for the first and only time of the playoffs. And he entered and exited in dramatic fashion, taking the puck along the boards and avoiding a check by Dallas defenseman Esa Lindell, before going bar down on goalie Anton Khudobin. The goal, which put the Lightning up 2-0 in a game they won 5-2, was an inspirational touchstone for Tampa's Stanley Cup championship. Just as quickly as he came, Stamkos was mysteriously gone, not to be seen again in the final until he hoisted the Cup over his head after Game 6. One of the greatest goal-scorers of his generation had scored 445 regular-season and playoff goals prior to Game 3, but No. 446 will go down as the most memorable of his impressive career.

THE EBUG FAIRYTALE

Few people really knew what an EBUG was, but on the 40th anniversary of the Miracle on Ice, the acronym for emergency backup goalie became a part of almost every hockey fan's vernacular, thanks to a 42-year-old Zamboni driver named David Ayres, whose hockey career was derailed when he required a kidney transplant from his mother. Ayres, who works at the Toronto Maple Leafs' practice rink and occasionally fills in at AHL Marlies and Leafs practices, was pressed into service for the Carolina Hurricanes when both Petr Mrazek and James Reimer were injured. After allowing goals on the first two shots he faced, Ayres stopped the next eight to lead the Hurricanes to a 6-3 victory over Toronto. He became the first EBUG to win a game and the oldest goalie to win his NHL debut in league history.

DAVID AYRES

THE MARATHON

In their first real game of the 2020 playoffs, the Tampa Bay Lightning needed five overtime periods to beat the Columbus Blue Jackets in Game 1 of their first-round series. It was a game in which Columbus goaltender Joonas Korpisalo made 85 saves…and lost. Who knows what would have happened had Brayden Point not ended things midway through the fifth OT? After their stunning upset of heavily favored Tampa Bay in the 2019 playoffs, the Blue Jackets might have succeeded in getting into the Lightning's head. But that didn't happen, and the Lightning won in five games, with Point ending Game 5 the way he did Game 1, with an overtime goal.

BLACK LIVES MATTER

For whatever reason, the NHL could not bring itself to say those three words, so as they often do on the ice, the players took matters into their own hands. After Minnesota Wild defenseman Matt Dumba made an impassioned plea for social justice to open the playoff tournament, professional athletes began to go on wildcat strikes in their respective sports to protest the police shooting of Jacob Blake in Wisconsin. NHL players decided not to play games on Aug. 26 and 27, with the backing of the league.

UNITED FRONT

AYRES: JOHN E. SOKOLOWSKI-USA TODAY SPORTS; DUMBA: JEFF VINNICK VIA USA TODAY SPORTS

JOEL (EFFIN') KIVIRANTA

When Andrew Cogliano, a former NHL ironman, was unfit to play Game 7 of the Dallas Stars' second-round series against Colorado, the previously little-known Joel Kiviranta drew into the lineup – and responded with a hat trick, including the winner in overtime. When Kiviranta scored his second goal to tie the score at 4-4 in the third, Finnish play-by-play man Antti Makinen, calling the game from a studio back home, yelled "Joel f---ing Kiviranta!"

THE KHUDOBIN WALL (AND THE GREAT WALL OF DEMKO)

When Stars goalie Ben Bishop went down with an injury, Dallas turned to backup Anton Khudobin, who started 24 games and led the charge to the Stanley Cup final. At 34, Khudobin was responsible for Dallas coming out on top in a number of games they had no business winning, becoming a sentimental fan favorite in the process. Thatcher Demko, who was similarly pressed into service by Vancouver after starter Jacob Markstrom got hurt, was Ken Dryden-esque for the Canucks and almost led them past the powerful Vegas Golden Knights.

A HATTIE TO REMEMBER

In his first home game in more than three months after entering the NHL's substance-abuse program, Bobby Ryan of the Ottawa Senators scored a hat trick that prompted a heartfelt and emotional standing ovation for the troubled winger. And his emotional response to the love he felt created an enduring moment.

DO THE SVECHNIKOV

In the space of less than two months, Carolina Hurricanes sniper Andrei Svechnikov scored two lacrosse-style goals. Although that style of goal has been scored numerous times at lower levels, it is believed Svechnikov's first of the two in late October against David Rittich of the Calgary Flames was the first in NHL history. His second came in mid-December against the Winnipeg Jets. There was some brief and silly talk of the NHL banning the lacrosse goal, but the league publicly stated it has no problem with it.

HE SHOOTS, HE SCORES

The 2019-20 season was largely a forgettable one for Nashville Predators netminder Pekka Rinne, but he did have one shining moment when he joined the small club of goalies who have scored a goal. With the Predators leading 4-2 late in a game against the Chicago Blackhawks in early January, Rinne came out of his net and stopped a dump-in behind the net. Then, standing behind his goal line with no Blackhawks players pressuring him, he squared up and shot the puck the length of the ice into the empty Chicago net. With his goal, Rinne outscored 22 defensemen and four forwards who had each played at least 20 games last season.

BACKUP PLAN
Khudobin led the Stars to the Stanley Cup final after being thrust into the starting role in the playoffs.

GURIANOV GOAL-A-PALOOZA

The Stars had an opportunity to finish off Calgary in Game 6 of their first-round series, but they fell behind 3-0 less than seven minutes into the first period. Then Dallas went to work, scoring seven unanswered goals, including five in the second period. Denis Gurianov had four goals for the Stars, who won three straight to take the series and move on.

OVI HITS 700

After scoring 11 goals in seven games, then enduring a five-game drought looking for his 700th goal, Alex Ovechkin cemented his credentials as the greatest scorer of his generation, when he got Nos. 699 and 700 in back-to-back games in late-February. Ovechkin became the NHL's eighth 700-goal man. His 706 at season's end is 188 behind leader Wayne Gretzky (894). H

ALEX THE GREAT SCORER
Ovechkin became just the eighth player in NHL history to join the league's 700-goal club.

SEATTLE KRAKEN

RISING FROM THE DEEP

Get ready for more Kraken sightings in Seattle – and eventually, players – as the NHL's 32nd franchise gears up for the 2021-22 season BY RYAN KENNEDY

THEY'VE GOT A NAME and they've got a look. Now the NHL's 32nd franchise just needs some players.

The Seattle Kraken were officially born July 23, 2020, with CEO Tod Leiweke presiding over the introductory festivities with socially distant construction workers at Climate Pledge Arena – or at least the bones of what will become the new arena in the near future.

Guessing the name of Seattle's expansion team had been a cottage industry since the city won its bid for an NHL franchise in December 2018. Everything from Sockeyes to Totems was bandied about, but none inspired as much intrigue as Kraken – the mythological sea monster of the deep. Part of the reason was the internet meme of actor Liam Neeson bellowing "Release the Kraken!" in the movie Clash of the Titans, and the name appealed to the franchise's stakeholders, who kept their fans in mind when choosing the moniker. "We've spent two years listening," Leiweke said. "Every day for the past two years, we've thought about this moment, and we knew if we did listen, we couldn't go wrong."

As for the logo and uniform itself, it received as close to universal acclaim as you can get in the sporting world. The Kraken's primary logo is a stylized 'S' which features a tentacle in the negative space, bevelling to signify the city's maritime history and a menacing red eye. "Like our city," said vice-president of marketing Heidi Dettmer, "our logo is carved from the sea."

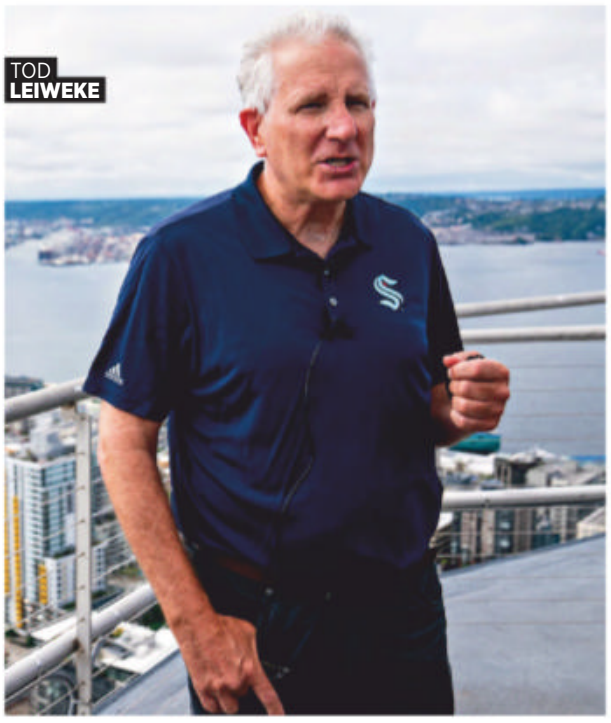
COMING SOON

Their logo was well received, but the Kraken still have a lot of work to do before they play their first NHL game.

Keeping the mystery of the Kraken itself was important to the team – they didn't want a cartoony mascot to kick off their history. Going with a big 'S' as the crest also gives a nod to the old Seattle Metropolitans, the first-ever American team to win the Stanley Cup back in 1917.

Perhaps most intriguing about the uniform is the fact the dark version does not feature any white whatsoever; instead, the deep blue is accented by several other shades, including a very pale "ice blue." Seattle's shoulder logo is an anchor fused with the Space Needle, the local landmark.

In terms of staffing, the Kraken continue to expand their legion. Early recruits include GM Ron Francis, director of hockey strategy and research Alexandra Mandrycky and assistant GM Ricky Olczyk. Mandrycky, who has a background in hockey analytics, actually helped hire Francis to be her boss.



While Mandrycky was the first woman hired for the Kraken's hockey-operations side, she certainly wasn't the last: Seattle has made a point of considering diversity in its hiring policies, and the early returns have been promising. Olympic gold medallist Cammi Granato was part of the team's first cohort of pro scout hirings, while Namita Nandakumar is the new senior quantitative analyst (you know, fancy stats). Nandakumar did similar work for the NFL's Philadelphia Eagles before jumping on board with the Kraken.

In the broadcast booth, Seattle is also making history with the hiring of broadcaster Everett Fitzhugh, who is slated to become the first Black play-by-play man in the NHL after spending the past five seasons calling games for ECHL Cincinnati.

Naturally, the Kraken have high expectations to live up to thanks to the NHL's 31st franchise, the Vegas Golden Knights, and in that respect they're enlisting some insider help. Seattle hired Jonny Greco as its senior vice-president of game presentation and live entertainment – Greco's previous gig having been with Vegas. And while skating knights and archers may not make sense for Seattle's in-arena entertainment, Greco will have a great theme to work with thanks to the Kraken name and logo.

Seattle will officially take to the ice for 2021-22, and while that still seems like a long ways off, there is still a lot to come. Amateur scouts need to be hired to scour the 2021 crop of prospects, and there will be an expansion draft to fill the first roster with NHLers. Who will be Seattle's Marc-Andre Fleury? Heck, it might actually be Marc-Andre Fleury. (T.J. Oshie, born in Washington state, is another option.) Truly, the excitement has just begun for the Kraken and their fans.

Lafreniere brings plenty of skill and speed to the Rangers – and he plays with a physical edge, too.

ROOKIE REPORT

The Russians are coming for the Calder Trophy in 2020-21 – but they'll have to go through Lafreniere BY RYAN KENNEDY

THE NHL'S 2020-21 ROOKIE class promises to be a unique one, marked by uncertainty, but that doesn't mean it's a poor class. The confluence of several high-end prospects brings an exciting group of Russians who will all be vying for the Calder Trophy at the same time – and thanks to positional differences, you could almost fill out an entire all-rookie team ballot from that one hockey nation. The Russian kids have varying degrees of experience from the KHL, and some have already been league champions back home. Their challengers? An assortment of high-end hopefuls coming in one year removed from their draft year plus the first overall pick in 2020.

The big X-factor? How many of Alexis Lafreniere's peers will join him straight from the (virtual) draft podium? Sweden's 'Terror Twins' – Lucas Raymond and Alexander Holtz – are likely to bide their time in the SHL, where the season began months before the NHL, but Germany's Tim Stuetzle proclaimed in a pre-draft press conference that he wanted to compete at training camp, even though he was slated to start the season in the DEL.

There might be a bit of a wait for some of the biggest names from 2020 simply because the North American schedule is so out of whack, but it'll be worth it. Get ready for a lot of dynamic skill, particularly up front, from this season's freshman class.

ALEXIS LAFRENIERE

NY RANGERS | LW

When Lafreniere starts a game, he likes to begin with a bang. The gifted left winger tries to throw a big hit to get the juices flowing – and once he's in a zone, he's a handful for the opposition. With his offensive skill and great vision, the No. 1 pick in 2020 is ready for his Broadway debut. And with a talented group of forwards already established in New York, he can take advantage of line matchups – as if the powerhouse scorer needs any more help out there.

KIRILL KAPRIZOV

MINNESOTA | LW

It has been a five-year wait for Wild fans, but with Kaprizov's NHL debut imminent, the excitement can finally boil over. The dynamic Russian, a fifth-round pick in 2015, gives the Wild a high-end goal-scorer who arrives on the scene just as Kevin Fiala seems to be taking his game to the next level. That's great for a squad that, historically, hasn't had a lot of pure skill guys. Really, the only question surrounding Kaprizov is how fast he can adapt to the smaller North American ice surface, where decisions have to be quicker and physical play is dialled up a notch.

LAFRENIERE: VINCENT ETHIER/CHL; KAPRIZOV: ANDRE RINGUETTE/HHOF-IIHF IMAGES

IGOR SHESTERKIN

NY RANGERS | G

While it's sad to think about the end of the Henrik Lundqvist era in New York, at least his replacement is elite and already familiar with the NHL. After an exemplary KHL career that included a Gagarin Cup title and Olympic gold in his early 20s, Shesterkin came over to the Rangers fully formed and turned heads in an impressive 12-game NHL stint at the end of last season. The Russian boasts the full complement of tools necessary to be a big-league stopper, and as the Rangers continue to improve as a whole, you can expect the new goalie's numbers to climb the charts.

DYLAN COZENS

BUFFALO | C

The Sabres are starving for high-end talent to complement cornerstone center Jack Eichel, and they get another kick at the can with Cozens, who hopes to soar where Casey Mittelstadt stumbled. The one advantage Cozens has is that he'll have veteran pivot Eric Staal on board to help shield him on the roster. Cozens has great size and speed, and should he need to start his NHL career on the wing, he's capable of doing so: he moved around Canada's forward corps en route to gold at the WJC while piling up nine points in seven games, second on the team only to Lafreniere.

ALEXANDER ROMANOV

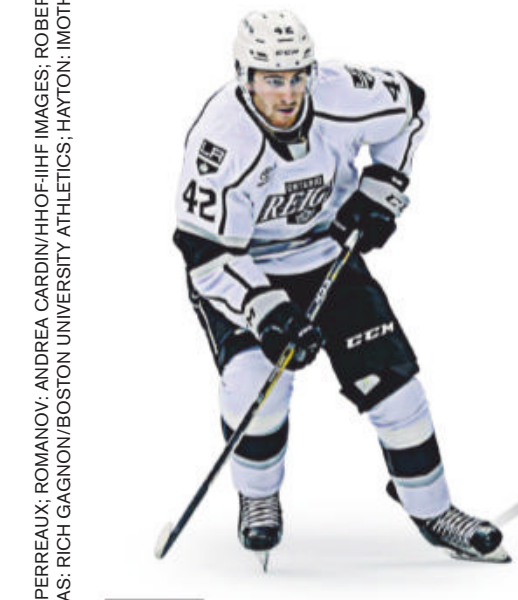
MONTREAL | D

Dynamic in many different ways, Romanov is going to be an instant favorite in Montreal. His big shot and penchant for delivering body-splashing hits had players texting warnings to his opponents at the world juniors. While Romanov and Russia had to settle for silver at the tournament, there was no doubt he was ready for the next challenge, and Montreal can use a player with his elements right away as the Habs try to prove their qualifying-round win over Pittsburgh was no fluke. Romanov will help the cause at both ends of the ice, and he'll do it with flair.

NICK ROBERTSON

TORONTO | LW

When opportunity knocks, you better take it. That's exactly what Robertson did when he was invited to Toronto's bubble for the qualifying round. The kid made the most of it by getting into four post-season games with the Leafs. Of course, he's just getting started. Thanks to his quick feet, battle level and goal-scoring flair, Robertson is a good bet to join the Leafs full time this season. It also helps that he's on an entry-level deal, because the team needs all the cap space it can get. Thanks to Robertson's quick development as a junior, it's a win-win situation for all involved.



GABE VILARDI

LOS ANGELES | C

In a just and equitable world, we would have seen Vilardi as a full-time member of the Kings a year or two ago, but the two-way pivot has dealt with more than his fair share of injuries as a youngster, dating back to his junior career in the OHL. But now there's a light for him to follow, and with Vilardi's size, skill and cycle game, Los Angeles has a young forward who can really make a difference. The rebuilding Kings will see a lot of new faces join them in the next season or two, and Vilardi will be one of the most important to the team's future success.

PHILIP TOMASINO

NASHVILLE | C

At his first NHL training camp, Tomasino impressed with his maturity, and that bodes well for his next foray into the pro ranks. A speedster who found a devastating scoring touch in the OHL last year, Tomasino has the sort of elite skill that Nashville's forward corps simply lacks right now, outside of Filip Forsberg. Still eligible for Canada's world junior team, Tomasino could ride a wave from that event right into the NHL come winter. If he falls short, he'd have to return to junior – but he's too advanced for that level and has NHL written all over him.

TREVOR ZEGRAS

ANAHEIM | C

In just one season at Boston University, Zegras proved enough to sign his rookie deal with the Ducks, who are in the trough of a rebuild and can use the youngster's high-end skill. Zegras' specialty is playmaking, as the U.S. NTDP product combines vision, timing and creativity to make precision passes. Even that one year of college allowed Zegras to build up his strength. That will help him win more battles and improve his speed – which was pretty decent to begin with. He's also a student of the game, and that will no doubt impress the veterans in Anaheim.

BARRETT HAYTON

ARIZONA | C

Hayton, who was one of Canada's heroes at the WJC last year thanks to his miraculous injury comeback before the gold-medal game, also saw time in Arizona's bubble. He got into three playoff games, adding to his 20 contests during the regular season. Expect big growth from a kid who has made leaps already in his career, as Hayton is the kind of complete player who can make a tremendous impact. He's an all-situations center and the type of guy who steps up when his team needs him the most. The Coyotes need an infusion of compete level, and Hayton can deliver.

SIDNEY CROSBY

MOST ICONIC?

Sid & Ovi: they're once-in-a-lifetime superstars who arrived in the NHL in the same season and have dueled ever since. Both are all-time greats, but who's greater? BY TOM THOMPSON

WHO BELONGS ON THE NHL's Mount Rushmore in 2020? Alongside the sculptures of four U.S. presidents, let's pretend hockey has won the right to carve the faces of four superstars. The hockey gods have awarded the first three spots to Wayne Gretzky, Gordie Howe and Bobby Orr. They have also eliminated from consideration such worthy candidates as Bobby Hull, Mario Lemieux and Maurice Richard. Connor McDavid is deemed to be too young. It's down to Sidney Crosby of the Pittsburgh Penguins and Alex Ovechkin of the Washington Capitals. Both have firmly established their positions as all-time greats during their 15-year careers. Both are guaranteed first-ballot Hall of Famers. Which one of them deserves to be the fourth face of hockey on Mount Rushmore?

CAREER

BOTH OVECHKIN AND CROSBY have completed 15 NHL seasons. Ovechkin's Mount Rushmore candidacy is based on his ability to score goals – always the most important attribute in hockey. He has led the NHL in goals nine times, more than any player in history. Ovechkin is a volume shooter who has led the NHL in shots 11 times. He has been incredibly durable, playing in almost 98 percent of his team's games while being a consistent physical presence. He has a Stanley Cup and Conn Smythe Trophy among his playoff accomplishments, and he's one of only eight players in NHL history to have won the Hart Trophy at least three times. Crosby is a two-time NHL scoring champion who has finished among the league's top three scorers seven times. His 1.28 points-per-game average puts him among the all-time leaders. He has twice been named regular-season MVP and has finished in the top three in Hart Trophy voting on seven occasions. He has two Olympic gold medals, with his dramatic overtime goal deciding the 2010 tournament in Vancouver. Crosby has led the Penguins to four Stanley Cup final appearances, winning three titles. Twice, Crosby has been awarded the Conn Smythe Trophy. There's no doubt that these illustrious credentials qualify both Ovechkin and Crosby for Mount Rushmore consideration.

EDGE: NEITHER

PLAYING STYLE

THIS IS A STUDY in contrasts. Ovechkin has been remarkably consistent throughout his career. The only statistical drop-off occurred in 2011-12 when he clearly did not see eye to eye with coach Dale Hunter. He has been a scoring machine who plays a physical game, and there's not much variance in his approach from night to night. I'd compare Crosby's career to that of Muhammad Ali, who was suspended for more than three years during the peak of his career. Ali was a great boxer both before and after the suspension, but he was not the same boxer. Crosby missed the better part of two years at the peak of his career due to concussion-related problems. Like Ali, Crosby was able to reclaim his position as an elite player, but his present game is significantly different than how he played before the concussions. The young Crosby was a dynamic player who always seemed to be in motion. He was aggressive, averaging more than 70 penalty minutes per season. The post-concussion Crosby is a much more deliberate player. His legs are spread wide, and he's more conscious of his defensive positioning. Very rarely do you see him in full flight. He protects the puck well in the offensive zone, makes terrific plays and has great hands in tight situations. He is as smart as any player in the league, but he's not nearly as aggressive as his younger self. He is snarly with his stick – and his mouth – if anybody invades his space, but he has far less aggression pursuing the puck or trying to beat defenders. He now averages around 30 penalty minutes per season.

ALEX

OFFENSE

OVECHKIN MAY BE REMEMBERED as the greatest goal-scorer in the history of the NHL. He's a threat to score every time he shoots the puck. Crosby is an elite goal-scorer, but he is not in Ovechkin's class. The only area in which Crosby may exceed Ovechkin in goal-scoring is his lethal backhand shot – it's as good as any I have ever seen. However, Ovechkin is not close to Crosby as a playmaker. Crosby's wide margin in assists makes him a more productive offensive player both in the regular season and the playoffs.
EDGE: CROSBY

DEFENSE

THIS CATEGORY IS NOT close. The pre-concussion Crosby was often an indifferent defender. He was always looking for any chance to take off from the defensive zone. After his concussions, Crosby's commitment to defensive play improved dramatically. His positional play and anticipation in the defensive zone are excellent. Ovechkin doesn't lack for effort, but he often can't figure out where he should be positioned. His anticipation in the defensive zone is average at best. Crosby is used in key defensive situations. Ovechkin is not.
EDGE: CROSBY

OVECHKIN'S COMBINATION OF SKILL, POWER AND DURABILITY IS MATCHED ONLY BY HOWE

IMPACT

HOCKEY IS THE CONSUMMATE team game. Even the greatest and best-conditioned players are only on the ice for less than half of the game. Nobody expects one player to lead a mediocre team to a championship. The question I want to address is what if the two teams are relatively equal? Let's be objective here. Ovechkin and Crosby both entered the NHL in 2005. Each has remained with his original club for his entire 15-year career. Their two teams have attained almost identical regular-season results over this period. It's a different story in the playoffs. The Capitals won the 2018 Stanley Cup in their only trip to the final during this period. The team has won a total of 10 playoff series since 2005. Meanwhile, the Penguins won three Cups in their four trips to the final in the past decade-and-a-half, and the team has won a total of 20 playoff series in that time. Let's also look at the 2010 and 2014 Olympics. Crosby was the hero in the dramatic overtime victory for Canada in 2010 and a key member of an almost flawless Canadian defensive performance in the 2014 Olympics, where the host Russian team, with Ovechkin as the captain, were the pre-tournament favorites and performed poorly. Crosby's teams have a better track record of success. EDGE: CROSBY

CONCLUSION

OVECHKIN IS TRULY A generational player. In NHL history, his combination of skill, power and durability is matched only by Howe. He gives the fans full value every time he steps onto the ice and will be enshrined in the Hall of Fame as soon as he's eligible. However, Crosby has been a better player. He's more productive offensively, better defensively and has had a greater impact on winning championships. Crosby and Ovechkin entered the NHL together. It would be fitting if they retire at the same time and then enter the Hall of Fame together. They both deserve the honor. However, Mount Rushmore only has room for one of them. I award Sidney Crosby the vacant position beside Howe, Orr and Gretzky. He has earned it.

TOP 50 PLAYERS IN THE NHL

1. NATHAN MACKINNON

COLORADO | C

WE DID NOT TAKE this lightly and we did not do it for headlines. Sure, Connor McDavid would have been an easy No. 1 pick, but it was MacKinnon who elevated his game to unforeseen levels on an Avalanche team that survived a brutal string of injuries to his teammates. We posed the MacKinnon vs. McDavid question to an NHL GM, a Western Conference pro scout and an analytics expert and the vote came out split in favor of MacKinnon. The GM picked McDavid after some agonizing but was quick to big-up MacKinnon. "He's a beast, he's Mark Messier," said the GM. "And he's a hard skater. He's not elegant, he's hard."

Indeed, MacKinnon is a warhead on the ice with a top speed that's flat-out frightening for opponents. Not only was he the runner-up for the Hart Trophy, but he was an early Conn Smythe Trophy favorite thanks to a stellar run that saw the Colorado pivot put up 25 points in 15 playoff games.

And here's the wild part: despite the fact the Avs lost in Round 2, MacKinnon led the playoffs in scoring until Tampa Bay's final game of the third round, when Nikita Kucherov passed him. Also remember that MacKinnon nearly helped Colorado beat the finalists from Dallas, even though Colorado was missing its top two goalies, a top-four defenseman and several key forwards.

But what ultimately gave MacKinnon, 25, the edge heading into this season is that he has the more complete game right now. Defensively, he's a step ahead of McDavid, and he's certainly stronger and more physical – just ask Arizona's Christian Fischer which player he'd rather not face next time there's a scrum. Points and speed? You're going to find it in both of these diamond-level players, but MacKinnon has earned the No. 1 ranking – even if McDavid could very well snatch the crown back in short order.

JEFF CURRY-USA TODAY SPORTS

2. CONNOR McDAVID

EDMONTON | C

His speed is something to behold, and when he has the puck on his stick, he seems to fly even faster. McDavid, 23, is an awe-inspiring player whose lone enemy has been the injury bug: only two of his five NHL seasons have a perfect attendance record on them. Nonetheless, McDavid still has the chance to get better, and there's no doubt he'll do that as he tries to unstick the moribund Oilers. If he can improve his defensive play, he will basically be unstoppable, and based on his trajectory, he will once again lay claim to the title of best player in the world as soon as next year – because keep in mind, he's two years younger than MacKinnon and still technically just approaching his prime years.

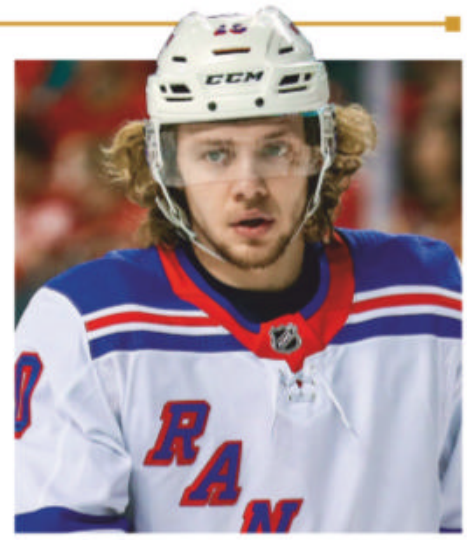
PITTSBURGH | C

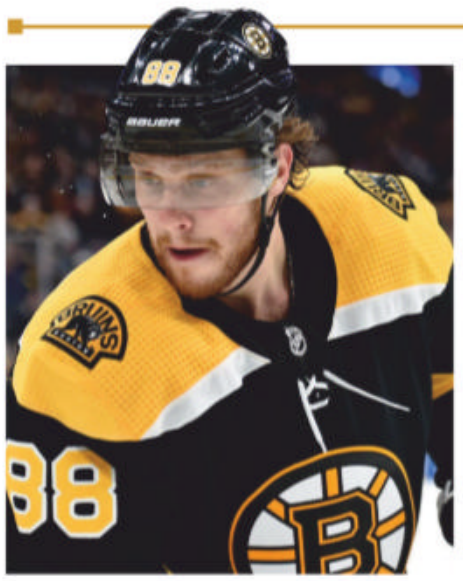
The fact Pittsburgh GM Jim Rutherford continues to mortgage the Penguins' future year after year speaks to the fact he knows Crosby, 33, gives him a chance to win a championship every season. Sure, the past two years have been shocking disappointments, but Crosby remains one of the most effective and venerated players in the world, and there's a reason for that: he continues to play the game the right way – no shortcuts. Crosby's imagination with the puck is still amazing, and he just completed his 15th NHL season. He's been at least a point-per-game player in every single one of them.

4. ARTEMI PANARIN

NY RANGERS | LW

He was a marquee free agent in 2019 – and guess what? Panarin, 29, was actually worth the big-ticket price of admission. Sure, $11.6 million is a hefty cap hit, but the dazzling left winger rang up points for a Rangers team that is just beginning an exciting ascent, and he earned Hart finalist love for his efforts. He also provided cover for Mika Zibanejad to fill the net on the Rangers' other scoring line. With Alexis Lafreniere joining the fold, New York will have an impressive mix of talent to draw from, and Panarin leads the charge.





5. DAVID PASTRNAK

BOSTON | RW

The youngest member of Boston's 'Perfection Line' was also the most celebrated last season thanks to a breakout campaign that saw the 24-year-old Czech national whip in a career-best 48 goals and 95 points. Now, keep in mind, his season was shortened to 70 games due to the pandemic – so pro-rated, he definitely would've hit the vaunted 50-goal mark. Pastrnak's two-way game is incredibly advanced for his age, and while his post-season was blighted by injury and quarantine issues, it's fair to say we should get used to the Bruins right winger being near the top of the scoring charts, and this list, for years to come.

MCDAVID: PERRY NELSON-USA TODAY SPORTS; CROSBY: JOHN E. SOKOLOWSKI-USA TODAY SPORTS; PANARIN: SERGEI BELSKI-USA TODAY SPORTS; PASTRNAK: BOB DECHIARA-USA TODAY SPORTS

6. LEON DRAISAITL

EDMONTON | C

The 2020 Hart winner cruised to the scoring title and proved along the way he wasn't simply a byproduct of being McDavid's teammate. Draisaitl's speed and power make him a fearsome force in his own right.

9. BRAYDEN POINT

TAMPA BAY | C

Point's ability to take over a game was undeniable in the playoffs, and he has emerged as one of the top centers in the NHL. He doesn't have the traditional size, but he more than makes up for it with talent and smarts.

12. AUSTON MATTHEWS

TORONTO | C

That first Rocket Richard Trophy is coming soon – perhaps even this season. Matthews has one of the most astonishing releases in the world, and he's beginning to show more of a drive to take over games.

7. VICTOR HEDMAN

TAMPA BAY | D

Hedman claimed the Conn Smythe Trophy thanks to his massive minute-munching appetite and ability to do everything on the ice. His combination of size, skating and two-way play doesn't come along often.

10. NIKITA KUCHEROV

TAMPA BAY | RW

The Bolts' power play isn't the same without Kucherov, but he also proved in the post-season he has the fire to dig in and get nasty. With his sublime skill and vision, it's easy to see him adding to the Hart he won in 2019.

13. JACK EICHEL

BUFFALO | C

The hockey world has wondered what Eichel would do with a supporting cast, and we will find out with the arrival of Taylor Hall and Eric Staal. The Sabres' powerhouse center has the size, speed and skill to be a legend.

8. ELIAS PETTERSSON

VANCOUVER | C

The Canucks' young superstar is a joy to watch. His creativity and hand-eye coordination with the puck is mesmerizing, and he's only getting better. Pettersson is the nuclear weapon in Vancouver's offensive arsenal.

11. BRAD MARCHAND

BOSTON | LW

Of course you hate him if you're not a Bruins fan. But let's admit that a point-per-game guy who kills penalties and shuts down top lines is tantalizing. Marchand also hits, fights and, yes, drives opponents nuts.

14. PATRICK KANE

CHICAGO | RW

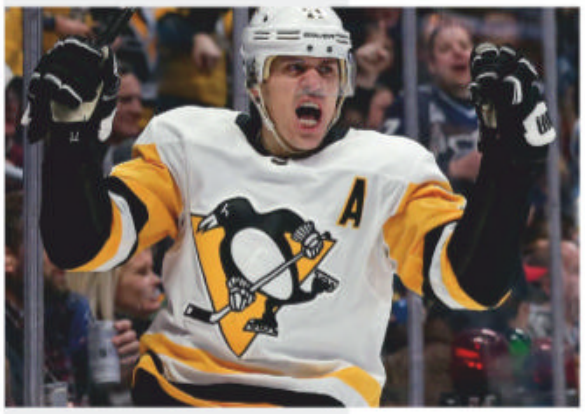
Through thick and thin in Chicago, Kane has been a constant offensive threat, and the silky veteran is still putting up big numbers. With him and Jonathan Toews, the Hawks have great cover for the next generation.

DRAISAITL+PETTERSSON: SERGEI BELSKI-USA TODAY SPORTS; HEDMAN+POINT: KIM KLEMENT-USA TODAY SPORTS; KUCHEROV: ISAIAH J. DOWNING-USA TODAY SPORTS; MARCHAND: BOB DECHIARA-USA TODAY SPORTS; MATTHEWS: JEROME MIRON-USA TODAY SPORTS; EICHEL: TIMOTHY T. LUDWIG-USA TODAY SPORTS; KANE: DENNIS WIERZBICKI-USA TODAY SPORTS

15. ALEX OVECHKIN

WASHINGTON | LW

Count the ol' veteran out at your own peril. Yes, he has his Stanley Cup, and, yes, he's 35, but Ovechkin just won his ninth Rocket Richard Trophy – so he can still rip it. In the meantime, he's also a great leader.



16. CONNOR HELLEBUYCK

WINNIPEG | G

The Jets would have been dead in the water without Hellebuyck last season, which is why he not only won the Vezina but also finished sixth in Hart voting. The big netminder is extremely tough to beat when he gets hot.

17. ANDREI VASILEVSKIY

TAMPA BAY | G

Here's a fun game: think about how many Vezinas Vasilevskiy could end up with by the end of his career. The 26-year-old already has one, and he's going to be near the top for a long time. Great size and athleticism.

18. EVGENI MALKIN

PITTSBURGH | C

Age doesn't affect superstars the same way. Take Malkin: at 34, he's coming off one of his best campaigns in years. Big, powerful and talented, he can still take over a game – or a whole month – when healthy.

19. ROMAN JOSI

NASHVILLE | D

A do-everything D-man coming off a Norris, the Preds captain helms one of the NHL's best bluelines. He's a great skater with an active stick who processes the game quickly. Add in his offense and you've got a star.

20. ALEKSANDER BARKOV

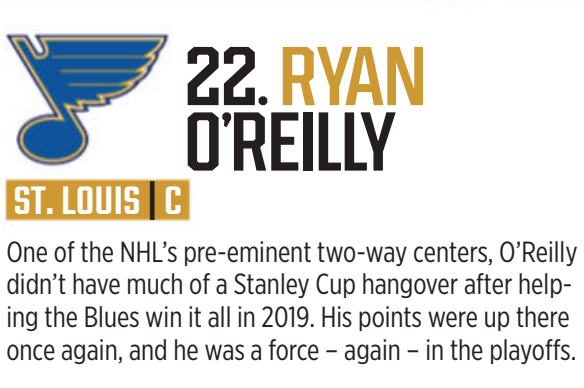
FLORIDA | C

The Panthers captain looks like a future Selke winner as he continues to grow his game. A lack of team success keeps him out of the spotlight, but with his size and skill, the rest of the NHL isn't sleeping on him.

21. SETH JONES

COLUMBUS | D

His blend of size, skating, skill and smarts make Jones the archetypal top-line defenseman, and his contributions in Columbus cannot be overstated. Next: play a full 82-game schedule and post a few more points.



22. RYAN O'REILLY

ST. LOUIS | C

One of the NHL's pre-eminent two-way centers, O'Reilly didn't have much of a Stanley Cup hangover after helping the Blues win it all in 2019. His points were up there once again, and he was a force – again – in the playoffs.

23. JOHN CARLSON

WASHINGTON | D

No defenseman put up more points than Carlson last year, and that earned him serious Norris consideration. His puck skills and passing acumen led to a career-high 60 assists, though he struggled at times in the 'D' zone.

VEGAS | D

He doesn't have a Norris, but Pietrangelo always seems to be in the mix – and he did captain the Blues to a Cup, so he's got that going for him. Big, smart and talented, he's an excellent offensive driver from the back end.

25. MARK SCHEIFELE

WINNIPEG | C

It's too bad Scheifele went down with a major injury when the playoffs began, because his presence could've changed the complexion of the post-season for the Jets. As it is, he's a top-line center with skill to spare.

26. SEBASTIAN AHO

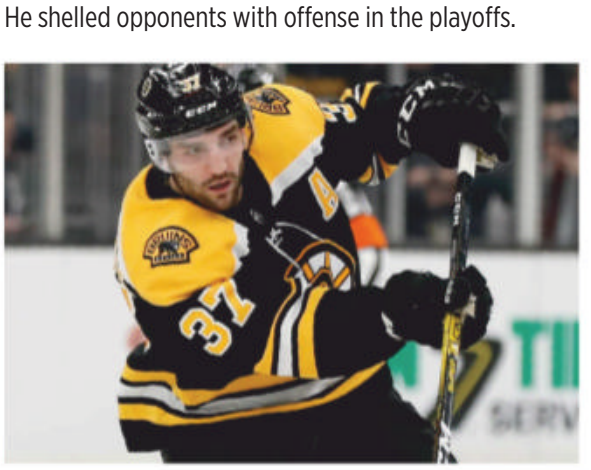
CAROLINA | C

Offer-sheeted by the Habs, Aho ended up staying in Carolina as the Canes knew they had to keep their No. 1 center. He's still improving, and his blend of skill and defensive awareness makes him perfect for the times.

27. MITCH MARNER

TORONTO | RW

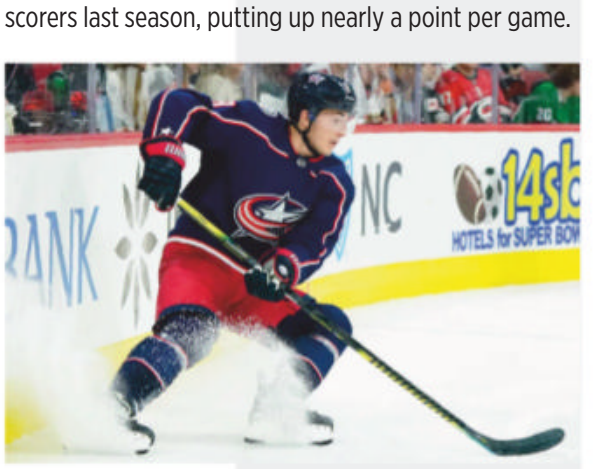
Ask him to do it, and he's there for you. From elite offense to killing penalties, Marner puts a golden tinge on the jack-of-all-trades prototype. He makes delightful plays with the puck and can make defenses look silly.



28. MIRO HEISKANEN

DALLAS | D

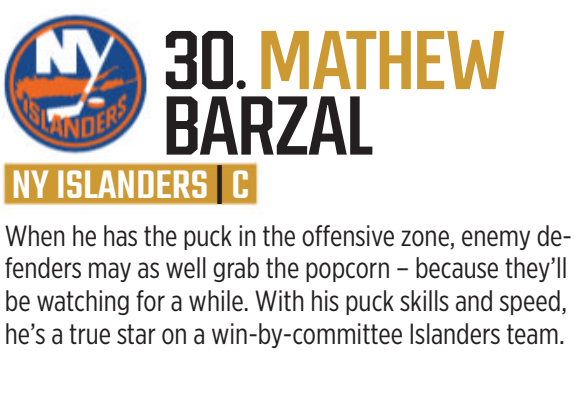
He's already taken over the Dallas defense, and you won't hear any complaints from the Stars. Heiskanen has incredible poise, an effortless stride and confidence. He shelled opponents with offense in the playoffs.



29. MARK STONE

VEGAS | RW

The epitome of a two-way forward, Stone is the rare winger who excels in a shutdown role while also racking up points. Big and smart, he was one of Vegas' top scorers last season, putting up nearly a point per game.



30. MATHEW BARZAL

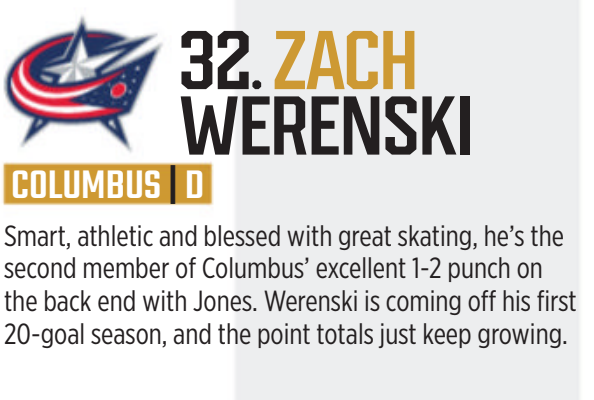
NY ISLANDERS | C

When he has the puck in the offensive zone, enemy defenders may as well grab the popcorn – because they'll be watching for a while. With his puck skills and speed, he's a true star on a win-by-committee Islanders team.

31. PATRICE BERGERON

BOSTON | C

It's amazing to think he's only 35, but the Bruins ace did start his NHL career as a teen. Still one of the best two-way centers in the game, Bergeron is a defensive gem who was nearly a point-per-game player again last year.



32. ZACH WERENSKI

COLUMBUS | D

Smart, athletic and blessed with great skating, he's the second member of Columbus' excellent 1-2 punch on the back end with Jones. Werenski is coming off his first 20-goal season, and the point totals just keep growing.

PIETRANGELO: SERGEI BELSKI-USA TODAY SPORTS; SCHEIFELE+AHO: JAMES GUILLORY-USA TODAY SPORTS; MARNER+BARZAL: DAN HAMILTON-USA TODAY SPORTS; HEISKANEN: JEROME MIRON-USA TODAY SPORTS; STONE: STEPHEN R. SYLVANIE-USA TODAY SPORTS; BERGERON: WINSLOW TOWNSON-USA TODAY SPORTS; WERENSKI: JAMES GUILLORY-USA TODAY SPORTS

33. MIKKO RANTANEN

COLORADO | RW

Injuries have held back his raw production, but when Rantanen is healthy he's one of the top wingers in the game. Playing on one of the best lines in the NHL, the big Finn has the power and talent to be a major star.

34. JONATHAN HUBERDEAU

FLORIDA | LW

Riding shotgun with Barkov, Huberdeau has fulfilled the promise that saw Florida nab the nifty winger with the No. 3 pick back in 2011. His career high for points is 92, but he has the potential to break that this season.

35. CAREY PRICE

MONTREAL | G

Pittsburgh was right to be frightened. Price turned back the clock in the qualifying round of the 2020 playoffs and showed just what he could do on a full tank of gas. A rested Price is still an incredibly intimidating icon.

36. SEAN COUTURIER

PHILADELPHIA | C

Couturier just picked up his first Selke at 28 and could add a couple more to his mantle in the coming years. With his size, skill and defensive awareness, he has everything a team could want in a top-line center.

37. TUUKKA RASK

BOSTON | G

Rask puts up some of the best numbers year after year yet still seems to get lost in the shuffle a bit. His workload isn't as onerous as some other starters, but he's the backbone of a B's team that's always a beast in the East.

38. PIERRE-LUC DUBOIS

COLUMBUS | C

Smart, nasty, fast and talented, Dubois is picking up steam as a young pivot who's entering his prime as a two-way force. He's only going to become more fierce as he gets stronger and more comfortable in the NHL.

39. JOHN TAVARES

TORONTO | C

As he enters his 30s, Tavares continues to be a elite offensive center who can make an impact in all situations and gives the Maple Leafs a terrific 1-2 punch down the middle with Matthews.

40. ROBIN LEHNER

VEGAS | G

Since facing his demons, Lehner has demonstrated he's a No. 1 goalie and deserves the contract to go with it. He's the type of netminder who can make shooters sag, and his playoff run with Vegas was impressive.

41. JACCOB SLAVIN

CAROLINA | D

The criminally underrated Slavin should've received more Lady Byng consideration – and Norris votes due to his defensive acumen – but that's life. He'll have to be satisfied as a cult favorite for Carolina and analytics fans.

RANTANEN+SLAVIN: ISAIAH J. SOKOLOWSKI-USA TODAY SPORTS; LEHNER: GERRY THOMAS-USA TODAY SPORTS

42. KYLE CONNOR

WINNIPEG | LW

With speed to burn, Connor quietly led the Jets in scoring last season. That's pretty impressive, given the names of some of his teammates. The swift winger flirted with 40 goals in a shortened season.

43. SHEA THEODORE

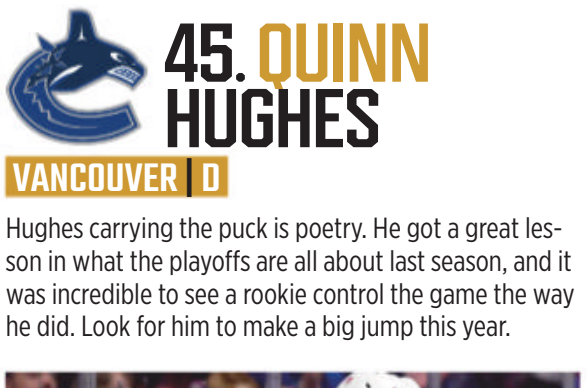
VEGAS | D

Does Vegas have a Norris winner in its future? Theodore was amazing for the Knights in the playoffs, building on his best regular season yet. He's cool with the puck, and his smarts and skating make him a star on the rise.

44. CALE MAKAR

COLORADO | D

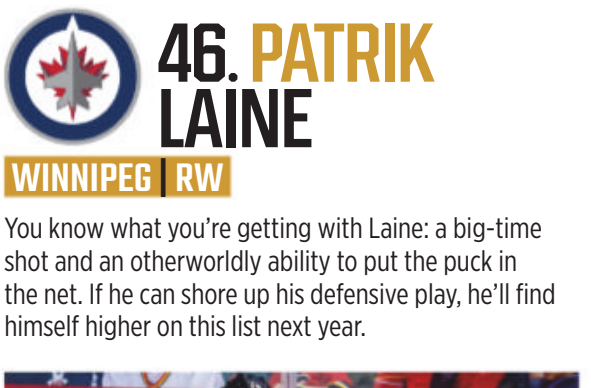
Need a star? Call Cale Makar. Colorado was ravaged by injuries in the playoffs, which overshadowed just how important the rookie blueliner has become to the Avs. Incredible offense, and his defense isn't far behind.



45. QUINN HUGHES

VANCOUVER | D

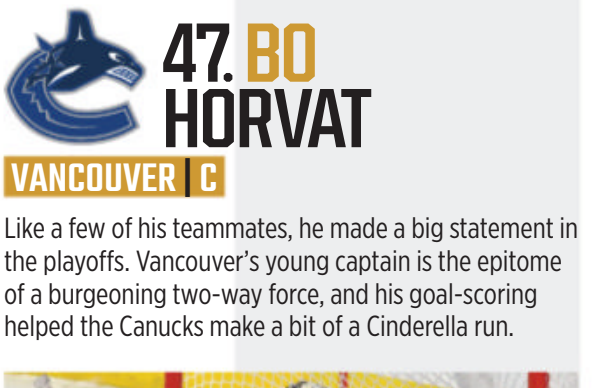
Hughes carrying the puck is poetry. He got a great lesson in what the playoffs are all about last season, and it was incredible to see a rookie control the game the way he did. Look for him to make a big jump this year.



46. PATRIK LAINE

WINNIPEG | RW

You know what you're getting with Laine: a big-time shot and an otherworldly ability to put the puck in the net. If he can shore up his defensive play, he'll find himself higher on this list next year.



47. BO HORVAT

VANCOUVER | C

Like a few of his teammates, he made a big statement in the playoffs. Vancouver's young captain is the epitome of a burgeoning two-way force, and his goal-scoring helped the Canucks make a bit of a Cinderella run.

48. MIKA ZIBANEJAD

NY RANGERS | C

Not that we don't believe in 'Z-Bad,' but he shocked with 41 goals in 57 games last year. The fact he kept getting hotter as the season progressed only added to the notion that he's unlocked a new skill level.

49. MATTHEW TKACHUK

CALGARY | LW

He annoys opponents to no end, but Tkachuk is also an incredibly effective player. Smart, physical and responsible, he was Calgary's best forward last season (and, yes, 'Johnny Hockey' needs to step it up).

50. CARTER HART

PHILADELPHIA | G

We've just had a taste of what Philadelphia's savior in net has in store for the NHL in the coming years. Hart is a phenomenal young goaltender who excels under pressure and plays with poise.

THE NHL'S FUTURE IN 3D

THE NEXT BATCH OF BEST DEFENSEMEN HAS ALREADY ARRIVED IN THE NHL. THEY'RE COOL AND CONFIDENT AND SUPREMELY SKILLED – AND THEY'RE BARELY 20 YEARS OLD. MEET MIRO HEISKANEN, QUINN HUGHES AND CALE MAKAR

BY KEN CAMPBELL

HEISKANEN / HUGHES / MAKAR

The youth of today are the leaders of tomorrow.
– Nelson Mandela

SO THREE DEFENSEMEN WALK INTO a bar, a Canadian, a Finn and an American…and they all get carded because they look more like three-quarters of a boy band than guys who patrol the blueline in the best hockey league in the world. They're all in their early 20s, look like they're in their teens and play like they're in their 30s. None of them has played a game in the minors, none is terribly physically imposing and none was refined in Canada's major-junior hockey factory. All three were high draft picks who should've been picked higher. With one year remaining on their entry-level deals, all three are setting themselves up to be wildly wealthy very soon and, if their early-career performances are any indication, will in short order be regularly making the Norris Trophy race their own personal three-way competition. And all three will be key parts of their country's Olympic teams in 2022.

If Miro Heiskanen, Quinn Hughes and Cale Makar – we've listed them alphabetically by last name to prevent you from reading anything into the order – don't have you excited about the future of the NHL, you're either very difficult to impress or haven't been watching lately. Most certainly, you weren't tuning into the bubble hockey tournament in Toronto and Edmonton, where each of them truly established himself as a star. Not a future star. A star, right here and right now. They're fortunate enough to be playing in an era and placed in situations where they've been allowed to exploit their talents, they all had significantly higher points-per-game totals in the playoffs than the regular season, and they exceeded the expectations, which were already pretty high, that their teams had for them.

As much as fans rave about the mind-boggling talent among young forwards that the NHL is blessed with at the moment, it is also a golden age for young defensemen. And it's not just Heiskanen, Hughes and Makar. Shea Theodore is emerging as an elite player for the Vegas Golden Knights and Mikhail Sergachev is coming on in Tampa Bay. Buffalo's Rasmus Dahlin is destined for greatness, and the Rangers' Adam Fox finished fourth in Calder Trophy voting, coming close to making it an all-defense group. Only once before in NHL history, 1931-32 to be exact, had defensemen finished 1-2 in rookie scoring. Hughes and Makar went wire-to-wire in accomplishing the feat last season.

And if you really want to feel old, consider that all three of them were Duncan Keith fans when they were kids. Each was asked which player he admired most growing up, the one he most closely emulated, and each of them said Keith. If you require a refresher course, Keith is a three-time Stanley Cup champion with two Norris Trophies and a Conn Smythe Trophy on his mantle, with a place waiting for him in the Hall of Fame three years after he retires. The oldest of the trio is Makar, who just turned 22 in October. When Keith was that age, he was still playing in the minors. So you can see where this is going, right?

"They're all able to make things look easy," Keith said, "which shows their abilities are on another level. I would say Hughes and Makar are a little flashier than Heiskanen, but I wouldn't say they're any more effective. The game now is speed and skill and it's a little more chaotic, and those guys are able to adapt and ad-lib out there because of their skill. They can change the dynamic of the game."

Heiskanen, Hughes and Makar are well on their way to doing just that. If youth is wasted on the young, as George Bernard Shaw once said, it will be fascinating to watch these three phenoms once they actually figure things out.

WHAT DUNCAN KEITH SAYS ABOUT HIM "His skating is his best asset. Lidstrom was so poised and calm, and you see a lot of that in Heiskanen. He plays the left, he plays the right, he plays tons of minutes."

JEROME MIRON-USA TODAY SPORTS

SERGEI BELSKI-USA TODAY SPORTS

WE'RE willing to go out on a limb and point out that Mia Mattinen probably can't start a breakout at the NHL level, can't hang on to the puck until just the precise moment, can't either skate or pass the puck out of her zone with equal aplomb. But Mia Mattinen is a kindergarten teacher in Finland, and that requires a very similar skill set. "Now that takes poise," said her son, Miro Heiskanen.

When Heiskanen was playing in Finland, his nickname was 'The Ice Man.' Since he has cometh to the NHL, that has not changed. Not one bit. In fact, if anything, he's proven that he's even more unshakable as he gets older. Heiskanen credits his mother, and father Jukka, who repairs elevator doors, for the calm demeanor he possesses both on and off the ice. On the ice, it's there to see almost every time he plays, and it was certainly on full display during the playoffs when Heiskanen led NHL defensemen and all Stars players in scoring. "The skating ability and everything else you see, it just jumps out at you," said Dallas coach Rick Bowness. "His poise is amazing for a young man like that. His confidence in himself...he's a very humble man, but he knows how good he is. When I was coaching the 'D,' he'd come off the ice and he'd be sitting there and I'd say, 'Did you see that, Miro?' 'Yup, I got it.' And that was it. You didn't have to show him anything."

Off the ice there is a quiet confidence as well. When he was just 17 and playing with men in the Finnish League for IFK Helsinki, he had no trouble scaring up the courage to ask out Julia Taka-aho, despite the fact she's two years older than he is. "Maybe a little more nervous than I am right now," said Heiskanen on the eve of the Stanley Cup final. "But we had been talking a lot before that, so it wasn't too bad. I think we went for coffee or something."

> "I KNOW HOW GOOD I CAN BE, BUT I DON'T THINK LIKE THAT"
> – Miro Heiskanen

Things have apparently worked out well. Taka-aho came to Dallas with Heiskanen where she now owns a horse and together they have two Pomeranians, Max and Leo.

It's not often teams or individuals score more in the playoffs than they do in the regular season, but that's exactly what happened with both the Stars and Heiskanen. And it's almost certain the former would not have happened without the latter.

As the playoffs went on, Heiskanen looked more and more comfortable being the alpha dog for the Stars when it came to producing offense. And the results were eye-popping. With six goals and 26 points in 27 games, Heiskanen finished third in playoff scoring, just two goals and nine points shy of the totals he put up in 68 games in the regular season. Just before the Cup final, he was asked whether he was playing the best hockey of his NHL career. "Oh yeah, probably," he said. "I feel really good on the ice. During the break I was healthy and practicing a lot, so that really helped. Of course, I felt really good when the games started, but I wasn't thinking, 'Am I going to dominate?' I don't really ever think that way. I know how good I can be, but I don't think like that."

If Heiskanen does indeed know how good he can be, he must know that the comparisons to Lidstrom are very real. Stars GM Jim Nill and head scout Joe McDonnell, who saw Lidstrom up close during their days in Detroit, have made veiled references to Lidstrom. The first thing they'll say is something like, "Now I'm not saying he'll be as good as Lidstrom, but…" But why can't he be? He's only played two years in the NHL, and he's already one of the best defensemen Finland has produced, with the potential to be the best, ahead of Teppo Numminen and Kimmo Timonen. "Of course, it's great to hear, it's nice to hear," said Heiskanen of the Lidstrom comparisons. "But I don't think about it, and I don't feel any more pressure. I don't think about, 'Am I going to be the next Lidstrom?' I just want to go out and play and help my team win." ■

BOB FRID-USA TODAY SPORTS

NOBODY SAW THIS COMING. Not the hockey world, not the Vancouver Canucks, not Travis Green, not even Quinn Hughes. As much hype as there was for Hughes after he played five games for the Canucks at the end of 2018-19, and it was significant, the real thing turned out to be even better. As hard as it is to believe, prior to this season only once since the NHL expanded to 12 teams and only five times in league history had a defenseman led rookies in scoring. Hughes became the sixth to do it last season. So much of the Canucks' magical season ran through Hughes. He made his teammates better, and he made his team better. Just ask the analytics guys, and they'll tell you that almost everyone on the Canucks had a far better Corsi when Hughes was on the ice than when he was off it.

Three weeks after the Canucks ended their surprising playoff run, one that was a foundational trip through the post-season that will help this group for years to come, Hughes was still trying to appreciate how special it actually was. That's not necessarily a bad thing, but when you're it's important to look back and reflect and realize what a great year it's been and be humbled, and I probably don't do that enough. But it's been a really good year, and I'm hoping to do it again next year."

Aside from his speed and ability to handle the puck, what amazed so many people about Hughes last season was his consistency, particularly on offense. He never went more than four games without recording a point. Norris Trophy winner Roman Josi was the only defenseman to score more points (26 points in 31 games) than Hughes (25 points in 29 games) from Jan. 1 to the end of the season. John Carlson, who led NHL defensemen in scoring last year, tied Hughes' total from Jan. 1 with 25 points in 28 games. So that was the kind of company Hughes was keeping. Not bad for a player coming out of college who many thought would hit the wall halfway through the season instead of leaping over it. "The Canucks probably didn't think I'd have as good a year as I had," Hughes said. "I think the same thing happened with Petey (Elias Pettersson) and (Brock) Boeser (in the previous two seasons). It's hard to know when guys are ready and when they're not ready."

You also have to credit the Canucks and Green for doing right by Hughes last season. Through the first half of the campaign, they put him into situations where he was set up to succeed. Despite the expectations, he wasn't saddled with too much ice time in too many situations and wasn't given the heavy-lifting defensive matchups. But as the season went on, the Canucks felt more comfortable working him into big situations and basically gave him the responsibility of running the power play. But more than anything, they didn't make Hughes into something he's not. He has the Canucks and a new NHL mentality to thank for that.

Hughes outscored Scott Niedermayer in their rookie years because Hughes was given the freedom to play the game the way he felt comfortable playing it. "One of the first things (Green) said to me was, 'I'm going to let you play your game and we will teach you as you go along,' " Hughes said. "And I think that made me want to learn because they weren't just putting restrictions on me. They kind of gave me a leash and that made me in return try to play as mature a game as I can. That made me want to listen and take their advice more, and that made me want to become more mature in the defensive zone and learn how to play pro hockey faster." ■

two weeks away from your 21st birthday and you've just accomplished what Hughes did, you might want to do just a little bit of basking. "I'm such a competitive and motivated person that you're always reaching for the next thing and you're never satisfied," Hughes said. "But sometimes

WHAT NATHAN MACKINNON SAYS ABOUT HIM "He had some games where he was the best player on the ice by a mile. It's amazing to have someone back there who is so dominant. I think he's the most dynamic defenseman in the league. He's just such a smart player. He finds me in really good areas and he makes my life easy."

WHAT DUNCAN KEITH SAYS ABOUT HIM "There's just not that time or space to even get a half-slapper sometimes. Makar is so good at getting that wrist shot off."

THE REACTION WAS REMARKABLY poised, in retrospect. A lot of guys would have smashed their $300 carbon-fiber stick over the goalpost, but not Makar. After he scored each one of his 12 goals last season, Makar would hardly celebrate. In fact, he'd lift his eyebrows up higher than his stick. His teammates actually gave him a hard time about his incredibly subdued cellies. So given that he wasn't at all demonstrative when he scored, he wasn't about to act up when he skated behind the Avalanche net, then picked up the puck and bobbled it, knocking it right in front of the crease, where Denis Gurianov scored for the Dallas Stars to make it 5-2 in Game 4 of their second-round series.

The goal turned out to be crucial, considering the Avalanche scored twice to make the score 5-4. Had Makar not gagged that one up, Vladislav Namestnikov's goal would've sent the game into overtime. Instead the Avs went down 3-1 in a series they would lose in seven games. Making a mistake like that during normal times is one thing, doing it when you're in a bubble and you're alone with your thoughts after a critical playoff game is another. That was when Makar decided he would dispense with beating himself up. "That was probably one of the goals that decided that series," Makar said. "It's kind of a tsunami wave through the brain. You just have to forget about it and move on. It's going to be online forever, but at the end of the day it's over and done with and you can't do anything about it anymore."

Besides, there was so much more to celebrate than lament in Makar's first season in the NHL. He became just the 12th defenseman to win the Calder Trophy as rookie of the year in the 86 seasons it has been awarded. Goalies have won it 16 times and forwards 58 times, which tells you a little something about how difficult it is for young blueliners to have a positive impact on the game. It should also give you a pretty good indication just how terrific Makar was in 2019-20. "Overall, I felt like it was an average first year," he said. "It's definitely something I will look to improve on." Whoa, wait a minute. Did he actually say average? "OK, maybe I should take that back a little bit," he said. "I don't know if average is the right word to use, but I think I can be better in different areas of the game, and there's still a lot of room for improvement. Let's put it that way."

So, unless you haven't noticed, Makar is all about teachable moments. He did enough independent studies at UMass-Amherst, where he won the Hobey Baker Award and led the Minutemen to within a game of a national championship, to know the value of a good lesson.

Sometimes they come out of success, other times out of failure. One came on Dec. 7 when Boston's Brad Marchand caught Makar with a clean (imagine that) and hard check behind the net. Makar was out for three weeks with an upper-body injury, an absence that likely cost him the rookie point-scoring crown. "That was kind of just a wakeup call for me," Makar said. "I felt confident at that point and I just took a step back and said to myself, 'I need to be more aware.' I think that helped my game a lot. It's definitely a learning curve, and that was a blessing in disguise even though I was hurt. I put myself in that position, and I'm definitely not going to blame anyone else."

A 20-something who owns his mistakes? Well, you don't see that every day. But then again, talents like Makar don't come along all that often, either. H

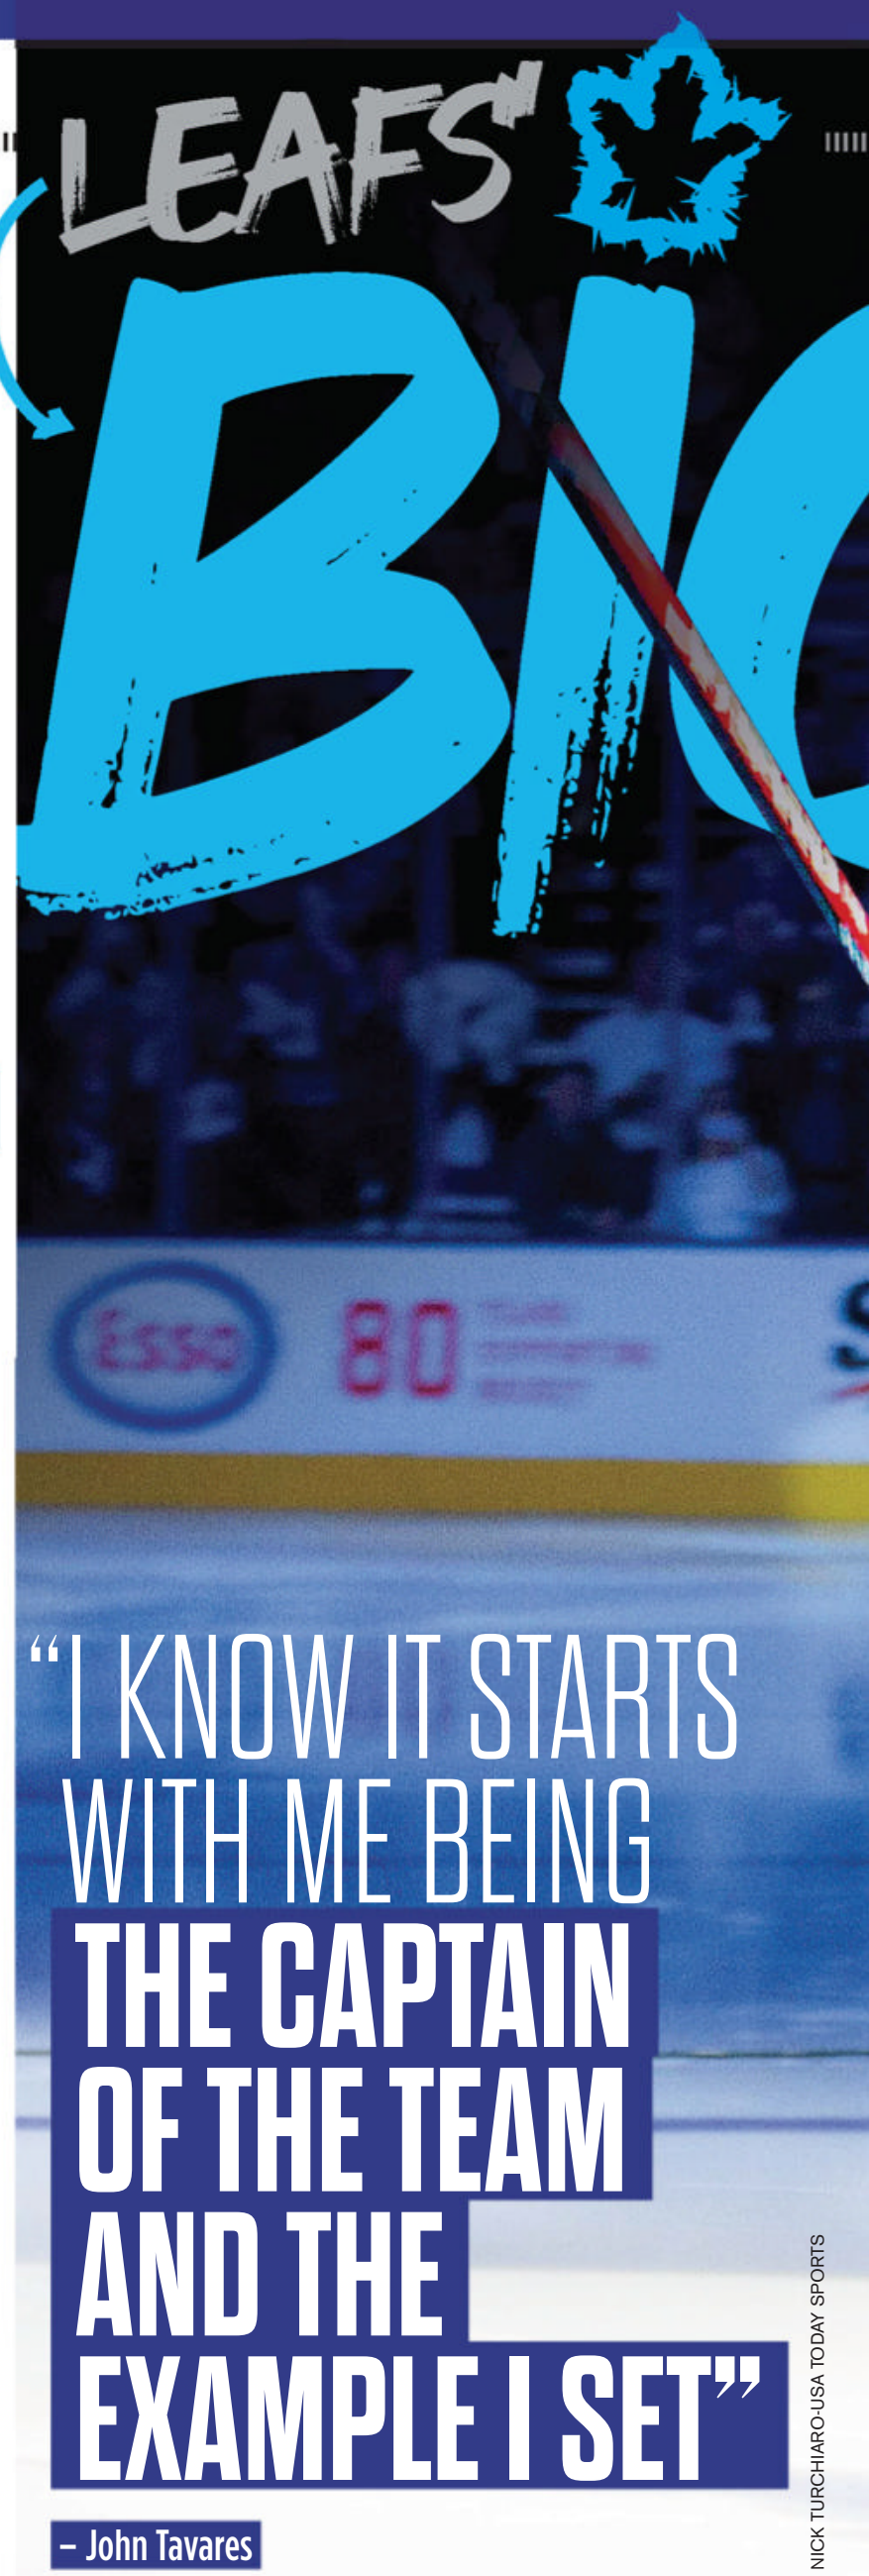
THE

BEFORE HE BECAME THE TEAM CAPTAIN AND BEFORE HE SPENT A DECADE ON LONG ISLAND, JOHN TAVARES GREW UP IN TORONTO AS A DIEHARD LEAFS SUPPORTER. AND HE STILL IS TODAY – BUT NOW HE HAS A CHANCE TO DO SOMETHING ABOUT THE FRANCHISE'S 50-PLUS YEARS OF PLAYOFF FRUSTRATION

BY MATT LARKIN



NICK TURCHIARO-USA TODAY SPORTS

IMAGINE CHEERING FOR A cursed franchise your whole life. Imagine desperately hoping for a Stanley Cup or, heck, a trip to the final for the first time since 1967. Or how about just winning a series for the first time since 2004? Or beating the Boston Bruins for once? Or no longer choking away massive leads in playoff games?

Imagine enduring those trademark longings of every beaten-down Toronto Maple Leafs fan… while playing for the Toronto Maple Leafs. What does the rollercoaster feel like when you're driving it instead of riding it?

We can ask John Tavares. He lives a waking fantasy. He's two years into his career as a Leaf and one year into his captaincy, and when he talks about his experience, he does so as someone who never fully separated himself from his childhood fandom. The "jammies," which were actually bed sheets, by the way, can attest to that. Because he lives the dual existence of a diehard supporter who just happens to play for the team he loves, Tavares is more uniquely suited to the burdensome role of Leafs captain than any player on earth. The player-coach no longer exists in the NHL, but he is the league's unofficial player-fan.

To understand how Tavares, 30, navigated his first season as Leafs captain, it's best to look at it through the lens of those Blue and White diehards who sip Tim Hortons coffee and "plan the parade" after every win.

Leaf fans dream. They assume great players always want to sign in hockey's most smothering, pressure-packed market. They were sure Steven Stamkos would come in 2016. In 2018, Tavares turned Leafs Nation's wishful thinking into tangible joy when he signed a seven-year, $77-million deal. " 'Now you play for the Maple Leafs,' " Tavares said, quoting his own realization. "Even though I grew up around it and am from the area, when you are a part of the team, you feel the connection and how the team is so intertwined with the culture of this city, the community, the people, just the history of the Maple Leafs and the game of hockey and how much that is a part of who the people are, what the city is all about. It's just amazing, the history and tradition of the Maple Leafs, so that has been tremendous to experience and now to be a part of. Just how passionate people are about the team and wanting to win the Stanley Cup, that's been phenomenal."

Leaf fans know their history. They masochistically drag half a century's worth of heartbreak around like a rusty anchor. They lament Kerry Fraser's missed call and Nazem Kadri's suspensions. They ignite Twitter with troll jobs any time the Leafs take a three-goal lead into the third period. Tavares gets it. He lived it as a kid. He understands the pain of Leaf fandom. He's now on a mission to cure it but, so far, he's played on teams that have added to it. Toronto led the Bruins 3-2 in their 2019 playoff series and couldn't close it out. While the Leafs staged an all-timer of a comeback in Game 4 of their 2020 play-in series against the Columbus Blue Jackets, the blown 3-0 lead in Game 3 still cost them the series in the long run. Tavares wears that, too, and he vowed to get better after Toronto bowed out in its opening-round series for a fourth straight year. "I know it starts with me being the captain of the team and the example I set, the responsibility I have, so I know I have to be a lot better and do the best job that I can," he said.

Leaf fans are obsessive. They expect constant updates and gobble up news tidbits and soundbites daily. Tavares craved that information as a young fan, and that prepared him for the role of captain now. He's the first one to talk to reporters after every game, win or lose, and he'll often talk longer than is expected of him. Is it a big change compared to wearing the 'C' for the New York Islanders, who are a relatively small fish in a massive pond of major pro sports teams?

Yes, Tavares says, but he doesn't feel overwhelmed by Toronto's media attention. He gets excited by the support if people stop him in the street. They're usually respectful, he says, and give him the space he needs. He feels his job as captain isn't simply to be one of the team's best players and lead his teammates. He fashions himself as a conduit between the team, the media and the fans. He enjoys his time away from cameras with his wife Aryne and one-year-old son Jace, but he's far more comfortable in the public eye than most stars. It's not that Tavares is a gregarious quote machine. It's that he understands what Leaf fans expect from their captain, as he's walked in their shoes. "The biggest thing in Toronto is, with the following of the team media-wise and the fan base, you are the voice of the team," Tavares said. "There's that constant communication and representing how the group is doing, how the guys are doing, how we are doing as a team. You need a good understanding of all that. You are the messenger to the fan base and to the community."

Leaf fans are often stuffed with knowledge and factoids about the team. They memorize salary-cap figures and know which players can be squirreled away on LTIR. They can tell you Travis Dermott's 5-on-5 expected goals against. They use online roster-building tools to act as GM Kyle Dubas and sculpt their own future Leaf lineups – somehow shoehorning Alex Pietrangelo onto the 2020-21 payroll, of course.

While Tavares doesn't offer opinions on how to build the roster, he does know the team like few others. A fan would be proud. He has an intricate understanding of his team's chemistry, and that proved particularly important last season. When the Leafs fired Mike Babcock as coach, AHL Marlies bench boss Sheldon Keefe parachuted behind the bench in mid-November. He leaned on Tavares to learn as much as he could about his new charges. They also worked closely together during the COVID-19 shutdown, analyzing what the team had to work on. "In my new situation with so many new things to deal with, from being a mid-season hire to the pause and preparing for Phase 2 and Phase 3, my communication and relationship with John was vital," Keefe said. "He was very helpful to me, giving a sense of where the pulse of the team was and what the team needed from me and also what I needed from him and our team. Through our communications together as well as our regular leadership group meetings, we were able to share ideas and really be clear about how both sides feel. That relationship is important to me."

Before the Leafs unveiled Tavares as captain on 2019-20's opening night, there was some buzz about Auston Matthews getting the job. Whether the incident in which he allegedly dropped his pants (not his boxers) in a parking lot in front of a female security guard impacted the decision to name Tavares captain, we'll never know. What we do know is Tavares has been an ideal fit in his role in the eyes of his teammates. They speak glowingly about his work ethic and the example he sets.

But Tavares is quick to downplay his influence. What he says he learned about leadership in his five seasons captaining the Isles is that it's not a solo job. He defers a lot to the team's leadership group, which includes alternate captains Morgan Rielly, Matthews and Mitch Marner, goalie Frederik Andersen, defenseman Jake Muzzin and winger Zach Hyman. "He's been great," Marner said. "He brings that steady leadership, that calmness to our team. He comes in with that attitude every day of making sure everyone's going to try and get better and push himself to the limit."

The limit, however, hasn't been good enough yet. The Leafs set a franchise record for points the season before Tavares arrived. Since then, they've regressed in points percentage in consecutive seasons and haven't won a playoff series. Tavares has done his part to help his team, sure. Only nine NHLers have scored more goals since he joined the Leafs and, among 340 forwards to log 1,000-plus minutes at 5-on-5 the past two seasons, he's 24th in points per 60. But the Leafs have played four games the past two seasons in which they were facing elimination and/or had a chance to eliminate their opponent, and they've gone 1-3 and been outscored 15-7.

They haven't developed the cold-hearted finisher's mentality as a group. It was clear they couldn't enter 2020-21 with the same lineup. The dismantling began in late August when Dubas shipped out winger Kasperi Kapanen for a 2020 first-round pick and continued in October with the signings of defensemen T.J. Brodie and Zach Bogosian and forwards Wayne Simmonds, Jimmy Vesey and Joe Thornton. "When we have high expectations, and we don't come close to meeting them and we're in the situation we're in, obviously there will be questions," Tavares said. "People may expect large changes to the significant look of the team or whatnot. For me, we have tremendous youth, and it's been talked about a lot. The harder thing to do is stay the course of the group and for us to look internally to each other, asking a lot of tough questions and challenging each other to be better."

Tavares may champion the core group and express his belief it can remain mostly intact and mature into a winner, but he can't forget about the Leaf fan side of him. That side should recognize this team still has holes and needs to transform from an all-finesse structure to a multifaceted one. John Tavares the captain may not admit that. Perhaps John Tavares the fan knows it deep down. A Stanley Cup run depends on it. H

THE DEVIL IN THE DETAILS

NEW JERSEY HAS BEEN MORE SWAMP THAN SANCTUARY SINCE NICO HISCHIER ARRIVED IN THE NHL WITH THE DEVILS. BUT THERE'S HELP ON THE WAY FOR THE MATURE YOUNG STAR WHO'S READY TO ELEVATE HIS GAME – AND LIFT THE TEAM ALONG WITH HIM

NICO HISCHIER HAD BEEN drafted before, but never like this.

Due to the suspension of the 2019-20 campaign during the pandemic, the New Jersey Devils center returned to his home nation of Switzerland, where he was able to complete his mandatory military service. It's a common practice in many European countries and one that even NHLers are compelled to attend. "Obviously this summer was different than it should have been because of COVID," Hischier said. "Usually you would do 18 weeks and stay in one place the whole time. But we had a delay of four weeks, so we did home-schooling. But for 14 weeks I was at the military station. We didn't do much military stuff, but for us it was almost more of a training camp."

So there was no parachuting out of planes or learning to eat a piece of meat in just six chews, but Hischier did get to keep in top shape while also learning some life-reviving techniques along with pro skiers and other hockey players as part of the Swiss military's program for athletes. Back in North America, the Devils are hoping Hischier can help resuscitate a franchise that has seen some barren years of late. "I hate comparables, but there are some good comparables," said GM Tom Fitzgerald. "I got to play with Patrice Bergeron when he was 20 and I was a veteran. To me, the maturity of Nico's game, personality-wise his respect for the game and his attention to detail in the 200-foot game, reminded me of Patrice."

New Jersey took Hischier with the first overall pick in the 2017 draft, with the Devils choosing the Halifax Mooseheads star over Brandon Wheat Kings center Nolan Patrick, who had been the favorite to go No. 1 for most of the year. But Hischier's dynamite performance at the world juniors for Switzerland boosted his stock dramatically, and when then-GM Ray Shero made the announcement at the podium, it wasn't shocking but rather intriguing.

Fitzgerald was New Jersey's assistant GM at the time and remembers how Hischier comported himself as a rookie in 2017-18. "He was very mature," he said. "And most European kids are because of the lifestyle, some of them move away when they're 15 or 16, some of them are living on their own at 16 or 17 and fending for themselves. He's just a very mature young man with a great family. His mom and dad were here for the start of his rookie year, and they are down-to-earth, fantastic people. And that's the thing with Nico, he's a down-to-earth good person who has good, strong values."

On the ice, Hischier demonstrated the same intrinsic qualities. "I talk about the maturity," Fitzgerald said. "I talk about the no-cheat respect for the play away from the puck, 'D' zone, pride in taking and winning faceoffs. And the small things, the strength of his bottom hand, how heavy he was on pucks at a young age. Not a flashy player at all, but extremely thorough."

That first year in New Jersey was quite successful. Hischier centered dynamic left winger Taylor Hall, who went off for 93 points and won the Hart Trophy for his efforts. During the off-season, Hall made a point of crediting Hischier for helping him win MVP honors and mused that if Hischier had been playing in a Canadian market, he would've received more Calder Trophy love (the Islanders' Mathew Barzal won the award).

It has been more of a struggle for Hischier and the Devils since. New Jersey got another first-overall pick in 2019 when they cratered in the standings and landed the right to select another enticing center in Jack Hughes. Like Hischier, Hughes went straight from the draft podium to the NHL, becoming the first U.S. NTDP product to do so.

But last season did not go as planned for New Jersey, as Shero and coach John Hynes were fired, Hall was traded and the team missed the 24-team return to play qualifying field. Losing eight of their first 10 games put the Devils in a hole from which they would never recover. "It wasn't an easy season," Hischier said. "The bad start was tough, and to come back from that, it was hard to get into the rhythm and onto a winning track. But you can take a lot of positives out of it and look forward. In the second half, we played much better and got going. We just need to find the consistency in our game, and we'll try to do that this year."

Having Hischier and Hughes makes the rebuild easier, and their

GM loves the idea of steel sharpening steel. "He and Jack are only going to make each other better in practising against each other," Fitzgerald said. "With the capabilities they both have, they're going to push each other to maximize their individual abilities. Jack looks up to Nico, he respects him. And Nico sees the upside in Jack and wants to help him grow."

Hughes came out of the most prolific NTDP draft class ever, with a record 17 players selected in 2019, including eight in the first round. So he too sees the value in squaring off against Hischier on friendly ice. "When I was at 'The Program,' every day I was practising against Trevor Zegras, Matt Boldy, Alex Turcotte and Cole Caufield," Hughes said. "The mindset would be that to be the best you have to practise against the best. That's the only way you'll get better, to push yourself against great players. It's good to have that competitive aspect with Nico on the team."

What should be most exciting to Devils fans is the potential of both players and the fact there is enough variation of skill sets between the two that the team will have a devastating 1-2 punch down the middle in the coming years. Hughes is the speedy whirlwind who can make plays out of nothing and cause havoc in the offensive zone, while Hischier's more rounded game is already respected by his young mate. "He's a very good two-way player," Hughes said. "Offensively, he's a really smart and cerebral player. He reads the game well. He has really good hands, he can put the puck upstairs in tight, he can skate well and maneuver well in the offensive zone, and he thinks the game at a really high pace."

Hughes didn't produce as many expected he would as a rookie, with 21 points in 61 games, but Hischier was in his corner the whole time. "I try to help when I can," he said. "I know exactly how it is: there are a lot of eyes on you, and it's not always easy, but he's an unbelievable player. I'm sure he's going to come back really good, and that's what we need from him to be a better team. At the end of the day, he can handle that stuff by himself. He's a good person and an unbelievable player."

Hughes isn't even the only young star Hischier has helped in his career. Austrian native Marco Rossi, picked ninth overall by Minnesota in the 2020 draft, first met Hischier at 13 when their youth teams played each other in Switzerland. They exchanged phone numbers, and when Rossi was later selected by the Ottawa 67's in the CHL import draft, he texted Hischier to get the scoop on coach Andre Tourigny, who had guided Hischier with Halifax (Hischier's review was very positive, and Rossi did indeed join the 67's, having tons of success under Tourigny).

While he's still just 21, Hischier has shown enough to have Fitzgerald thinking about the next level for the young man. "Every kid develops and grows at their own pace," Fitzgerald said. "Nico is ascending every year, and the next step in his career is a leadership role. People are going to follow him. He's mature enough, but he can be that guy that people follow, he has those attributes."

For Hischier, it's a matter of improving organically, and he believes he has leadership qualities within him. "I try to be like me," he said. "In the room, I want to be a good guy and a guy that helps the team win every night, not just every few games. Every year I've felt more comfortable in the room talking and being around the guys. It was never a problem being respected on this team, but now I feel comfortable with the older guys. I'm just not shy anymore, and if I feel like saying something, I'm saying it."

"I'M JUST NOT SHY ANYMORE, AND IF I FEEL LIKE SAYING SOMETHING, I'M SAYING IT"

– Nico Hischier

Hischier had an 'A' on his jersey last season, and with erstwhile captain Andy Greene traded to the New York Islanders at the deadline, there's a vacancy in Newark. There is no rush, and the Devils do have vets such as Travis Zajac and P.K. Subban on the roster, but given what Hischier already means to the franchise, it's hard not to see him getting that 'C' sooner than later.

And when he does, military training or not, he'll be ready to lead his troops into battle. H

TEAM REPORTS

IT WAS AT a morning skate in Detroit just before the pandemic hit, and Colorado Avalanche defenseman Ian Cole was speaking frankly about his team's future. In case you haven't noticed, the Avalanche are set up pretty well for that. What with having the best prospect in the NHL two years running: a pair of defensemen named Cale Makar and Bowen Byram.

Cole, who knows a thing or two about winning a championship after capturing a pair of Stanley Cups with the Pittsburgh Penguins, was clearly not on board with any of this talk of the future. "Our goal is to win the Stanley Cup this year, anything else is a failure," Cole said. But he was just getting going. "And that's the attitude you need to be successful every single year. It can't be, 'Oh well, let's just get into the playoffs and we'll see how it goes. No, f--- that. It's, 'No, we want to win a f---in' Stanley Cup. Every single f---in' year. This year, next year, the year after that, 10 years down the road."

The Avs didn't win last year. In reality, they didn't come close. When you don't make it halfway through the playoffs, you're a lot farther from that (expletive) Cup than you'd like to be. A big part of the reason why they faltered in the second round was they ran out of healthy goaltenders, which pretty much allowed the Dallas Stars, a team that would never be confused with the Edmonton Oilers circa 1984, to look like the Edmonton Oilers circa 1984.

MAC'S ATTACK

Newly minted by THN as the NHL's top player, MacKinnon leads an Avs team that's loaded for a run at the Cup.

Colorado should have never lost to Dallas. So there's your requisite gut-punch that every championship team has to inevitably absorb en route to the promised land. And in 2020-21, the Avs will throw their championship window wide open, stick their heads out into the high-altitude air and inhale the endless possibilities that come with being at the top of the mountain. That's a rather euphemistic way of saying, "Ladies and gentlemen, your 2020-21 Stanley Cup champions: the Colorado Avalanche."

MACKINNON: RON CHENOY-USA TODAY SPORTS

The Avalanche are a year older and wiser and there's a pretty good chance Makar won't cough up the puck for an easy gimme in a crucial playoff game ever again. As of this writing in November, we don't have a clear idea of what the 2020-21 season will look like, either in the regular season or the playoffs. But that won't matter. The Avalanche are built to win it any way you'd like.

Could their goaltending be better? Probably. But there is a lot of time between now and the trade deadline. And after a slow start out of the blocks for GM Joe Sakic – remember how cute it was when people were calling for him to be fired a couple of years back? – the man who runs the hockey operations department for the Avs is proving every bit as canny an executive as he was a player. And because of the shrewd moves he's made in recent years, he has the assets to be able to bolster his roster, either in goal or at any other position. And just as importantly, in a flat-cap scenario where teams are struggling to get all their players under contract, the Avs go into the season with about $2 million in cap space.

Not that it needs that much bolstering, by the way. Let's start with Nathan MacKinnon, a player upon whom THN has bestowed the mantle of the best player on the planet. Only one NHL player, Nikita Kucherov of the Tampa Bay Lightning, scored more combined regular-season and playoff points than MacKinnon did last season. Kucherov had 119 points in 93 games, MacKinnon had 118 points in just 84 games. There was simply not a better player through the first two rounds of the playoffs. With the addition of Brandon Saad, the Avs have a top-six that won't be a whole lot of fun to defend. MacKinnon between Gabriel Landeskog and Mikko Rantanen on the first unit, followed by Nazem Kadri between Saad and the resurgent Andre Burakovsky on the second line. Most coaches would rather untangle a ball comprised of 37 sets of earbuds than face that.

And remember what we said about their cap space? Well, it's a real asset if you use it to take advantage of a team that doesn't have any. Because the Avalanche were able to absorb Devon Toews' $4.1-million cap hit, Sakic was able to land the defenseman from the cap-strapped New York Islanders for two second-round picks. So now Toews lands on an already outstanding defense corps that features an enviable mix of veterans and youth and of offensive creativity and defensive acumen. You'd probably like another right-hander there so it's not perfect, but it's about as good as you're going to get in today's NHL.

The Avalanche will have their own salary-cap gymnastics to perform after the season when they'll be faced with what to do with Landeskog and getting Makar under contract long-term. And then there's the Seattle expansion draft to consider. But before then, the biggest decision Sakic will have to make is how big the diamonds will be in his team's championship rings. H

ANAHEIM DUCKS GM Bob Murray expects more from his team after missing the playoffs for the second consecutive year. More from the veteran core. More from the youngsters. More from the coach. More from everyone – including himself.

The 2020-21 season looms as a pivotal one. Murray's rebuilding job is incomplete, but he's tired of losing and wants to see improvement, and he believes the Ducks are better after a series of trades, free-agent signings and draft selections.

Murray has challenged everyone in the organization to make strides. He wasn't pleased by the lack of impact from the Ducks' many youngsters last season and urged coach Dallas Eakins to demand more from the kids after none of them made the expected leap.

Additionally, Murray made a slew of trades before the deadline last season, but it was hard to gauge their impact before play was halted because of the pandemic a few weeks later. There are plenty of new names on the roster – young players who fit today's NHL with speed and skill – but will they pan out?

OFFENSE Adam Henrique had a team-leading 26 goals and 43 points, one point more than Ryan Getzlaf and Rickard Rakell. Jakob Silfverberg was the only other Duck to reach 20 goals, scoring 21. Was it any wonder why Anaheim ranked 29th in the NHL on offense?

An anticipated infusion of scoring from the Ducks' young forwards never materialized, with only Sam Steel hitting the 20-point mark. Troy Terry had just 15 points, Max Jones had 12. Anaheim needs more, much more, from its young guns.

The Ducks didn't get enough output from their defensemen, either. None of them topped 30 points. The signing of free agent Kevin Shattenkirk should bolster the offense from the back end.

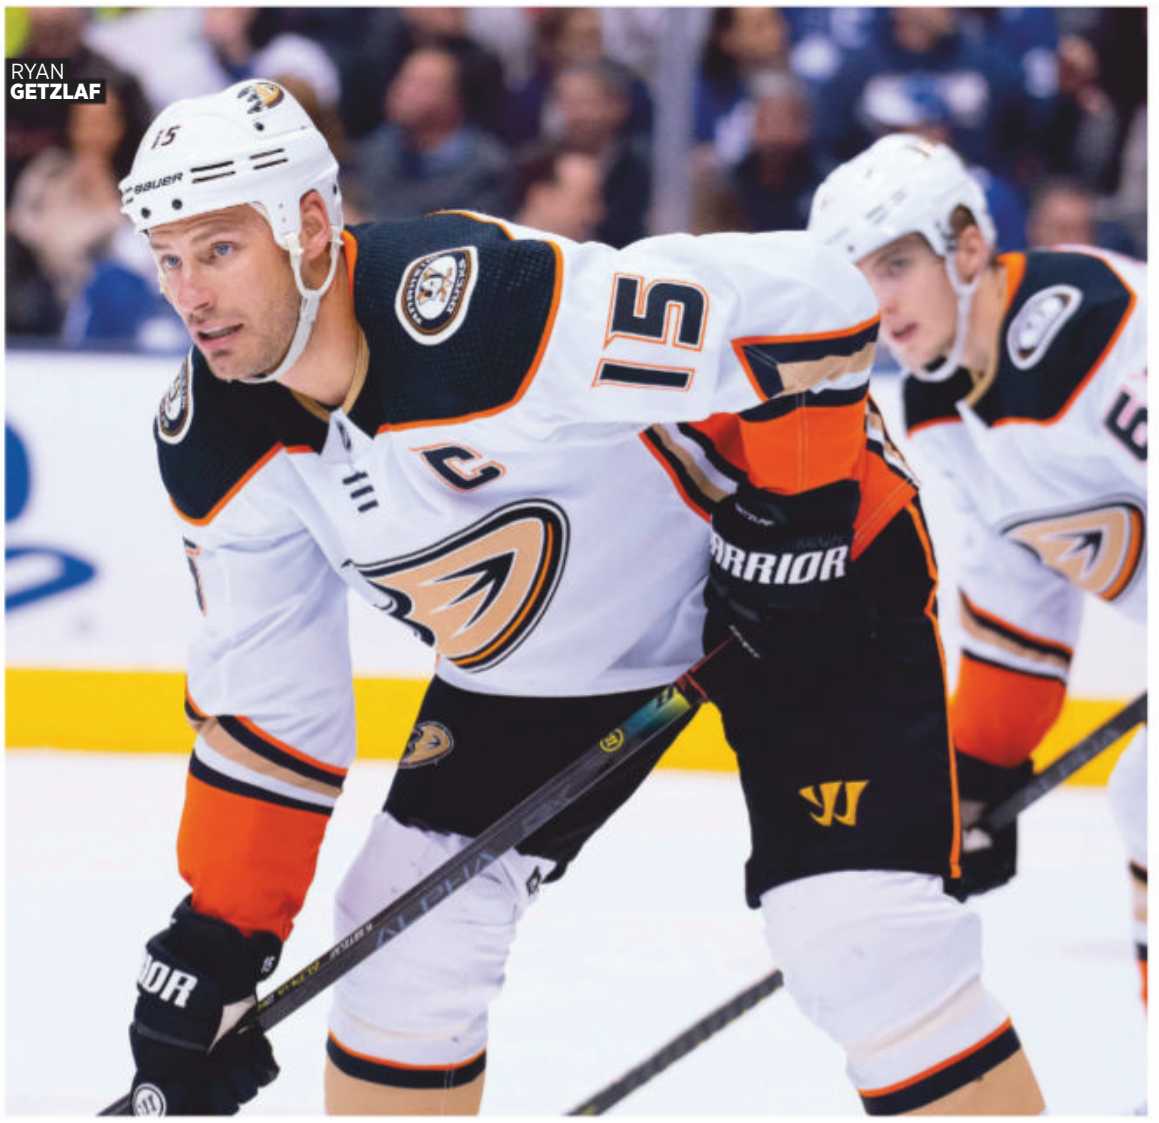
DEFENSE The addition of Shattenkirk affords Eakins more depth and flexibility. One option is to team Shattenkirk with the dynamic Cam Fowler to form an offense-minded pair, with Hampus Lindholm and Josh Manson maintaining their shutdown role. The third pair will be up for grabs.

Fowler was the Ducks' top scorer among defensemen with 29 points, including nine goals. He was the only blueliner with more than four goals, and he and Lindholm were their only defensemen with 20-plus assists.

Manson was sidelined by a sprained knee for 19 games last season. The Ducks went 6-9-4 without him and were unable to stay in playoff contention.

GOALTENDING The strain of poor team play showed in John Gibson's stats. He lost 26 games, had a goals-against average of 3.00 and a save percentage of .904 – all career worsts for the 27-year-old franchise goaltender. Gibson needs to rebound, but he also requires help. Like all teams in what will be a compressed season, the Ducks must find a reliable backup who can carry at least 30 percent of the load.

ROOKIES The Ducks had two first-round picks in each of the past two drafts, including top-10 selections in center Trevor Zegras and D-man Jamie Drysdale. They represent the next wave behind Steel, Jones and Terry, bu it's unclear if any are NHL ready.



RYAN GETZLAF

GETZLAF: NICK TURCHIARO-USA TODAY SPORTS

SPECIAL TEAMS Shattenkirk was signed, in part, to spark a lifeless power play, which dropped from 24th in 2018-19 to 30th last season. All too often, the power play blunted momentum rather than creating it, misfiring on chance after chance. The penalty kill, meanwhile, ranked an ineffective 26th. Murray signed free agent Derek Grant to help a unit that was once a point of pride in the organization. It will be Grant's third stint with the Ducks.

INTANGIBLES Getzlaf has captained the Ducks since 2010-11, longer than anyone in club history. Although he's not the dominant player he once was, having turned 35 during the off-season, he can still grab a game by the scruff of the neck and control it. There is no obvious candidate fill Getzlaf's lost production and leadership role as he heads into the late stages of his career.

X-FACTOR Rakell was said to be upset by his lack of scoring and determined to return to form. The Ducks expect a resurgence after his production dropped from 18 goals in 2018-19 to 15 last season, after scoring 34 and 33 goals the two seasons prior.

THE BRASS So far, entering the third season of an ongoing rebuild, owners Henry and Susan Samueli have been supportive. Their patience could run out, though, and there could be changes if tangible progress isn't made. Returning to the playoffs would be a sign that Murray's plans are working.

FUTURE WATCH

THE DUCKS' REBUILD is coming along swimmingly as the organization continues to fill holes with high-end players. The latest is puck-moving D-man Jamie Drysdale, Anaheim's top draft pick in 2020. With Axel Andersson, Josh Mahura and Jackson LaCombe already in the fold, the Ducks have the pieces to boast a stacked blueline. Jacob Perreault, another first-rounder in 2020, can really score. The idea of him on a line with Trevor Zegras is an enticing one. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. TREVOR ZEGRAS, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Boston University (HE)
Playmaker showed tremendous speed and hockey IQ as a freshman before turning pro.
ACQUIRED 9th overall, 2019 NHL '20-21

2. JAMIE DRYSDALE, D
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Erie (OHL)
Dynamic puck-mover sees the ice well and manages the game exceptionally. Great zone exits.
ACQUIRED 6th overall, 2020 NHL '21-22

3. ISAC LUNDESTROM, C
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM San Diego (AHL)
Solid speed and acceleration. Encouraged to shoot more and become a two-way center.
ACQUIRED 23rd overall, 2018 NHL '20-21

4. JACOB PERREAULT, RW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Sarnia (OHL)
Skilled finisher has soft hands and deceptive shots. Needs to ramp up his compete level.
ACQUIRED 27th overall, 2020 NHL '22-23

5. LUKAS DOSTAL, G
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Ilves (Swe.)
Structurally sound and moves well laterally. Superb performance at the 2019 world juniors.
ACQUIRED 85th overall, 2018 NHL '23-24

6. BRAYDEN TRACEY, LW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Victoria (WHL)

WHICHEVER WAY YOU slice it, the Coyotes made their first post-season since 2012 and advanced past the qualifying round with a five-game series victory over Nashville. Can they build on that success after an off-season of front-office turmoil, including a GM who quit and trade rumors buzzing around the team's best player? New GM Bill Armstrong gets a chance to examine his assets, including fourth-year coach Rick Tocchet.

Beyond parting with some UFAs, the lion's share of last year's roster returns for 2020-21. Bottom-six forward additions Tyler Pitlick, Johan Larsson, John Hayden and Dryden Hunt will be counted upon to add a physical element to a team that wasn't hard enough to play against on many nights in 2019-20.

OFFENSE With the exception of Taylor Hall, the Coyotes return with all their top offensive performers, including Clayton Keller, Nick Schmaltz, Conor Garland and Christian Dvorak.

The biggest difference from last season is a bottom-six with more size and grit. Pitlick, Larsson, Hayden and Hunt will essentially replace departing forwards Vinnie Hinostroza, Carl Soderberg, Brad Richardson and Michael Grabner.

Still, the Coyotes are thin in terms of top-end forward talent. Keller and Schmaltz, both of whom are signed to long-term contracts, will need to significantly step up their production if the team hopes to be competitive. Barrett Hayton, the No. 5 pick in 2018, will likely get an extended look at center. Veterans such as Phil Kessel and Derek Stepan could be attractive to contending teams at the deadline if Arizona falls out of the playoff race.

DEFENSE The Coyotes return the entirety of an effective defense corps, led by captain Oliver Ekman-Larsson, who was the focus of trade rumors in the off-season but appears to be staying put. Veterans Jason Demers, Niklas Hjalmarsson and Alex Goligoski all return on expiring contracts and could also become trade bait.

Jakob Chychrun was one of the Coyotes' most improved players in the first half of last season but saw inconsistencies creep into his game throughout the second half. Jordan Oesterle had a strong post-season and could see an increased role. Ilya Lyubushkin and Aaron Ness provide blueline depth, and prospects Kyle Capobianco, Victor Soderstrom and Jordan Gross could also see some playing time.

GOALTENDING The tandem of Darcy Kuemper and Antti Raanta continues to be the Coyotes' biggest strength. Kuemper likely would've been a candidate for the Vezina Trophy had he not sustained an injury in December. He has two years remaining on a contract paying him far below market value. Raanta, meanwhile, has battled numerous health issues and – despite impressive stats – has not proven to be a reliable backup for the Coyotes. Adin Hill returns as the presumed third-string goalie.

JAKOB CHYCHRUN

CHYCHRUN: ERIC BOLTE-USA TODAY SPORTS

SPECIAL TEAMS The special teams were nothing to write home about. It will be imperative for assistant coach Phil Housley to unlock talent on the power play, namely half-wall players Schmaltz and Kessel. Proficient bumpers such as Dvorak and Garland, too, must be utilized more. The penalty kill will be fresh-faced and get a shake-up due to bottom-six turnover.

INTANGIBLES Tocchet should be happy with Armstrong's additions. Tough forwards with size should help the team to actually play the type of defense-oriented style the coach tries to execute. Over the past few seasons, the Coyotes have appeared too passive and lacked size. Perhaps this new mix can better execute Tocchet's game plan.

ROOKIES The Coyotes will have a significant number of players debuting in the AHL this season, such as Soderstrom, Jan Jenik and Mattias Maccelli. Of those, only Soderstrom is likely to see NHL time, but the Coyotes' defensive depth may prevent that.

X-FACTOR Kuemper, the team's most valuable player by a long shot, will ultimately decide Arizona's fate. If his performance falls off or he gets injured, the Coyotes' position in the standings will likely fall drastically as it did in 2019-20. For the team to surpass expectations, however, one might also look to Hayton's growth.

THE BRASS After a messy public divorce with former GM John Chayka, the Coyotes are entering a transitional phase with Armstrong at the helm. Will there be ripple effects from Chayka's departure and a string of financial missteps, or can Armstrong help the Coyotes rebuild their reputation?

VICTOR SODERSTROM

FUTURE WATCH

LOST PICKS DUE TO a scouting scandal and previous trades put a blight on Arizona at the 2020 draft, and the Coyotes didn't pick until the fourth round. Smooth-skating two-way defender Victor Soderstrom is the gem of the group, even earning a spot in Arizona's bubble during the playoffs. He's the only high-end D-man in the pipeline, which new GM Bill Armstrong is in charge of rebuilding. The Coyotes also lost their 2021 first-rounder as part of their NHL punishment. – RYAN KENNEDY

1. VICTOR SODERSTROM, D

AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Brynas (Swe.)
The two-way D-man battled injury, but his swift skating will land him in North America shortly.

THE BRUINS DIDN'T just talk a good game when they spoke of tending to unfinished business in 2019-20. They made trades to address perceived problem areas and had the NHL's best record when the season paused.

They didn't find their stride inside the Eastern Conference bubble, though. Between No. 1 goalie Tuukka Rask's opt-out because of a family medical situation, quarantine restrictions that kept David Pastrnak and Ondrej Kase out of camp in July, and injuries once play resumed, the B's never clicked in the post-season, and their bid to win a Stanley Cup, missed by one win in 2019, didn't survive Round 2.

With scoring balance still a question and the defensive group in a state of flux, the question entering 2020-21 was whether the window had closed on the Cup chances of core veterans Rask, captain Zdeno Chara, centers Patrice Bergeron and David Krejci, and left winger Brad Marchand.

OFFENSE The line of Marchand (87 points, sixth in the NHL), perennial Selke Trophy candidate Bergeron (31 goals) and Pastrnak, who tied for the league lead with 48 goals, is among the NHL's best, but Marchand (sports hernia) and Pastrnak (hip) could miss the start of the season after surgeries.

That makes it even more important to find scoring wingers for No. 2 and No. 3 centers Krejci and Charlie Coyle. It's hoped that Kase, goal-less in 17 games after he was acquired in February, will establish chemistry given more time with Krejci, while free agent import Craig Smith could slot in with Coyle.

Torey Krug's departure via free agency puts the onus on Charlie McAvoy and Matt Grzelcyk to create offense from the back end.

DEFENSE With Krug gone and uncertainty over whether Chara, 43, would play another season, Grzelcyk was the only incumbent regular on the left side. The right side is more defined, with McAvoy and Brandon Carlo in the top two slots.

John Moore, and less experienced defenders like Jeremy Lauzon and Connor Clifton must assume larger roles for the Bruins to approach last season's league-best goals against.

Much falls to forwards in coach Bruce Cassidy's system, and the B's are in good shape there: Bergeron's line is the best two-way trio in the league, while the Sean Kuraly and Chris Wagner fourth-line combination is often matched against top lines.

GOALTENDING Rask, a Vezina Trophy finalist, and Jaroslav Halak won the Jennings Trophy for fewest goals allowed and ranked fourth a year earlier. Their division of labor the past two years has worked perfectly. Management and teammates threw support behind Rask's departure from the playoffs in Round 1, but at 33 and entering the last year of his contract (ditto for Halak, 35), there's uncertainty about the position's long-term future.

SPECIAL TEAMS Krug's departure creates a massive hole on a power play that has ranked top four in the past three seasons. He led defensemen in power play points (28) and assists last year. Krejci may join Marchand, Bergeron and Pastrnak (league-high 20 power-play goals) on the top unit, but a quarterback must be found. A replacement may also be needed for Chara, who led the league's third-ranked penalty killers in shorthanded ice time. There's less concern up front, where the Bruins boast Marchand-Bergeron and Kuraly-Wagner tandems, with Coyle now playing a more active role.

INTANGIBLES Bergeron, 35, Krejci, 34, and Marchand, 32, remain, but the leadership group has lost Krug, and that core thins more if Chara, captain since 2006, doesn't return. A younger group must begin to take ownership. Coyle's six-year extension indicates he'll be counted on, as will McAvoy (22) and Grzelcyk (26).

ROOKIES First-round draftees Jakub Zboril (2015) and Urho Vaakanainen (2017) will never have better chances to win blueline jobs. It will be hard for Jack Studnicka to find a spot at center, but a strong first pro season and solid playoff cameos have him knocking at the door as a winger.

PASTRNAK: DAN HAMILTON-USA TODAY SPORTS

X-FACTOR Years of a Chara-McAvoy, Krug-Carlo top four on the blueline are over. Grzelcyk appears ready for more minutes and responsibility, but how the B's work around the departure of Krug and, at best, a reduced role for Chara will determine if they remain Cup contenders.

THE BRASS Losing Krug amid a quiet off-season won GM Don Sweeney few fans. A positive return on last year's deals for Kase (for a package that included a first-round pick) and big winger Nick Ritchie would help.

FUTURE WATCH

AH, THE PERILS OF going for it. The Bruins have been all-in for a Cup in recent years and the pipeline has suffered. Yes, the B's have heart-and-soul center Jack Studnicka and promising D-man Urho Vaakanainen, but sure things are in short supply. Many of Boston's prospects are NCAA kids, from Johnny Beecher to Jeremy Swayman, who just turned pro. All four 2020 picks are college-bound. Mason Lohrei and Trevor Kuntar were passed over in previous drafts. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. JACK STUDNICKA, C
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Providence (AHL)
Talented center who can play the wing, kill penalties and put up points. Next step: bulk up.
ACQUIRED 53rd overall, 2017 NHL '20-21

2. URHO VAAKANAINEN, D
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Providence (AHL)
Dependable top-pair defensive presence. Focused on offensive growth and staying healthy.
ACQUIRED 18th overall, 2017 NHL '20-21

3. JOHNNY BEECHER, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Michigan (Big Ten)
Intimidating physical presence with impressive speed. Solid in all three zones as a sophomore.

4. MASON LOHREI, D
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Green Bay (USHL)
Puck-carrying D-man has mature frame and decent shot. Bound for Ohio State in 2021.
ACQUIRED 58th overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

5. TRENT FREDERIC, C
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Providence (AHL)
A brute force with great defensive awareness and a growing offensive toolbox. Led the AHL in PIM.
ACQUIRED 29th overall, 2016 NHL '21-22

6. JEREMY SWAYMAN, G
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Maine (HE)
Workhorse led NCAA in saves with second-best SP as a junior. Hobey Baker finalist.

7. JAKUB ZBORIL, D
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Providence (AHL)
A smooth skater who's positionally sound. Well-rounded game with few weaknesses.

8. CURTIS HALL, C
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Yale (ECAC)
Hard-skating power forward who dominates the net-front. Tripled his goal total as a sophomore.
ACQUIRED 119th overall, 2018 NHL '22-23

9. ZACH SENYSHYN, RW
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Providence (AHL)
Creative with good vision and underrated edge. Successful call-up shows he may be NHL-ready.

10. DAN VLADAR, G
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Providence (AHL)
The 6-foot-5 giant led the AHL in GAA and SP. First B's goalie to make NHL debut in playoffs.
ACQUIRED 75th overall, 2015 NHL '21-22

BY FIRING GM Jason Botterill and 21 members of his staff in mid-June, Sabres owners Terry and Kim Pegula lowered expectations for a team in the midst of an embarrassing nine-year playoff drought.

The Pegulas replaced Botterill with Kevyn Adams, a neophyte who earned their trust working in a variety of roles, most recently as senior vice-president of business administration.

Sure, Adams, who played 10 NHL seasons, was widely respected around the league, but he had never worked in a hockey operations department before his sudden promotion. The Pegulas left him with no assistants and a skeleton staff. The sudden shift in philosophy seemed to cement the Sabres' reputation as a dysfunctional franchise.

But Adams has quickly silenced his doubters. He acquired Eric Staal for Marcus Johansson, a move that upgraded the team's skill level and saved money. Then in free agency, Buffalo stunned the hockey world by signing coveted winger Taylor Hall to a one-year, $8-million contract. Suddenly, there's a buzz around the Sabres. After narrowly missing the qualifying round, they look like a legitimate playoff contender.

OFFENSE The presence of Hall, the 2017-18 Hart Trophy winner, at left wing beside Jack Eichel could transform the Sabres into a lethal offensive team. Eichel's breakout 36-goal, 78-point campaign generated MVP talk last season.

The Sabres have produced little secondary scoring for years, but with Hall and Staal, they could ice two strong scoring lines. Victor Olofsson, who scored 20 goals as a rookie last season, can move to Eichel's right side or beside Staal. Rookie Dylan Cozens or Jeff Skinner could also play with Staal. If coach Ralph Krueger shifts Olofsson to right wing with Eichel, Sam Reinhart can move to the second line.

The Sabres' defense can also generate offense. Rasmus Dahlin has produced at least 40 points in each of his first two NHL seasons, while Rasmus Ristolainen has quietly averaged 41 points over the past five seasons.

DEFENSE Perhaps no one benefited more from Krueger's arrival last year than Ristolainen, who showcased a sturdier style under his fifth NHL coach. Krueger helped Ristolainen develop a new mindset and rely on his instincts. Ristolainen led the team in ice time again but averaged two fewer minutes. He was no longer run ragged trying to defend the opposition's best as Krueger put him in better situations.

GOALTENDING Linus Ullmark looked sharp in his first notable run as a starter, compiling a .914 save percentage over a 25-game stretch. Still, he's unproven, having never been a No. 1 goalie for a full campaign. Carter Hutton, a backup before joining the Sabres in 2018, could steal back the starting job. Hutton experienced a bizarre season, going 102 days between wins. He later said a vision problem he has since corrected contributed to his slump.

ROOKIES The team expects Cozens, the No. 7 overall pick in 2019, to compete for a roster spot. If he makes the team, he'll likely be eased in on the wing. Cozens scored 38 goals and 85 points in 51 games for WHL Lethbridge last season. Top goalie prospect Ukko-Pekka Luukkonen might get an opportunity. He's expected to begin his second pro season in the AHL.

RASMUS DAHLIN

DAHLIN: SERGEI BELSKI-USA TODAY SPORTS

SPECIAL TEAMS Eight power-play goals in the first four games weren't a harbinger for the season. Buffalo endured numerous dry spells on the man advantage. When Eichel scored a power-play goal March 9, it ended a seven-game drought. Dahlin, Eichel, Hall and Olofsson, a one-timer threat from the circle, give them dynamic pieces. The 30th-ranked penalty kill consistently cost them wins. Adams signed winger Tobias Rieder to help.

INTANGIBLES Krueger's affable personality and strong communication skills – he has spoken at the World Economic Forum – helped him earn the trust of his players. Hall even cited Krueger as a reason for signing. In the past, the Sabres often seemed to tune out their coaches.

X-FACTOR In signing a one-year deal, Hall bet on himself. After a season of 16 goals and 52 points between New Jersey and Arizona, he must rebound if he expects to earn a lucrative long-term contract. Familiarity with Krueger, who coached him during his breakout season with the Oilers, will help.

THE BRASS Krueger clearly has greater influence under Adams than he did with Botterill. A rookie GM working with a small staff needs advice and a sounding board. Three of the first five free agents the Sabres signed had connections to Krueger.

FUTURE WATCH

CONSIDERING NEW DIRECTOR OF amateur scouting Jeremiah Crowe had a staff half the size of a typical scouting department, the Sabres did well in the 2020 draft. The team got a great scorer in Jack Quinn and a high-end forward with J.J. Peterka. On the down side, Buffalo only had five selections, so the pressure is on previous picks Dylan Cozens, Ukko-Pekka Luukkonen and Ryan Johnson. Cozens is close to being ready and will get mentorship from Eric Staal. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. DYLAN COZENS, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Lethbridge (WHL)
Yukon's highest-drafted player was a star at the WJC. Big, fast pivot with immense potential.
ACQUIRED 7th overall, 2019 NHL '20-21

2. UKKO-PEKKA LUUKKONEN, G
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Cincinnati (ECHL)
Former OHL goalie of the year and Sudbury's MVP was an ECHL all-star as a rookie.

3. JACK QUINN, RW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Ottawa (OHL)
Pure goal-scorer often in right place at right time. Plays 200-foot game but skating needs work.
ACQUIRED 8th overall, 2018 NHL '21-22

4. RYAN JOHNSON, D
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Minnesota (Big Ten)
Speedy with solid puckhandling abilities. Former NHLer Craig's son has flash but needs finish.
ACQUIRED 31st overall, 2019 NHL '22-23

5. MATTIAS SAMUELSSON, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Western Mich. (NCHC)
Hulking sophomore D-man captained U.S. at the WJC. Improved skating is next on the list.
ACQUIRED 32nd overall, 2018 NHL '22-23

6. J.J. PETERKA, RW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Munich (Ger.)
Assertive in puck retrieval and opportunistic in the attacking zone. Versatility is his calling card.
ACQUIRED 34th overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

7. RASMUS ASPLUND, C
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Rochester (AHL)
Shifty playmaker struggled to produce with the Sabres but had a defensive impact in a depth role.
ACQUIRED 33rd overall, 2016 NHL '20-21

8. ARTTU RUOTSALAINEN, C
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Ilves (Fin.)
Undersized producer and faceoff artist. Led Liiga forwards in ice time and draws in 2018-19.
ACQUIRED Free agent, May 2019 NHL '21-22

9. JACOB BRYSON, D
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Rochester (AHL)
What he lacks in size, he makes up for with skill and speed. A smart, nimble quarterback.

10. MARCUS DAVIDSSON, C
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Vaxjo (Swe.)
Speedy two-way sparkplug needs to rediscover his offensive touch after regressing with Vaxjo.

BY KRISTEN ANDERSON

IT HAS BEEN SEVEN seasons since the current core group of Flames was established, dating back to 2013-14 when Mark Giordano assumed the captaincy and Sean Monahan made his debut. And what have they accomplished? Only one series victory in four playoff appearances.

Calgary beat Winnipeg in the qualifying round but lost in Round 1 to Dallas, ending another disappointing season. Many expected GM Brad Treliving to trade one or more of his longstanding core players, but it didn't happen. The Flames were inevitably facing change in the off-season, anyway, with 10 players hitting free agency. Among them was T.J. Brodie, a blueline fixture for eight seasons.

Treliving went shopping when free-agency season opened, landing top goaltending prize Jacob Markstrom as well as the tenacious but oft-injured Chris Tanev to replace Brodie. The GM padded the roster with a handful of low-risk depth additions. It's unclear if the Flames are better, but they're definitely different.

OFFENSE Matthew Tkachuk led the way with 61 points (23 goals), while Elias Lindholm scored a team-leading 29 goals – a career high. Johnny Gaudreau, coming off a 99-point season, dropped to 58 in 70 games. Luckily, young players such as Andrew Mangiapane and Dillon Dube emerged. The Flames still need a top-six winger to balance the lineup – the top line of Monahan, Gaudreau and Lindholm was nearly invisible during 5-on-5 play in the playoffs.

Were Sam Bennett's five goals and eight points in 10 playoff games an indication that he's poised to break out? In five seasons, the 2014 No. 4 overall pick has yet to top 18 goals or 36 points. As for the depth signings, Josh Leivo is one to watch. He scored at a 40-point pace when healthy and could land in the top-nine.

DEFENSE After Brodie opted to sign with Toronto, Treliving inked workhorse Tanev from rival Vancouver. The right-shot shutdown defender could pair with 2019 Norris Trophy winner Giordano. He could also work alongside Noah Hanifin, which would allow up-and-coming Rasmus Andersson to play with Giordano. Juuso Valimaki, Calgary's 2017 first-rounder, sustained a knee injury that wiped out his entire 2019-20. It's encouraging for the Flames that Valimaki played in Finland's Liiga to begin 2020-21, piling up points before rejoining Calgary.

Then there's the inexperienced Oliver Kylington, Alexander Yelesin and free-agent signing and top NCAA prospect Connor Mackey. One of them could crack the bottom pair. Another depth option is Nikita Nesterov, a 27-year-old lefty who plays the right side. He signed this off-season after three years back in the KHL.

GOALTENDING In signing Markstrom – by far the top UFA goalie – to a six-year, $36-million deal, Treliving may have solved an issue that has plagued the club since Miikka Kiprusoff left in 2013. Last season, David Rittich auditioned as the No. 1, but he underperformed and lost the net to Cam Talbot in the playoffs. Talbot departed as a free agent, leaving Rittich as the clear backup.

SPECIAL TEAMS Erik Gustafsson's exit opens the QB spot on the power play's four-forward first unit. Is Andersson a fit? Valimaki could crack the second unit. As for the PK, Tanev will take some of the pressure off Giordano. Tobias Rieder, who signed in Buffalo, leaves an opening up front. Both special teams clicked in the playoffs, with Bennett stepping up in Tkachuk's absence.

INTANGIBLES The 2019-20 season presented a pile of challenges, topped by the departure of coach Bill Peters, who resigned after allegations of racism and physical abuse surfaced against him from former players. Still, the Flames are a close-knit group with chemistry. Giordano is a steadfast leader, and Tkachuk is growing in that area.

ROOKIES Forward prospects Glenn Gawdin, Matthew Phillips, Adam Ruzicka and Jakob Pelletier are on the cusp. Look for Phillips and Gawdin to push for roster spots, as well as highly touted blueliner Mackey, whom the Flames believe is close.

GAUDREAU: DAN HAMILTON-USA TODAY SPORTS

X-FACTOR The core faces tremendous pressure after bowing out in the first round. With no new star skaters to take the pressure off the big names, Gaudreau and Monahan are especially under the gun.

THE BRASS One of the first orders of business in the off-season was to remove the interim tag from Geoff Ward, who coached the team to a 24-15-3 record after the Peters controversy. Ward brings much-needed stability – there have been four head coaches during Treliving's tenure – and seems to have pushed the right buttons. H

JUUSO VALIMAKI

FUTURE WATCH

CALGARY STOCKED UP WITH eight picks in 2020, which was necessary because the team had fewer than the standard seven selections in each of the previous three drafts. Connor Zary is a hardworking scorer, while the Flames found value in later rounds with tenacious undersized winger Ryan Francis and offensive defenseman Jeremie Poirier. Fortifying the pipeline is key, as Calgary is behind the curve. Injuries to top defense prospect Juuso Valimaki can explain away part of that. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. JUUSO VALIMAKI, D
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Stockton (AHL)
Battled multiple lower-body injuries. Two-way D-man with size, skating ability and great shot.
ACQUIRED 16th overall, 2017 NHL '20-21

2. CONNOR ZARY, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Kamloops (WHL)
High hockey IQ and creative 200-foot player looking to add size and refine skating.

3. JAKOB PELLETIER, LW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Moncton (QMJHL)
His skill, intelligence and competitive nature make up for lack of size and strength.
ACQUIRED 26th overall, 2019 NHL '21-22

4. CONNOR MACKEY, D
AGE 24 2019-20 TEAM Michigan State (WCHA)
Mature, playmaking blueliner with size has keen hockey sense and oozes poise.
ACQUIRED Free agent, March 2020 NHL '20-21

5. DUSTIN WOLF, G
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Everett (WHL)
Rail-thin goalie continued his outstanding play with gaudy SP. Got his first taste of WJC action.
ACQUIRED 214th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

6. YAN KUZNETSOV, D
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Connecticut (HE)
Smart, defense-first blueliner. Efficient with puck but known for heavy, physical style.
ACQUIRED 50th overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

7. EMILIO PETTERSEN, LW
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Denver (NCHC)
Speed and skill on display in his sophomore season. Needs to develop physically.
ACQUIRED 167th overall, 2018 NHL '22-23

8. GLENN GAWDIN, C
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Stockton (AHL)
Improved productivity in his second pro year. Consistency is promising, solid 200-foot game.
ACQUIRED Free agent, Nov. 2017 NHL '20-21

9. DMITRY ZAVGORODNIY, LW
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Rimouski (QMJHL)
Creative, shifty forward who is small but strong with the puck. Elite dangles.
ACQUIRED 198th overall, 2018 NHL '22-23

10. JEREMIE POIRIER, D
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Saint John (QMJHL)
Puck-rushing D-man with skill. Accurate passer and booming shot but very weak defensively.
ACQUIRED 72nd overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

THE HURRICANES WEREN'T happy about having to play their way into the playoffs after finishing sixth in the Eastern Conference, but it was still the first time they qualified for the post-season in consecutive seasons since 2001 and '02. There haven't been a ton of changes to the team that easily disposed of the Rangers before a five-game loss to Boston, in the belief that the team's young core will only continue to get better under the guidance of coach Rod Brind'Amour.

The Hurricanes will have to find a way to replace the exemplary leadership of the retired Justin Williams, but they're sticking with the same goalie tandem and largely the same roster, with the notable addition of free-agent winger Jesper Fast. Carolina believes its window to contend for a Stanley Cup is just starting to open.

OFFENSE The combination of pure goal-scorer Andrei Svechnikov and two-way playmaker Sebastian Aho gives the Hurricanes elite firepower up front, and both only figure to improve. Teuvo Teravainen's hands and smarts make him an essential complement to that duo.

Vincent Trocheck was a late arrival to anchor the second line, while Jordan Staal is starting to get up there in miles but remains an effective defensive center. Fast is a perfect fit for the Canes' style, as a hard-charging play driver. The Hurricanes are waiting for the skilled 21-year-old Martin Necas to blossom, and they need more from wingers Nino Niederreiter, Ryan Dzingel, Brock McGinn and Warren Foegele. Overall, it's a talented group that excels at possessing the puck but isn't overly physical. Not to be overlooked: the dangerous Dougie Hamilton on the blueline.

DEFENSE The NHL has awakened to the quality of Carolina's defense, starting with the irrepressibly smooth Jaccob Slavin, who makes the difficult look easy. Hamilton has his weaknesses but remains a high-level creator and producer. Brett Pesce's absence was sorely noted in the Boston series; he doesn't get the attention that Slavin and Hamilton do but his two-way game is just as essential. Brady Skjei's trade-deadline arrival rounds out a versatile and modern top-four.

Trevor van Riemsdyk and Sami Vatanen are gone, opening the door for Haydn Fleury, who took a major step forward in the playoffs. Jake Gardiner had a tough first season with the Hurricanes and will be looking to rebound. Free-agent signing Joakim Ryan adds depth.

GOALTENDING After exploring changes during the off-season, the Canes decided to stick with Petr Mrazek and James Reimer in net. Mrazek has the higher upside but is more erratic; Reimer is more consistent but doesn't steal as many games as Mrazek can at his best. Their partnership is a meritocracy where the hot hand plays and there's no real No. 1. Analytically speaking, they're slightly above average, and Carolina will once again hope one gets hot in the playoffs.

SPECIAL TEAMS The power play became a strength for the first time in years as Svechnikov, in particular, had an immediate impact after being used sparingly as a rookie. Teravainen and Hamilton were the primary playmakers on a power play that finished a respectable eighth. The Hurricanes have had one of the league's best penalty kills in both seasons under Brind'Amour, not surprising given his proficiency shorthanded as a player. It's an aggressive scheme that gives skilled penalty-killers – such as Aho and Teravainen – the freedom to take chances.

INTANGIBLES Even without the official captaincy, Williams' January arrival calmed the dressing room. He was often on the same wavelength as Brind'Amour and had an innate sense of what to say and when to say it. Staal, while universally respected, is more of a lead-by-example captain. The Canes need younger players such as Aho and Svechnikov to develop as vocal leaders, but that can't be rushed.

ROOKIES Morgan Geekie appeared in only two regular-season games but had a massive impact centering the fourth line in the playoffs. He'll be expected to hold down that position from Day 1. Offense-minded defensemen Jake Bean and Joey Keane will likely see spot action.

X-FACTOR The Canes continue to check boxes on their return to relevance: make the playoffs, win a series, make it two years in a row. Now it's time to emerge as legitimate Cup contenders. They need breakthroughs from young talent and a mentality where they are the hunters and not the hunted.

THE BRASS Owner Tom Dundon is heavily involved in all aspects of the organization. Beyond GM Don Waddell, Brind'Amour and analytics expert Eric Tulsky have the strongest voices. It's a new-school approach that views every decision through a quantitative lens. H

GOOD LUCK KEEPING UP with the Canes in a few years if their 2020 draft pans out. Carolina went long on skill, starting in the first round with the Brayden Point-esque Seth Jarvis. Undersized producers such as Zion Nybeck and Alexander Pashin were procured with late-round picks, and this crop of talent will be added to an already impressive pipeline. The big question is when will the Hurricanes leave an opening for top prospect Jake Bean to finally grab an NHL job. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. JAKE BEAN, D
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Charlotte (AHL)
Lead AHL defensemen in points as a sophomore. Power-play specialist must improve his defense.
ACQUIRED 13th overall, 2016 NHL '20-21

2. SETH JARVIS, RW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Portland (WHL)
Undersized winger is skilled and cagey. Always plays with intensity and pace.

3. RYAN SUZUKI, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Saginaw (OHL)
Serious eye injury didn't diminish his offensive prowess. A pass-first center with sweet set-ups.
ACQUIRED 28th overall, 2019 NHL '22-23

4. DOMINIK BOKK, RW
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Rogle (Swe.)
Centerpiece of Justin Faulk trade erupted for eight points at WJC. Playmaker with quick hands.
ACQUIRED From StL, Sept. 2019 NHL '21-22

5. MORGAN GEEKIE, C
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Charlotte (AHL)
Two-way center does a lot of little things well. Solid leader had impressive second pro season.

6. JOEY KEANE, D
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Charlotte (AHL)
Fleet-footed defender and power-play specialist needs to hone his defense. Impressed after trade.
ACQUIRED From NYR, Feb. 2020 NHL '22-23

7. NOEL GUNLER, RW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Lulea (Swe.)
Splendid scorer also skates well and has an imposing shot. Overcoming immaturity traits.
ACQUIRED 41st overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

8. PYOTR KOCHETKOV, G
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Podolsk (KHL)
Top goalie at '19 WJC has battled injuries. Good when healthy. Great size, reflexes and mobility.
ACQUIRED 36th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

9. JAMIESON REES, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Sarnia (OHL)
Two-way center improved on offense. Aggressive attitude and imposing physicality belies his size.
ACQUIRED 44th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

10. VASILI PONOMAREV, C
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Shawinigan (QMJHL)
Skilled pivot plays a good two-way game, but some scouts question his intensity level.
ACQUIRED 53rd overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

CHICAGO BLACKHAWKS

PATRICK KANE

BY MATT CARLSON

IT'S OFFICIAL NOW – the Chicago Blackhawks are rebuilding. But GM Stan Bowman says he won't tear down his roster below its foundation. Signature stars with long-term, no-movement contracts – Patrick Kane, Jonathan Toews and Duncan Keith – figure to stay. Meanwhile, Bowman hopes to develop depth and a new persona for his club using prospects from within the organization, and maybe a few deals.

The process started with a bang in October. Bowman didn't re-sign free agent Corey Crawford, his No. 1 goalie of the past 10 years. He dealt winger Brandon Saad to Colorado for defensemen Nikita Zadorov and Anton Lindholm.

Maybe another star or two will be born in Chicago? Center Kirby Dach made strides once the Blackhawks resumed play after the COVID-19 shutdown. More kids could be ready.

OFFENSE Chicago's marquee stars remain bright, but the young support cast needs to play a bigger role.

Kane and Toews, both 32, showed no signs of slowing last season. Kane continued to dazzle with the puck and finished with a team-leading 84 points. Toews was reliable and found an extra gear in July and August.

Rookie Dominik Kubalik, 25, blossomed as a sniper, finished with 30 goals and netted a $7.4 million, two-year contract. Look for a bounce-back by 23-year-old Alex DeBrincat, whose luck around the net vanished, shrinking his goal total to 18 after he connected 41 times in 2018-19.

Then it's a matter of how much other youngsters improve. All eyes are on the 6-foot-4, 19-year-old Dach, who could emerge as the No. 2 center.

The Blackhawks need Dylan Strome and Alex Nylander to be consistent and hope some of John Quenneville, MacKenzie Entwistle, Matthew Highmore, Brandon Hagel and Philipp Kurashev take a step forward.

DEFENSE Chicago has ample bodies and potential amongst the blueliners, but team defense must tighten. The Blackhawks ranked 16th last season, up from 30th in 2018-19. But Crawford was a big reason for that, as Chicago allowed the most shots.

Keith, 37, remains an above-average quarterback on 'D'. A big question: how will 35-year-old Brent Seabrook come back from surgeries on both hips and his right shoulder? He's in the fifth season of an eight-year, $55-million contract.

The 6-foot-6, 235-pound Zadorov will add a physical and stay-at-home presence. The left-handed shooter might be paired with right-shot youngsters, Adam Boqvist and rookie Ian Mitchell. Connor Murphy and Calvin de Haan can eat minutes.

GOALTENDING Hold your breath. Crawford was the Hawks' best player in July and August after he got over COVID-19. But Bowman didn't want to give Crawford a contract longer than one year. Crawford, who backstopped the 2013 and 2015 Cup teams, was devastated and signed with New Jersey. Bowman expects at least one of Collin Delia, Kevin Lankinen and Malcom Subban – all 20-somethings – to step up. The three have 84 games of combined NHL experience.

SPECIAL TEAMS The power play ranked 28th, slipping from 15th the year before. Chicago's extra-man attack, which picked up when coach Jeremy Colliton added Kubalik to the unit late in the season, has the personnel to dominate. The penalty killing improved enormously in 2019-20, climbing to ninth after finishing worst in the league the year before.

INTANGIBLES Toews, Kane and Keith must continue to lead, produce and play lots of minutes. Another key: how much will Chicago progress as a unit, especially in overall defensive play and limiting chances, in Colliton's second full season?

ROOKIES There's a wide-open job fair for rookies. The candidates: Mitchell, Lucas Carlsson and Nicolas Beaudin on defense. Bowman thought Mitchell was ready last year before he returned to Denver for his junior season. Lankinen, who has starred in Finland, could see his first NHL action. Forwards Entwistle, Hagel and Kurashev – the prospect with the most skill – will get long looks.

X-FACTOR Just how much will the kids come along? Then there's goaltending. Delia was a showman in the AHL and now needs to show what he can do in the NHL.

THE BRASS Longtime president John McDonough, who oversaw the Blackhawks' modernization as a business, was fired in April and replaced on an interim basis by Danny Wirtz, son of owner Rocky Wirtz. McDonough was hired in 2007 by Rocky Wirtz after Wirtz's father, Bill, died. After McDonough departed, a lot of people thought Bowman would be the next to go.

FUTURE WATCH

JONATHAN TOEWS MAY NOT like it, but the Hawks are rebuilding on the fly, and they have the assets to make it a rather short process. The rapid ascent of Kirby Dach helps, while a cadre of defensemen led by Adam Boqvist, Nic Beaudin and Ian Mitchell are right behind him. Yes, there will be a transition from old guard to new, but Chicago won't be down long the way some other franchises have. Goaltending is one soft spot, but grabbing NTDP standout Drew Commesso in 2020 helps. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. LUKAS REICHEL, LW

AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Berlin (Ger.)
German with deep hockey bloodlines plays smart, positional game. Excels in high-pace tempo.
ACQUIRED 17th overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

2. IAN MITCHELL, D

AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Denver (NCHC)
Team captain and second-leading scorer as a junior before turning pro. Strong leadership skills.

3. NICOLAS BEAUDIN, D

AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Rockford (AHL)
Gifted playmaker with impressive hands and passing ability. Next step: improve fundamentals.
ACQUIRED 27th overall, 2018 NHL '20-21

4. DREW COMMESSO, G

AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM U.S. NTDP (USHL)
Big and athletic, he tracks the puck well. Rebound control and positioning need improvement.
ACQUIRED 46th overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

5. LUCAS CARLSSON, D

AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Rockford (AHL)
No. 1 D-man in AHL in just his second pro season. Smart, disciplined player who chips in offensively.
ACQUIRED 110th overall, 2016 NHL '21-22

6. JOHN QUENNEVILLE, LW

AGE 24 2019-20 TEAM Rockford (AHL)
Second cousin of former Blackhawks coach Joel Quenneville is a physical scorer with intangibles.
ACQUIRED From NJ, June 2019 NHL '20-21

7. CHAD KRYS, D

AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Rockford (AHL)
A solid defenseman with offensive pedigree. Will improve production in second pro season.

LOSING GAME 7 in the Western Conference semifinal for the second consecutive season was highly disappointing for the Avalanche. But given all the injuries to key players – seven guys, including six regulars, couldn't play in Game 7 – it was rather remarkable Colorado got that far. As for the future, the Avs will be better for it.

Minus goalies Philipp Grubauer and Pavel Francouz, forwards Joonas Donskoi and Matt Calvert and defenseman Erik Johnson, the Avs rallied from a 3-1 series deficit against Dallas to force a seventh game. They also lost left winger Gabriel Landeskog and D-man Conor Timmins to injuries before the deciding game but still managed to take a 4-3 lead late in the third period before the roof caved in. And for the second time in three years, the Avs were eliminated with a third-string goalie acquired at the trade deadline in net. This year, they're back, healthy, hardened, and equipped with two new key players.

OFFENSE Fourth in scoring in 2019-20, the Avs improved with the off-season additions of winger Brandon Saad and defenseman Devon Toews. Saad will slot in on the second line with center Nazem Kadri and Andre Burakovsky. Toews, a lefty who ran the Islanders' power play last season, might skate with right-shot Cale Makar on the first pair.

Colorado's top line will again be stacked with superstar center Nathan MacKinnon between Landeskog and Mikko Rantanen, and the third line has complementary scoring with J.T. Compher, Donskoi and Valeri Nichushkin. Coach Jared Bednar preaches a speedy north-south game, pushing the puck up ice by highly skilled defensemen, and now he has Toews to go along with Makar and Samuel Girard.

DEFENSE The Avs sent Nikita Zadorov to Chicago in the Saad deal, but they got faster by moving the hulking and often-benched shutdown defender. They still have three big D-men in Johnson, Ian Cole and Ryan Graves, the latter of whom led the league in plus-minus while mostly playing with Makar.

If Toews plays with Makar, Colorado will have a strong shutdown pair in Johnson and Cole, who normally work together on the top penalty-killing unit. Putting Girard with Graves presents another offensively capable pairing, and the depth guy could be one of the newcomers, Dennis Gilbert, who came over in the Saad trade, or Kyle Burroughs, acquired from the Islanders.

Two top prospects are waiting their turn in Timmins, 22, and Bowen Byram, 19, THN's No. 1 prospect in Future Watch 2020.

GOALTENDING When it mattered most, Colorado couldn't keep the puck out of its net – Dallas scored at least five goals in four different games in the West semis. Grubauer and Francouz, however, were pretty good when healthy. Grubauer was 5-1 in the playoffs before going down in Game 1 against Dallas. Francouz was believed to have been hurt in Game 1 relief or Game 2, but he tried to play through injuries in Games 3 and 4 before it became obvious he couldn't help the team. Outsiders don't love this tandem, but the Avs do.

SPECIAL TEAMS In the Dallas series, Colorado finished 4-for-32 on the power play and the Stars went 9-for-23. There's no excuse for such ineffectiveness, but missing primary PK guys Johnson, Calvert and Donskoi definitely hurt. On the positive side, they know they have excellent special-teams personnel and believe in what coaches Ray Bennett (power play) and Nolan Pratt (penalty kill) preach.

INTANGIBLES Three straight playoff appearances and back-to-back Game 7 losses builds character and resolve. The Avs have plenty of post-season experience and they're deep with hungry, elite-level players in MacKinnon, Rantanen, Landeskog, Kadri and Makar. Their time is now. They'll likely only have Saad for one season, before extensions to Landeskog and Makar kick in. They have money to spend and they're in their championship window.

ROOKIES Forwards Martin Kaut and Logan O'Connor and defensemen Timmins and Byram could step in when opportunities arise. Kaut, 21, could help in the top six. O'Connor, 24, provided a boost in the playoffs as a depth forward and PK specialist. With the Avs' deep blueline, Timmins and Byram are on the outside looking in.

X-FACTOR MacKinnon set a club record with a 14-game playoff point streak, and he's the best right-shot center in the world. The alternate captain is a leader who defers praise to his teammates. He's poised for another MVP-caliber season.

THE BRASS GM Joe Sakic made two shrewd moves in trading for Saad and Toews after acquiring Kadri and Burakovsky via trades the previous off-season. Sakic has built a juggernaut that is still on the rise.

FUTURE WATCH

EVERYTHING IS COMING UP Avs these days as GM Joe Sakic has managed to build a contender while keeping the pipeline flowing. Heck, Colorado has to make room for star prospect Bowen Byram right now. With Alex Newhook burning up the NCAA and Justus Annunen hitting another level in Finland, the Avs have kids nearly ready in all the important positions. The team was quiet with just five draft picks in 2020, but speedster Jean-Luc Foudy holds intrigue. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. BOWEN BYRAM, D
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Vancouver (WHL)
Elite skater and defensively astute. Gifted playmaking 'D' was No. 1 prospect in Future Watch.
ACQUIRED 4th overall, 2019 NHL '20-21

2. ALEX NEWHOOK, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Boston College (HE)
Natural goal-scorer with unique playmaking ability. Likely to make WJC debut in 2021.
ACQUIRED 16th overall, 2019 NHL '22-23

3. CONOR TIMMINS, D
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Colorado (AHL)
Skilled D-man can play in all situations. Had short NHL stint after 16-month concussion recovery.
ACQUIRED 32nd overall, 2017 NHL '20-21

4. JUSTIN BARRON, D
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Halifax (QMJHL)
No-nonsense rangy blueliner is big and mobile, but he's not overly physical or intimidating.
ACQUIRED 25th overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

5. JUSTUS ANNUNEN, G
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Karpat (Fin.)
Highly athletic and mobile with pro-sized frame. Starred for Finland at the world juniors.
ACQUIRED 64th overall, 2018 NHL '22-23

6. MARTIN KAUT, RW
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Colorado (AHL)
Gritty, budding power forward. Quick hands, active around the net, hard to stop down low.
ACQUIRED 16th overall, 2018 NHL '20-21

7. SHANE BOWERS, C
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Colorado (AHL)
A quick pivot who could've used more time at the NCAA level. High IQ with offensive touch.
ACQUIRED From Ott, Nov. 2017 NHL '22-23

8. DREW HELLESON, D
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Boston College (HE)
Newhook's freshman teammate flashed a cerebral game with solid passing and quick skating.
ACQUIRED 47th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

9. SAMPO RANTA, LW
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Minnesota (Big Ten)
Plays an effective game with great speed and good finishing. Needs work on his hockey sense.

10. JEAN-LUC FOUDY, C
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Windsor (OHL)
Offense generated by his breakaway speed. More playmaker than finisher. Brother of CLB's Liam.
ACQUIRED 75th overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

THE BLUE JACKETS lost a two-time Vezina Trophy-winning goaltender (Sergei Bobrovsky), a No. 1 center (Matt Duchene) and a point-a-game star left winger (Artemi Panarin) to free agency in the summer of 2019, leading most to predict a rough 2019-20.

The optimists called them "also-rans." The realists dubbed them "roadkill." But a funny thing happened on their way to a lottery pick.

The Blue Jackets, thanks mostly to their surprising play in net, were highly competitive, if wildly inconsistent, in 2019-20, qualifying for the playoffs for a fourth straight season. They knocked off Toronto in the qualifying round before bowing out to eventual Stanley Cup-champion Tampa Bay in the first round.

GM Jarmo Kekalainen made moves to change the team's look at forward, because more scoring is a must. Will the Jackets ever get over the hump? Maybe, maybe not. But they aren't going away anytime soon.

OFFENSE Pierre-Luc Dubois is a budding No. 1 center, but the cast behind him has been a disappointing patchwork for the past three seasons. It wasn't easy for Kekalainen to trade Josh Anderson to Montreal, but it brought back second-line center Max Domi, filling a huge need. Domi's arrival signalled the end of Alexander Wennberg (buyout) after three trying seasons.

The signing of longtime Wild captain Mikko Koivu fills the third line, but the biggest impact offensively might be that it allows Boone Jenner to move back to left wing, where he's been more productive. Between budding youngsters (Alexandre Texier, Liam Foudy, Emil Bemstrom) and veterans expecting bounce-back years (Cam Atkinson), there's reason for optimism that the Jackets can do much better than 27th in scoring.

DEFENSE The growing consensus is that Zach Werenski and Seth Jones are the top pair in the league, and their reputations only grew with strong playoff performances. Werenski led all NHL defensemen with 20 goals and Jones continued his two-way excellence that has many predicting future Norris Trophies.

The second pair of Vladislav Gavrikov and David Savard is an old-school, hurts-to-play-against shutdown duo, who play more when the Blue Jackets are protecting a lead. The third pair will have a new look after Ryan Murray and Markus Nutivaara were traded for cap space. It should allow for Dean Kukan and young Andrew Peeke to become NHL regulars for the first time.

GOALTENDING Kekalainen was right. After Bobrovsky left as a free agent, the GM turned the crease over to longtime backup Joonas Korpisalo and Elvis Merzlikins, who finally came to North America after starring in Switzerland. Both Korpisalo and Merzlikins took turns being the go-to guy, but it was Merzlikins' blinding run (12-4-1, .948 save percentage, 1.60 goals-against average) from New Year's Eve to Valentine's Day that thrust Columbus into the post-season.

SPECIAL TEAMS Any power play that starts with Jones or Werenski shouldn't also have this distinction: finishing near the bottom of the league in each of the past three years (25th, 28th, 27th). Two years ago, Martin St-Louis was brought in mid-season as a coach to rescue the power play. Last year, veteran coach Paul MacLean was added during the season. Domi's arrival may help, but divine intervention must be considered at this point. At least the penalty kill remains a strength.

INTANGIBLES Between the easily aggrieved John Tortorella and a proud nucleus of players, led by longtime captain Nick Foligno, the Blue Jackets have become one of the most competitive, driven clubs in the NHL. Will they always be fighting up a weight class against the league powers? Bet against them at your own peril. That's the culture that has been created.

ROOKIES It's unclear where Foudy will fit, but his blazing speed – and the concern it creates for backpedalling defenders – will make him a regular. Peeke, a Notre Dame product, is a third-pair lock after impressing last season before sustaining a broken hand.

X-FACTOR If the Blue Jackets can just stay relatively healthy, they should be markedly better in 2020-21, after leading the NHL in man-games lost. The blows were absorbed high in the lineup: Jones, Atkinson, Oliver Bjorkstrand and others sat out huge chunks of the season due to injury.

THE BRASS Tortorella, hired early in 2015-16, has lasted longer in Columbus than many expected. He is the fourth-longest tenured coach in the NHL, and his impact on the franchise has been undeniably positive. But he's in the final year of his contract, and an amicable parting is not out of the question.

LIAM FOUDY

FUTURE WATCH

HAVOC, THY NAME IS Jarmo Kekalainen. The GM and his head scout, Ville Siren, blew minds at the draft when they picked obscure Russian Yegor Chinakhov in the first round, but the Columbus brain trust was confident in their selection. Chinakhov got off to a hot start in the KHL this year. The Jackets made only eight total picks in the past two drafts, including just three in 2019. That may come back to bite them, but for now the team has Liam Foudy and Alexandre Texier ready. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. LIAM FOUDY, C
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM London (OHL)
Elite skater with tons of skill and tenacity. Made an immediate impact in Jackets' playoff lineup.
ACQUIRED 18th overall, 2018 NHL '20-21

2. YEGOR CHINAKHOV, RW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Omskie Jr. (Rus.)
First-round stunner is a solid, hardworking, two-way winger with good passing ability.
ACQUIRED 21st overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

3. KIRILL MARCHENKO, RW
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM St. Petersburg (KHL)
Future force was dominant at the WJC. Rare combination of size and skill. Well worth the wait.
ACQUIRED 49th overall, 2018 NHL '22-23

4. DANIIL TARASOV, G
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Assat (Fin.)
With the tools and frame to be a star, he has the highest ceiling in a system full of talented goalies.
ACQUIRED 86th overall, 2017 NHL '23-24

5. ANDREW PEEKE, D
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Cleveland (AHL)
Savvy initiator on offense with great vision. Needs to pack on pounds and develop skating.
ACQUIRED 34th overall, 2016 NHL '20-21

6. DMITRI VORONKOV, C
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Kazan (KHL)
Physical forward whose skill and size were on display at WJC. Top priority: improved skating.
ACQUIRED 114th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

7. GABRIEL CARLSSON, D
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Cleveland (AHL)
Prototypical shutdown 'D' with exceptional reach. Limited offensive upside. Must get stronger.
ACQUIRED 29th overall, 2015 NHL '21-22

8. MATISS KIVLENIEKS, G
AGE 24 2019-20 TEAM Cleveland (AHL)
Rebounded from a rough start to pro career with solid numbers. Projects as a big-league backup.

9. TIM BERNI, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Zurich (Sui.)
Great mobility and power-play potential. Promising progress at both ends. Long-term investment.
ACQUIRED 159th overall, 2018 NHL '23-24

10. KEVIN STENLUND, C
AGE 24 2019-20 TEAM Cleveland (AHL)
Physical center and two-way scorer with a high hockey IQ. Must continue to improve his skating.
ACQUIRED 58th overall, 2015 NHL '20-21

BY MAKING IT all the way to the Stanley Cup final, the Dallas Stars overachieved beyond almost everyone's expectations. Round after round, they were predicted to fall but did not.

GM Jim Nill feels he has caught lightning in a bottle and made minimal off-season changes. Locking down backup goalie Anton Khudobin, who took over for injured starter Ben Bishop and led the team to the final, was a big step in this regard.

The Stars' braintrust believes this core can get it done, and they're going all-in to get over the hump, even at the expense of future flexibility, as evidenced by the third year on Khudobin's deal.

KEY DEPARTURES & UNSIGNED UFAs Corey Perry, RW; Mattias Janmark, LW; Roman Polak, D; Martin Hanzal, C

OFFENSE In recent years, the Stars have featured a top-heavy attack fueled by Jamie Benn, Tyler Seguin and Alexander Radulov. When that crew went cold, the team had no chance. Dallas enters this year with a perfect mix of secondary scorers to mitigate that issue.

Drafted-and-developed prospects Denis Gurianov and Roope Hintz both came into their own last season, while younger players such as Joel Kiviranta stepped up in the post-season to help fill in scoring gaps and ameliorate injuries issues.

The losses of free agents Mattias Janmark and Corey Perry will be filled internally (and for less money) by homegrown players. And, as evidenced by the playoffs, the top line remains lethal. If it all comes together, this is a potent group.

DEFENSE Any goaltender would love to play behind the Dallas defense. They are well-known as a stingy group, but what's often overlooked is the group's ability to generate offense. The emergence of Miro Heiskanen on the national stage (26 points in 27 playoff games) and the revival of John Klingberg (21 in 26) cemented Dallas as a team that can score from the back end.

Meanwhile, the club also watched Jamie Oleksiak emerge as a top-four defenseman. Thomas Harley, the 18th overall pick in 2019, was with the team in the playoff bubble and will be added to the group. Stephen Johns remains a question mark. The shutdown blueliner had a recurrence of the post-concussion headaches that kept him out of the lineup for 22 months before January 2020. The Stars can't count on Johns being in the lineup. The club also re-signed Andrej Sekera and added depth in Mark Pysyk.

GOALTENDING Khudobin's playoff heroics made him a must-sign asset for a club going all-in, especially with Bishop on the shelf until March following surgery. With Khudobin and Bishop, a three-time Vezina Trophy finalist, Dallas returns a tandem as good as any netminding pair in the league.

SPECIAL TEAMS The Stars' power play underachieved last season, by their own admission. The penalty kill was good but had to take the ice far too often, especially in the post-season. Dallas faces some questions of personnel with the departure of Perry in the net-front on the second power-play unit. However, the top skill players remain, and Dallas has two capable quarterbacks in Klingberg and Heiskanen. More consistency will yield results for this talented crew.

INTANGIBLES A run to the Stanley Cup final is the ultimate intangible. Not having been there before holds a lot of talented teams back from securing the Cup. Knowing that they've been on the cusp of a title with largely the same group will fuel the Stars during the inevitable pains of the regular season.

ROOKIES Harley will surely earn a spot on the blueline, and fellow first-rounder Ty Dellandrea (13th overall, 2018) will likely get a chance at center, especially with surgery forcing Seguin to miss time early. Jason Robertson is highly touted as a scorer, but he wasn't invited into the playoff bubble despite injuries and will need to force his way onto the roster.

X-FACTOR By the time they were in the Cup final, two-thirds of the roster was playing through injury. Notably, linchpin center Seguin had multiple injuries that limited him to two goals in the entire post-season. It's trite to say it, but if the Stars can stay relatively healthy, they'll be a threat again this year.

THE BRASS Rick Bowness had the interim tag removed after the playoffs, giving him a chance to set up the team from training camp. It will be his first season starting as a head coach since 1997 with the Islanders. Owner Tom Gaglardi, who made his money in the now pandemic-stricken industries of restaurants and hotels, gave Nill full permission to spend to the cap, eliminating any concerns about an internal budget.

FUTURE WATCH

DALLAS' LAST TOP-10 PICK was Miro Heiskanen and the Stars nailed it. Otherwise, the Cup finalists have been accruing assets in the mid-to-late first round. Their system is solid but not spectacular, led by Thomas Harley and Ty Dellandrea. Dallas caught a faller in 2020 when Mavrik Bourque landed in their lap at No. 30 and took chances later on. Antonio Stranges has incredible hands but needs to improve away from the puck, while Evgeni Oksentyuk is skilled but tiny. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. THOMAS HARLEY, D
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Mississauga (OHL)
Smooth-skating, well-rounded blueliner. Projects as a top-four NHL defenseman.
ACQUIRED 18th overall, 2019 NHL '21-22

2. TY DELLANDREA, C
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Flint (OHL)
Alternate captain and WJC gold medalist. Constantly improving his strength and offense.
ACQUIRED 13th overall, 2018 NHL '20-21

3. MAVRIK BOURQUE, C
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Shawinigan (QMJHL)
Quick, creative, competitive pivot plays with poise, pace and excels in a set-up role.
ACQUIRED 30th overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

4. JAKE OETTINGER, G
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Texas (AHL)
Calm and agile with NHL size. Athletic but needs to improve his quickness in the crease.
ACQUIRED 26th overall, 2017 NHL '21-22

5. JASON ROBERTSON, LW
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Texas (AHL)
Natural goal-scorer one year removed from an OHL scoring title. Needs to work on skating.
ACQUIRED 39th overall, 2017 NHL '20-21

6. ALBIN ERIKSSON, RW
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Farjestad (Swe.)
Has good size but needs to be more consistent. Played on four different teams in Sweden.
ACQUIRED 44th overall, 2018 NHL '22-23

7. ANTONIO STRANGES, LW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM London (OHL)
Flashy speedster has great edge work and quick hands. Needs to play more of a team game.
ACQUIRED 123rd overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

8. NICHOLAS CAAMANO, RW
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Texas (AHL)
Somewhat limited offensively but can play either wing. Best suited for bottom-six role in the NHL.
ACQUIRED 146th overall, 2016 NHL '21-22

9. RHETT GARDNER, C
AGE 24 2019-20 TEAM Texas (AHL)
Great spatial awareness on the ice. Effective penalty-killer and energy-line player.
ACQUIRED 116th overall, 2016 NHL '21-22

10. RILEY TUFTE, LW
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Texas (AHL)
Big body and physical presence on the ice. Heavy shot, good speed, intimidating force.

DETROIT RED WINGS

ROBBY FABBRI

DYLAN LARKIN

BY BOB DUFF

THE RED WINGS finally bottomed out in 2019-20. For the first time in 30 years, Detroit was the NHL's worst team, finishing last overall in the 31-team circuit. Years of trading draft picks for journeyman veterans to maintain the club's playoff streak caught up to the Wings. They've missed the playoffs four straight seasons for the first time since the 1980s.

The good news is they're poised to begin the long climb back up the ladder. A few years of stockpiling draft picks is beginning to pay off – the club's top five scorers were all 24 or younger. GM Steve Yzerman added another blue-chipper in the 2020 draft, taking winger Lucas Raymond fourth overall.

THN POWER RANKING

The defense corps is also being reshaped. Three defenders who logged at least 40 games last season won't be back with the club in 2020-21. There's still a long way to go, but at least the Wings are finally following the necessary path.

OFFENSE The top forward unit of Dylan Larkin, Anthony Mantha and Tyler Bertuzzi are a perfect blend. Larkin brings speed and flair. Mantha is the finisher, a power forward in every sense. Bertuzzi is a pest who's happiest when doing the dirty work.

Robby Fabbri had 14 goals and 31 points in 52 games after coming over from St. Louis. Filip Zadina, drafted No. 6 overall in 2018, scored eight goals in 28 games. Free-agent signing Bobby Ryan should be good for 15 goals. Veteran Sam Gagner was re-signed and Vladislav Namestnikov, a 17-goal scorer last season, was another UFA addition.

Longtime grinder Justin Abdelkader was bought out. Darren Helm, Dmytro Timashov, Adam Erne and Luke Glendening will fill checking roles. Where veterans Valtteri Filppula and Frans Nielsen fit in is puzzling.

DEFENSE A sore spot for the team in recent seasons is suddenly looking up. Sophomore Filip Hronek emerged as a reliable option, leading all rearguards in goals (nine) and points (31). Late-season call-up Gustav Lindstrom isn't flashy but is steady and doesn't make many mistakes. Alex Biega, added from Vancouver, brought speed and is another reliable defender. Patrik Nemeth supplies a physical element.

The club jettisoned vets Trevor Daley, Madison Bowey and Jonathan Ericsson, adding UFAs Jon Merrill and Troy Stecher, both mobile puck-carriers. Marc Staal was acquired for his experience and leadership. It will be a boost if Moritz Seider, the No. 6 pick in 2019, can make the leap to the big-time and reliable vet Danny DeKeyser can stay healthy. He had back surgery last season and missed all but eight games.

GOALTENDING Is the .915 career save percentage of Thomas Greiss due more to his ability or the safe defensive system preferred by the New York Islanders? Detroit signed the UFA goalie to a two-year deal. In the span of a year, Jimmy Howard went from All-Star Game selection to a 2-32-2 record and wasn't offered a new contract. If the Wings had an MVP last season, it was Jonathan Bernier. His steady play kept the score respectable most nights after Howard flamed out.

SPECIAL TEAMS There's nothing special about Detroit's special teams. The Wings were 31st in net power-play percentage (which factors in shorthanded goals against). Mantha and Fabbri shared the team lead with six extra-man goals, tied for 57th. The Wings were 11th in power-play chances. The penalty kill was even more atrocious, finishing 31st.

INTANGIBLES The off-season additions should not only make Detroit a more competitive team on the ice, the deeper veteran presence will help improve the composure of a club that gained a reputation last season for coming apart at the seams when faced with adversity. The Wings were notorious for giving up goals in bunches. A healthy DeKeyser would also aid Detroit's steadiness. He logged a team-high 21:58 in ice time per game in 2018-19.

ROOKIES All eyes will be on Seider to see if he can make the jump to the NHL. The team was ready to give him a late-season look when COVID-19 scuttled the year. At 6-foot-4 and 205 pounds, he's big enough to be a physical presence but also skilled enough to work the power play.

X-FACTOR It's not about today for the Wings, and Yzerman kept that in mind as he signed free agents in the summer. All of them were done at money and term that will be very easily movable for more prospects and draft picks at the trade deadline.

THE BRASS Yzerman understood the 2019-20 campaign was about assessing the organization and giving opportunities to young players. He accepted the long overdue basement finish. He took some heat for keeping coach Jeff Blashill, but the team never took nights off or gave up.

FUTURE WATCH

SWEDES ARE BACK IN style in Motown, as the Red Wings grabbed Lucas Raymond, William Wallinder and Theo Niederbach with their first three picks in 2020. All hold great promise, led by offensive demon Raymond. It's been a tough couple of years in Detroit, but the fruits of GM Steve Yzerman are beginning to ripen. Yzerman believes Filip Zadina is ready for the NHL, while Filip Hronek has already proven himself on the back end. Moritz Seider and Joe Veleno are coming soon. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. MORITZ SEIDER, D
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Grand Rapids (AHL)
Two-way D-man shone in AHL debut and at the WJC with great playmaking skills and intelligence.
ACQUIRED 6th overall, 2019 NHL '20-21

2. LUCAS RAYMOND, RW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Frolunda (Swe.)
Elite talent uses speed, edges and soft hands to beat you. Forechecks hard with non-stop effort.
ACQUIRED 4th overall, 2020 NHL '21-22

3. JOE VELENO, C
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Grand Rapids (AHL)
Talented pivot finished rookie AHL season on a high note. Impressed at the WJC. Average skater.
ACQUIRED 30th overall, 2018 NHL '21-22

4. WILLIAM WALLINDER, D
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Modo Jr. (Swe.)
Effortless skater moves the puck efficiently. Has the size to defend well but isn't physical.
ACQUIRED 32nd overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

5. MICHAEL RASMUSSEN, C
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Grand Rapids (AHL)
Uses size well. Projects as a shutdown center but can play the wing. Injuries slowed progress.

6. THEO NIEDERBACH, C
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Frolunda Jr. (Swe.)
Two-way pivot plays thinking man's game. Drives the net and competes with grit and intensity.
ACQUIRED 51st overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

7. JONATAN BERGGREN, RW
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Skelleftea (Swe.)
Offensive dynamo with elite speed, hands and vision. Impressive at WJC before back injury.
ACQUIRED 33rd overall, 2018 NHL '22-23

8. CROSS HANAS, LW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Portland (WHL)
Two-way winger works hard, skates and shoots well and is creative. Consistency is lacking.
ACQUIRED 55th overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

9. JARED MCISAAC, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Moncton (QMJHL)
Already has big-league strength. Has power-play potential but needs to improve decision-making.
ACQUIRED 36th overall, 2018 NHL '21-22

10. ROBERT MASTROSIMONE, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Boston University (HE)
Fearless and physical sniper with strong stickhandling. Skating needs to improve as a sophomore.
ACQUIRED 54th overall, 2019 NHL '24-25

ONCE AGAIN, THE Edmonton Oilers are trying to take advantage of what they have in Connor McDavid and Leon Draisaitl after missing the playoffs for the fourth time in five years with the two superstars.

They appeared headed in the right direction for much of last season, climbing to second place in the Pacific Division before COVID-19 shut the league down in mid-March. When play resumed in the Edmonton bubble, however, all their weaknesses came back to haunt them at once, allowing 12th-place Chicago to punt them out of the qualifying round in four games.

This team's strengths are obvious – two Art Ross and Hart Trophy winners and excellent special teams – but it hasn't been enough to overcome weaknesses. Lack of secondary scoring, lulls in intensity, inconsistency in net, defensive lapses and lack of attention to detail were magnified in the bubble.

OFFENSE Despite starting out with one of the best threesomes in the NHL – McDavid, Draisaitl and Ryan Nugent-Hopkins – the Oilers still ranked just 15th in goals. They've been searching for suitable first- and second-line wingers since McDavid and Draisaitl arrived and still haven't found a sustainable solution. The bottom six isn't providing enough support.

Kailer Yamamoto helped, putting up 26 points in 27 games with Draisaitl and Nugent-Hopkins after being called up mid-season, but it's a small sample size and still left McDavid alone on an island.

General manager Ken Holland talked winger Jesse Puljujarvi back to Edmonton after a productive year in Finland and signed center Kyle Turris and winger Dominik Kahun, but those moves can't be counted on to help the top six.

DEFENSE The blueline took a major hit with news that Oscar Klefbom's chronic shoulder issue will likely require surgery and could keep him out all season. He led the team in points among defensemen and minutes played, quarterbacked the power play and was a go-to guy in all situations.

Signing Tyson Barrie to fill the void, at well below market value, is a huge win for Holland. There are concerns about his defensive game, but Barrie will more than make up for Klefbom's offense and can run a power play.

The Oilers are counting on sophomores Ethan Bear and Caleb Jones to play bigger roles with Klefbom out.

GOALTENDING Goaltending is a concern after both Mikko Koskinen and Mike Smith were barely average in the qualifying series. Koskinen posted a solid .917 save percentage in the regular season, which might be a better body of work to judge him on than his three qualifier starts behind a sagging Oilers team. Smith was a respectable 19-12-6, but with a flooded goalie market, fans were hoping for an upgrade.

SPECIAL TEAMS The power play was the lifeblood of the team last season, accounting for 59 of their 223 goals while posting an efficiency rate ranked among the best in modern NHL history. It's a lot to ask for a repeat (which is why secondary scoring needs to improve), but getting Barrie will help. Penalty killing was also a strength, ranking second, with Klefbom and Riley Sheahan leading the team in shorthanded time on ice. Klefbom is out and the Oilers hadn't re-signed UFA Sheahan several weeks into free agency.

INTANGIBLES This is the sixth year for McDavid and Draisaitl and the 10th for Nugent-Hopkins. They've made the playoffs once in that span. They've been good soldiers and haven't complained about the organization's inability to get over the hump, but the frustration is real.

ROOKIES After Edmonton added Bear, Jones and Yamamoto last year, there aren't any rookies penciled in to start the season. Ty Benson looked like an option until Turris, Puljujarvi and Kahun were signed. The organization's top prospects are blue-chip D-men Philip Broberg and Evan Bouchard, who won't be rushed, and 2020 14th-overall pick Dylan Holloway, a center at Wisconsin.

LEON DRAISAITL

DRAISAITL: PERRY NELSON-USA TODAY SPORTS

X-FACTOR Will McDavid and Draisaitl finally get adequate support? A breakthrough from just one of the high-ceiling youngsters might be enough. Puljujarvi, 22, emerged last season as a dominant scorer in Finland's top league, and Yamamoto scored at a top-line rate in a partial NHL season.

THE BRASS The 2019 changeover is working. Holland, the fourth GM in seven years, brings stability and respect, but he has limited cap space. Dave Tippett, the ninth coach in 11 years, has special teams clicking and improved team defense.

EVAN BOUCHARD

FUTURE WATCH

FOR YEARS, THE OILERS have been let down by their defense – but the franchise has taken the necessary steps to curb that problem. Evan Bouchard and Philip Broberg are top-four blueliners-in-the-making, while Caleb Jones and Ethan Bear have made NHL contributions. With that established, Edmonton went with all forwards in 2020, led by big, fast Dylan Holloway from Wisconsin. Carter Savoie is a local kid who can score. Goalies are coming, but no one who can help now. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. EVAN BOUCHARD, D
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Bakersfield (AHL)
Potential to become No. 1 right-shot D-man. He can skate, shoot, pass and move effortlessly.
ACQUIRED 10th overall, 2018 NHL '20-21

2. DYLAN HOLLOWAY, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Wisconsin (Big Ten)
Smooth-skating, physical pivot is competitive, but has finesse hands. Strong at the dot.
ACQUIRED 14th overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

3. PHILIP BROBERG, D
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Skelleftea (Swe.)
Lightning-fast skater, loves to lead the rush. Overaggressive, takes unnecessary risks.
ACQUIRED 8th overall, 2019 NHL '21-22

4. RAPHAEL LAVOIE, RW
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Chicoutimi (QMJHL)
Three consecutive 30-goal seasons in the 'Q.' Big, speedy and strong around the net.

5. DMITRI SAMORUKOV, D
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Bakersfield (AHL)
Well-rounded player who does everything at a high level. Passes the puck with NHL vision.

6. TYLER BENSON, LW
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Bakersfield (AHL)
Physical winger has battled multiple injuries and needs to ramp up his production.
ACQUIRED 32nd overall, 2016 NHL '20-21

7. CARTER SAVOIE, LW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Sherwood Park (Jr. A)
Creative, sniping winger has impressive array of shots. Crafty in tight spaces. Off to NCAA Denver.
ACQUIRED 100th overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

8. PHIL KEMP, D
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Yale (ECAC)
Hulking, stay-at-home blueliner plays physical game with impressive leadership traits.
ACQUIRED 208th overall, 2017 NHL '23-24

9. ILYA KONOVALOV, G
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Yaroslavl (KHL)
Small-framed, agile stopper has played parts of four seasons in KHL with eye-popping stats.
ACQUIRED 85th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

10. RYAN MCLEOD, C
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Bakersfield (AHL)
A developing two-way talent who needs to bear down on boosting his offensive game.
ACQUIRED 40th overall, 2018 NHL '24-25

THE PANTHERS are under pressure to prove they're not just a form of seasonal entertainment for snowbirds.

In late January, Florida saw the momentum of a six-game winning streak reversed following a 10-day break. When the league paused in March, Florida was already in must-win mode in their playoff pursuit.

Despite a rocky first year under coach Joel Quenneville, the Panthers earned an invite to the NHL qualifying tournament as a No. 10 seed. But five games, including a humiliating exhibition loss to Tampa Bay and a 3-1 series defeat to the New York Islanders, revealed many flaws.

HUBERDEAU+BOBROVSKY: SERGEI BELSKI-USA TODAY SPORTS

The Panthers have since undergone numerous changes to their front office, highlighted by the hiring of GM Bill Zito. The former assistant GM in Columbus revamped the roster, shunning unproven potential for grit and defense.

It has been 24 years since the Panthers won a playoff round. This season should expose whether the core has been overvalued on paper or really was just a few pieces shy of disrupting the Atlantic Division.

OFFENSE Finding who fits with Aleksander Barkov and Jonathan Huberdeau following the departure of Evgenii Dadonov is a priority. Quenneville showed willingness to tinker with the top line but really only got a spark out of Noel Acciari, who finished with a career-high 20 goals. This time Quenneville has several forwards with something to prove. Hard-nosed Patric Hornqvist appears the most likely candidate to assume the coveted opening on the first line and power play.

Alexander Wennberg, an offseason castoff by Columbus, appears to be the top candidate to center the second line. Free-agent additions Carter Verhaeghe and Vinnie Hinostroza, buried on depth charts before being cut free by their previous teams, fit in the middle six.

DEFENSE The Panthers haven't been tough in their own end and finished in the bottom five in goals against for the second straight season. Zito brought in veterans Radko Gudas and Markus Nutivaara to replace underachieving Mike Matheson and Josh Brown. Gudas defends with a physical, imposing style not seen in Florida since Erik Gudbranson played here. The unassuming Nutivaara brings poise and played in a rigid defensive system in Columbus.

Aaron Ekblad and MacKenzie Weegar showed the most progress under Quenneville, each earning career highs in points while posting better defensive metrics. Veteran Keith Yandle maintained his offensive output despite seeing less ice time. Riley Stillman appears to have survived a logjam as Florida's seventh defenseman.

GOALTENDING Florida's defensive upgrades should allow Sergei Bobrovsky to show last season – his worst as a starter – was simply an aberration. Chris Driedger has the edge for the backup job. He won seven of 12 appearances and posted a team-best 2.05 goals-against average. Samuel Montembeault is also an option but will likely spend more time in the AHL.

SPECIAL TEAMS Florida put up franchise-best power-play percentages the past two seasons thanks to an unchanged top unit, but the departure of snipers Dadonov and Mike Hoffman may hurt. Hornqvist's net presence should free up Barkov to make plays. If Owen Tippett joins the squad full-time, the rookie's deceptive blast could replace Hoffman's. Florida's PK, which ranked 20th, will have new faces and a new strategist with assistant coach Mike Kitchen gone. Gudas, an adept shot-blocker, is a lock for the rebuilt unit, while Wennberg and Hinostroza will also get a look.

INTANGIBLES The Panthers have often lacked an edge. Zito's moves prioritized toughness and defense, and he didn't need to break the bank, which will give Florida flexibility at the trade deadline.

ROOKIES After three years of honing his game away from the puck, natural goal-scorer Tippett appears ready to earn a permanent spot. He'll see top-nine and power-play minutes. Dynamic winger Grigori Denisenko, 20, could also earn a job.

BARKOV: JOHN E. SOKOLOWSKI-USA TODAY SPORTS

X-FACTOR The defense. Florida has the necessary talent up front and in net, so success in the standings will largely hinge on how quickly the revamped blueline can execute Quenneville's system.

THE BRASS Quenneville improved the club in his first year. With four years left on his deal, the winningest active coach has time to pad his totals and win a fourth Cup. Zito isn't going anywhere, either.

FUTURE WATCH

HENRIK BORGSTROM HASN'T developed as quickly as expected, but the Panthers grabbed another Finnish center to play behind Aleksander Barkov when they drafted two-way ace Anton Lundell. Scoring punch is coming on the wings from Grigori Denisenko and Owen Tippett, while goaltending is taken care of thanks to excellent prospect Spencer Knight at Boston College. John Ludvig and Vladislav Kolyachonok are coming on defense, but more is needed. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. SPENCER KNIGHT, G
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Boston College (HE)
Hobey Baker nominee was a calm and cool freshman. All the tools to be a franchise goalie.
ACQUIRED 13th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

2. GRIGORI DENISENKO, LW
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Yaroslavl (KHL)
He has it all: speed, offense and physicality. Leadership on display as Russia's captain at WJC.
ACQUIRED 15th overall, 2018 NHL '20-21

3. OWEN TIPPETT, RW
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Springfield (AHL)
Goal-scoring machine with a complete game who improved away from the puck. Ready for NHL.
ACQUIRED 10th overall, 2017 NHL '20-21

4. ANTON LUNDELL, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM HIFK (Fin.)
Mature, sturdy pivot excels at finer details of the game. Almost too defense-minded at times.
ACQUIRED 12th overall, 2020 NHL '22-23

5. HENRIK BORGSTROM, C
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Springfield (AHL)
Early struggles with new responsibilities yielded a well-rounded game. Inconsistent but high ceiling.
ACQUIRED 23rd overall, 2016 NHL '21-22

6. ALEKSI SAARELA, C
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Springfield (AHL)
Quickly established himself as a solid No. 1 center with a cannon for a shot and high-end skills.
ACQUIRED From Chi, Oct. 2019 NHL '20-21

7. EMIL HEINEMAN, LW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Leksand Jr. (Swe.)
Explosive skater also grinds along the boards well. Strong shot but inconsistent efforts.
ACQUIRED 43rd overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

8. EETU LUOSTARINEN, C
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Charlotte (AHL)
Dependable checking center with developing offensive game. Adding weight would be good.
ACQUIRED From Car, Feb. 2020 NHL '22-23

9. TY SMILANIC, LW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM U.S. NTDP (USHL)
Injury-prone winger skates well and has an impressive release. Bound for NCAA Quinnipiac.
ACQUIRED 74th overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

10. JOHN LUDVIG, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Portland (WHL)
All-around beast finished third in scoring among WHL D-men. Sets tone with tough, physical play.

DOUGHTY: PERRY NELSON-USA TODAY SPORTS

BY DOUG WARD

THESE ARE TOPSY-TURVY times, particularly in Los Angeles, where the flopping Kings are methodically flipping back into contenders. The bottom-feeding club did not qualify for the playoffs for the second straight year and were one of just seven teams to miss out on COVID-19 bubble play, yet they enter 2020-21 feeling like they're on top of the world. After closing the regular season with a seven-game winning streak, the Kings landed the No. 2 pick in the draft lottery, selecting Quinton Byfield, whose size and speed fits the team's newfound emphasis on pace.

With Byfield joining a bundle of high-end prospects, the aging Kings are on their way to transitioning into upstart contenders again. If their core of two-time Cup champions – Anze Kopitar, Dustin Brown, Jeff Carter, Drew Doughty and Jonathan Quick – can remain productive and the youngsters arrive ahead of schedule, L.A. might just challenge for a wild-card spot this year.

OFFENSE For the second consecutive year, the Kings ranked 30th in scoring – despite taking 33 shots per game, the fourth-most in the league. Long-term help is on the way in the form of Byfield, Gabriel Vilardi, Alex Turcotte, Samuel Fagemo and Tyler Madden.

In the short term, the Kings need to get more production from everyone but Kopitar, who bounced back from a subpar 2018-19 to lead the team with 21 goals and 62 points. The drop-off in production was precipitous after Kopitar, with Alex Iafallo registering 43 points, while Drew Doughty and Dustin Brown each chipped in 35 points. Vilardi eased a lot of fears by picking up seven points in 10 games after returning from a nagging back injury.

DEFENSE While the Kings' days as defensive stalwarts are over, they still finished a respectable 14th in goals-against average while allowing the fifth-fewest shots. Doughty is on the wrong side of 30, and his best days might be behind him – reflected by his diminished production and ice time.

Cup winners Alec Martinez and Jake Muzzin were jettisoned at the past two trade deadlines, so the blueline is in the hands of Doughty and youngsters Sean Walker and Matt Roy. Kale Clague appears ready, while future stalwarts Mikey Anderson and Tobias Bjornfot are on the cusp. Olli Maatta was acquired through trade.

GOALTENDING At 34, Quick is closer to a Hall of Fame plaque than the Vezina Trophy after posting his second straight losing season (16-22-4, with a .904 save percentage). Cal Petersen, who won four straight starts after Jack Campbell was traded, will serve as the backup. Petersen, who posted a .922 save percentage and 2.64 GAA last season, will have an opportunity to show he can mature into the team's goalie of the future.

SPECIAL TEAMS Not surprisingly, the goal-starved Kings found little success on the power play, finishing 26th. The penalty kill was equally inept, finishing 23rd. Byfield, who has experience killing penalties as well as the size and skill to feature on the power play, will eventually help in both areas. Winger Martin Frk has a lethal slapshot that is a big extra-man asset, and more help will come in the form of youngsters Vilardi and offense-minded defenseman Clague.

INTANGIBLES Six Kings players have their name engraved on the Stanley Cup, while seven players in the system were listed in the top 100 of the THN Future Watch rankings. If the youngsters arrive ahead of schedule, and the veterans can remain productive, the Kings might find the balance that gets them back to the playoffs sooner than expected. If the baton-passing is prolonged, L.A. will remain on the outside looking in.

ROOKIES Vilardi looked promising while recovering from a career-threatening back injury to score three goals in a 10-game NHL stint last year, while Clague impressed in four NHL games. Byfield, along with Turcotte, Madden and Anderson will get a chance to make the team.

KOPITAR: JAMES CAREY LAUDER-USA TODAY SPORTS

X-FACTOR The Kings posted a winning home record last season, but they were a miserable 10-22-4 away from Los Angeles. If the Kings can maintain their home-ice advantage and improve on the road, they can compete for a playoff spot.

THE BRASS GM Rob Blake unloaded aging vets, stockpiled draft picks and assembled one of hockey's deepest prospect pools. If the prospects pay off, Blake might be on his way to a front-office career worthy of his playing days, while coach Todd McLellan has gotten the buy-in to establish a foundation.

FUTURE WATCH

ADDING A TALENT LIKE Quinton Byfield would beef up any team's prospect bullpen, but for the Kings it was an extra bonus. A wave of talented youngsters is coming to L.A., from Alex Turcotte to Gabe Vilardi and Tyler Madden. Most of the top kids are forwards, though Tobias Bjornfot is a steady presence on defense and has some NHL experience. Helge Grans was another nice pickup for the blueline, courtesy of the 2020 draft. A blue-chipper is needed in goal. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. QUINTON BYFIELD, C
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Sudbury (OHL)
Brimming with size, skill and physical gifts not a lot unlike Anze Kopitar. An even better skater.
ACQUIRED 2nd overall, 2020 NHL '20-21

2. ALEX TURCOTTE, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Wisconsin (Big Ten)
Complete player comparable to Jonathan Toews. Tenacious, competitive and resilient.
ACQUIRED 5th overall, 2019 NHL '20-21

3. TOBIAS BJORNFOT, D
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Ontario (AHL)
Smart, smooth-skating, defense-first blueliner. Captained Sweden's golden under-18 worlds team.
ACQUIRED 22nd overall, 2019 NHL '20-21

4. SAMUEL FAGEMO, LW
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Frolunda (Swe.)
High-energy player who never takes a shift off. Great stickhandler goes to the net fearlessly.
ACQUIRED 50th overall, 2019 NHL '22-23

5. ARTHUR KALIYEV, RW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Hamilton (OHL)
Natural goal-scorer with shooter mentality. Soft touch around the net. Needs tougher competition.
ACQUIRED 33rd overall, 2019 NHL '21-22

6. TYLER MADDEN, C
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Northeastern (HE)
Magician with the puck. Son of former NHLer John improved his scoring as a sophomore.
ACQUIRED From Van, Feb. 2020 NHL '22-23

7. GABE VILARDI, C
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Ontario (AHL)
Creative playmaker, smooth with the puck. Dealt with serious back injury that stalled his progress.
ACQUIRED 11th overall, 2017 NHL '21-22

8. HELGE GRANS, D
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Malmo Jr. (Swe.)
Tall, right-shooting puck-mover has good offensive instincts and excels on the power play.
ACQUIRED 35th overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

9. LIAS ANDERSON, LW
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM HV71 (Swe.)
Seventh overall pick in 2017 was disgruntled with Rangers. Offensive upside slow to develop.
ACQUIRED From NYR, Oct. 2020 NHL '20-21

10. RASMUS KUPARI, C
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Ontario (AHL)
Excellent skater with speed and skill. Dangerous with the puck on his stick in the attacking zone.
ACQUIRED 20th overall, 2018 NHL '22-23

FIALA+DUMBA: SERGEI BELSKI-USA TODAY SPORTS

BY MICHAEL RUSSO

BILL GUERIN AND Dean Evason's oft-repeated mantra before last summer's return was, "Why not us?" The first-year GM and the coach soon discovered why not: the Wild weren't good enough.

In their seventh post-season in eight years, the Wild showed again they weren't up to snuff with the top teams in the West. So, Guerin tore apart the roster in an unofficial rebuild.

Departed: Mikko Koivu, Eric Staal, Devan Dubnyk, Luke Kunin, Ryan Donato and Alex Galchenyuk. Arriving: Kirill Kaprizov, Cam Talbot, Marcus Johansson, Nick Bonino, Nick Bjugstad and, potentially, rookie Marco Rossi.

INDICATES NEW ARRIVAL

KEY DEPARTURES & UNSIGNED UFAs Mikko Koivu, C; Eric Staal, C; Devan Dubnyk, G; Luke Kunin, C; Ryan Donato, LW; Alex Galchenyuk, C; J.T. Brown, RW

This could be a season of further transition. Six players are UFAs in 2021, so there should be more roster flexibility and cap space. Evason had the interim label removed after going 8-4-0, Kevin Fiala is blossoming, the top six D-men – the Wild's strength – remain intact, and, after five years of salivating, fans will finally see top prospect Kaprizov in a Wild jersey.

OFFENSE It's a small sample size, but the Wild scored 39 tallies in their final 11 games (including qualifiers) and finished 12th in goals. Zach Parise, 36, hit the 20-goal mark for the 10th time and led the Wild with 25. Fiala scored a career-high and team-leading 54 points in 64 games, and he especially erupted in his final 18 games with 14 goals and 26 points.

With Staal gone and Jason Zucker dealt last season, the Wild will be relying on Mats Zuccarello to rebound from a poor first year in Minnesota, Jordan Greenway to be more consistent, and Kaprizov to be a Calder contender.

Center is a major weakness, which could allow 19-year-old Rossi to make the team – the pivots are Johansson (usually better at wing), checkers Joel Eriksson Ek and Bonino, and plodding Victor Rask.

DEFENSE Minnesota's responsible, high-scoring blueline is their strongest component. The group, comprised of Ryan Suter, Jared Spurgeon, Jonas Brodin, Matt Dumba, Carson Soucy and Brad Hunt, remains intact, though there were Dumba trade rumors.

But the Wild are also one of the league's best defending teams, allowing the fewest high-danger shots and were second best in expected goals.

GOALTENDING Guerin is banking on better goaltending resulting in more wins, because despite those stingy defensive stats, Devan Dubnyk had awful numbers. In comes Talbot, who rebounded last season after a terrible 2018-19. His save percentage rebounded last season after three bad years. Alex Stalock will back him up. He's coming off a 20-win season and the tandem will give Kaapo Kahkonen, the AHL's top goalie, another season to develop in Iowa. He's just 24.

SPECIAL TEAMS The Wild finished in the bottom half of the league in both. Maybe Talbot and continued hard work from Eriksson Ek, Marcus Foligno and Ryan Hartman will help remedy the PK. The Wild's 14 power-play goals in their final 18 games could be a sign of what's to come. Fans want Kaprizov and Fiala on the same unit, but Parise tied for sixth in the NHL with 12 power-play goals last season and has 120 in his career. Assuming Johansson centers the first unit, could Fiala play the point with Dumba or Spurgeon?

INTANGIBLES For the first time since 2008, the captain won't be Koivu. Will the Wild name an immediate successor? Spurgeon, armed with a new seven-year contract, warrants serious consideration, as does Foligno, if he signs a contract extension. Parise or Suter wouldn't be controversial picks if they're in the club's long-term plans.

ROOKIES Can Rossi, the CHL's leading scorer and the OHL's MVP, make the team? He's considered one of the most NHL-ready prospects from the 2020 draft. Can Kaprizov live up to lofty expectations after leading the KHL in goals twice and scoring the golden goal in the 2018 Olympics? Undrafted German center Nico Sturm should also make the team.

RYAN SUTER

X-FACTOR The lightning-fast Fiala is looking like Minnesota's first game-breaker since Marian Gaborik. This will be a big year for Fiala, who will be targeted nightly. He lost his cool in the playoffs, amassing 10 penalty minutes in four games.

THE BRASS Guerin was hired in August 2019 when it was too late to make meaningful moves. Then, 2019-20 was hampered by a pandemic, and his second season will start abnormally late. His objective: make the Wild younger, faster and built through the draft to become a true contender.

FUTURE WATCH

A STRONG CROP OF picks in 2020 helps Minnesota's pipeline continue its upward trajectory. Marco Rossi was a steal at No. 9, while defensemen Ryan O'Rourke and Daemon Hunt were great value picks. Rossi and Marat Khusnutdinov give the Wild more options at center, which is where the organization needs help. Kirill Kaprizov, Adam Beckman and Matt Boldy have the wings covered for the future, while Calen Addison leads the 'D' prospects. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. KIRILL KAPRIZOV, LW
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM CSKA Moscow (KHL)
NHL-ready shot, youngest player to score 100 goals in KHL. Ultra-skilled, shoot-first mentality.
ACQUIRED 135th overall, 2015 NHL '20-21

2. MARCO ROSSI, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Ottawa (OHL)
Intelligent, crafty playmaker thinks game at high speed. Slight frame, but he's a workhorse.
ACQUIRED 9th overall, 2020 NHL '20-21

3. MATT BOLDY, LW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Boston College (HE)
Good size and displayed creativity as a freshman. Magician with the puck in the offensive zone.
ACQUIRED 12th overall, 2019 NHL '22-23

4. ALEX KHOVANOV, C
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Moncton (QMJHL)
Competitive, explosive skater, dangler. Must continue to work on his conditioning.
ACQUIRED 86th overall, 2018 NHL '22-23

5. ADAM BECKMAN, LW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Spokane (WHL)
Ability to create shots and scoring opportunities. Good hockey sense, excellent instincts and vision.
ACQUIRED 75th overall, 2019 NHL '22-23

6. CALEN ADDISON, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Lethbridge (WHL)
Anchors the power play and moves the puck well. Competes very hard, aggressive in the corners.
ACQUIRED From Pit, Feb. 2020 NHL '21-22

7. MARAT KHUSNUTDINOV, C
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM St. Petersburg Jr. (Rus.)
Playmaking center is a darting skater with good leadership traits. Small but plays well in traffic.
ACQUIRED 37th overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

8. RYAN O'ROURKE, D
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Sault Ste. Marie (OHL)
Two-way blueliner with a booming slapshot. Not huge, but intense and fearless. Captain material.
ACQUIRED 39th overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

9. KAAPO KAHKONEN, G
AGE 24 2019-20 TEAM Iowa (AHL)
Minnesota's goalie of the future looked dominant at times in his second AHL season.
ACQUIRED 109th overall, 2014 NHL '21-22

10. BRENNAN MENELL, D
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Iowa (AHL)
Poised with the puck, above average skater. Minnesota native must work on his defense.
ACQUIRED Free agent, Sept. 2017 NHL '21-22

DURING AN OCTOBER video conference with the media, Montreal GM Marc Bergevin pointed out the obvious: COVID-19 is "horrible for everybody." But he went on to point out that a lot of positives came out of entering the Toronto bubble. One of those positives was the Canadiens making the playoffs. The Habs should've missed for the third straight season, but they got in as the 24th and final seed thanks to the play-in bracket. The club took advantage, upsetting Pittsburgh and Sidney Crosby in the qualifying round before losing to Philadelphia in six games.

Bergevin really liked what he saw from young centers Nick Suzuki and Jesperi Kotkaniemi and quickly started to rebuild his team around them during the off-season, adding wingers Josh Anderson (in a trade with Columbus for Max Domi) and Tyler Toffoli. The GM also added defenseman Joel Edmundson and backup goalie Jake Allen.

Once Toffoli signed, speculation swirled about contentious talks between the club and Brendan Gallagher, but the matter was settled quickly with a six-year, $39-million deal. All of a sudden, Habs fans are excited about the coming season and with good reason, since this finally looks like a legitimate playoff team.

OFFENSE Gallagher and Tomas Tatar tied for the team lead in goals with 22, which is two fewer than Toffoli scored in a season split between Los Angeles and Vancouver. Anderson scored only once in 26 games with the Blue Jackets before undergoing season-ending shoulder surgery, but the 6-foot-3, 220-pounder scored 27 goals the previous season while playing all 82 games. Toffoli and Anderson should take some of the goal-scoring pressure off Gallagher, who was en route to his third consecutive 30-goal season before the pandemic.

The Canadiens now have more depth on offense and will be counting heavily on pivots Suzuki and Kotkaniemi to perform like they did in the post-season.

Shea Weber and Jeff Petry remain the offensive drivers from the blueline – they combined for 26 goals and 76 points last season.

DEFENSE Ben Chiarot proved he can play on the left beside Weber on the first pairing, and with their physical style they aren't fun to play against. The addition of Edmundson gives Petry an experienced, physical partner on the left side of the second pairing, which can also eat up minutes.

Alexander Romanov could make the jump from the KHL and play beside Brett Kulak on the third pairing, which would make Victor Mete the odd man out.

GOALTENDING In Allen, the Canadiens finally have a proven backup for Carey Price, who tied with Winnipeg's Connor Hellebuyck for the NHL lead in games played with 58. A well-rested Price (due to the pandemic pause) showed what he can do in the post-season with a 1.78 goals-against average and .936 save percentage.

SPECIAL TEAMS The Canadiens are hoping Toffoli and Anderson can help boost a power play that ranked 22nd and has been a weak spot for several years. The previous season, the power play ranked 30th. The Habs are still looking for someone to quarterback the PP, and maybe Suzuki can become that guy. Montreal also struggled on the penalty kill last season, ranking 19th.

INTANGIBLES A fractured relationship between Domi and coach Claude Julien led to Domi being dealt to Columbus in exchange for Anderson. Domi and Jonathan Drouin are close friends, and the latter has to pick up his game following three disappointing seasons since being acquired from Tampa Bay for defenseman Mikhail Sergachev. While Weber is captain and Price is the highest-paid Hab, Gallagher remains the heart and soul of the team.

ROOKIES Romanov was in the Toronto bubble with the Canadiens during the post-season and has a good chance to make the team after spending two post-draft seasons with CSKA Moscow in the KHL. Romanov, 20, was twice named an all-star at the world juniors and was drafted 38th overall in 2018.

X-FACTOR Anderson said he's fully recovered from surgery in March to repair a torn labrum in his left shoulder, along with a fractured clavicle. The Canadiens need him to be healthy and hardy, having signed the 26-year-old power winger to a seven-year, $38.5-million contract.

THE BRASS Julien will be back behind the bench after being rushed to hospital during the post-season and requiring surgery to insert a stent into a coronary artery. Julien and Bergevin both have two years remaining on their contracts with a team that hasn't won a playoff series since 2015 – the franchise's longest post-season dry spell in 80 years.

ALEXANDER ROMANOV

FUTURE WATCH

THE HABS TOOK SOME flak from their fans for not drafting any French-Canadian kids in 2020, but the crop was a good one. Kaiden Guhle was one of the best 'D' available, while Sean Farrell was a steal in the fourth round. Jan Mysak was a second-rounder who easily could've gone in the first. Otherwise, there is excitement in Montreal as Alexander Romanov comes to town to bring some dynamism back to the blueline. Cole Caufield will be watched closely at Wisconsin. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. ALEXANDER ROMANOV, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM CSKA Moscow (KHL)
Speedy, physical defender with good offensive skills. Will be a fixture on the left side.
ACQUIRED 38th overall, 2018 NHL '20-21

2. COLE CAUFIELD, RW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Wisconsin (Big Ten)
Continued his torrid scoring pace as a freshman with great puck skills, but his size is concerning.
ACQUIRED 15th overall, 2019 NHL '21-22

3. KAIDEN GUHLE, D
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Prince Albert (WHL)
Slick-skating blueliner is tall and likes to hit. Defensively responsible and adept with puck.
ACQUIRED 16th overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

4. CAYDEN PRIMEAU, G
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Laval (AHL)
Combines size and style with solid fundamentals. Agile and focused with good rebound control.

5. RYAN POEHLING, C
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Laval (AHL)
Smart, speedy center who knows how to use his size. Two-way workhorse with limited offense.
ACQUIRED 25th overall, 2017 NHL '20-21

6. LUKE TUCH, LW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM U.S. NTDP (USHL)
A more assertive winger than older brother Alex, but he's not as refined skill-wise. Off to Boston U.
ACQUIRED 47th overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

7. MATTIAS NORLINDER, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Modo (Swe.2)
Great vision, soft hands and deceptive speed. The SEL is the perfect place to hone his skills.
ACQUIRED 64th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

8. JAN MYSAK, LW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Hamilton (OHL)
High-end puck skills and good finishing ability. Often overhandles puck and not a physical player.
ACQUIRED 48th overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

9. JAYDEN STRUBLE, D
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Northeastern (HE)
Physical defender with a great shot and high-end athleticism who made an impact as a freshman.
ACQUIRED 46th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

10. JOSH BROOK, D
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Laval (AHL)
Offense has not yet translated and defense needs work. Speed and puckhandling are a big plus.

BY DAVID BOCLAIR

THE 2019-20 SEASON finally convinced the Predators that their run to the 2017 Stanley Cup final was as good as it was going to get for the core of that team. Management fought to keep that lineup largely intact because it believed another deep run was possible. That trust was "rewarded" with a second-round exit in 2018, a first-round loss in 2019 and disastrous five-game elimination by Arizona in the Edmonton bubble.

The reboot actually began in January when coach Peter Laviolette was fired days after the loss to Dallas in the Winter Classic. It was the first in-season coaching change in team history. There were positive signs after the move, but not enough changed.

THN POWER RANKING

The major off-season move was a subtraction: the buyout of Kyle Turris, who had four years left on his deal. The move frees $4 million in cap space for the next four seasons, but it costs the Preds $2 million against the cap for the next eight years.

OFFENSE Underachieving centers Ryan Johansen and Matt Duchene are under contract through 2025 and 2026, respectively, at $8 million apiece per season. Left winger Filip Forsberg has two more years at $6 million annually and right winger Viktor Arvidsson will earn $4.25 million per year through 2023-24. Both are being counted on for resurgent seasons.

The Predators' offense starts on defense – Nashville's most productive players on a per-game basis were Roman Josi and Ryan Ellis.

The key for this season is to find line combos to spark Johansen and Duchene. Luke Kunin, acquired in a trade with Minnesota, is certain to get a long look for one of those spots.

DEFENSE Josi is the reigning Norris winner and at the height of his career. He commands the game with his superior instincts and knows when to join the attack. However, he is not an intimidating physical presence in the defensive end. Neither are Ellis, Mattias Ekholm or Dante Fabbro, who comprise the rest of a well-established top-four.

So much of this team's identity is rooted in its collection of smooth-skating, puck-moving defensemen that it looked at times last season, particularly under Laviolette, that the defensive end was an afterthought. With no significant change in personnel, expect a more structured, five-man approach to playing defense. Free-agent signing Mark Borowiecki adds needed snarl to the group.

GOALTENDING The Arizona series brought an end to Pekka Rinne's reign as Nashville's No. 1 netminder. The veteran, 38, watched as Juuse Saros played all five games against the Coyotes. Saros did not perform particularly well, but his playing time has increased for four straight seasons, and his career save percentage (.918) is virtually identical to Rinne's (.917). Rinne's expiring contract pays $5 million, next to Saros' $1.5 million.

SPECIAL TEAMS The power play's poor performance continues to confound the entire organization. The top unit looks formidable on paper, but Nashville ranked 24th at 17.3-percent efficiency. Of course, that was a dramatic improvement from the previous season when the Preds were dead last at 12.9 percent. Over the past three seasons, Nashville has had the second-most extra-man opportunities, yet 21 teams have scored more power-play goals.

INTANGIBLES Energy from the bottom-six is going to be a focus after Nick Bonino and Austin Watson were traded, Turris was bought out and Craig Smith left as a free agent. The Preds could have something of a more traditional approach to the third and fourth lines, looking to Colton Sissons, Rocco Grimaldi and UFA arrival Brad Richardson to set the tone.

ROOKIES All eyes once again will be on Eeli Tolvanen, the 21-year-old winger who has yet to deliver on the hype he created in 2017-18 with his play in Russia and in international competitions. Tolvanen was loaned to KHL Jokerit for the start of this season and got off to a good start. He's expected to be tested in a top-six role in Nashville.

X-FACTOR Johansen has averaged fewer than two shots per game each of the past four seasons, since he signed his eight-year, $64-million contract. His 1.49 shots per contest in 2019-20 were his lowest since his rookie campaign, but he tied his career-high shooting percentage at 13.9 (14 goals on 101 shots). A return to 60-point form is possible and would fuel the club.

THE BRASS John Hynes settles in as coach after a 28-game audition following Laviolette's dismissal. Hynes was fired by the Devils last season after 26 games, and his time in charge of the Predators provided valuable insight when it came to off-season alterations. H

WITH THE PEKKA RINNE era nearing an end, it only made sense for Nashville to go out and grab another potential franchise goaltender – Yaroslav Askarov in the first round. Other names to watch from the 2020 draft class include second-rounder Luke Evangelista and seventh-rounder Gunnarwolfe Fontaine. The Preds have a balanced pipeline right now and a veteran lineup that has openings in the bottom-six. Crafty center Philip Tomasino could even make it as a teenager. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. PHILIP TOMASINO, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Oshawa (OHL)
Displays NHL shot, speed, agility, stickhandling and playmaking. Working on consistency.

THE DEVILS HELD a celebration in July 2019 featuring a drum line, cheering season-ticket holders and even a Ric Flair robe to welcome defenseman P.K. Subban. Never before had the franchise partied over winning the off-season, but after too many years of irrelevance, hopes were running high.

Acquiring Subban, plus drafting Jack Hughes No. 1 overall, was supposed to elevate the Devils into contention. Instead, three of the franchise's most influential people – GM Ray Shero, coach John Hynes and 2018 Hart Trophy winner Taylor Hall – were jettisoned long before another disappointing season came to an end.

Now, with Shero's longtime lieutenant Tom Fitzgerald calling the shots as GM and veteran coach Lindy Ruff behind the bench, the Devils are hitting the reset button again. Fitzgerald is building for the long term around Hughes and fellow No. 1 pick Nico Hischier, so fans are left to wonder: how long will this latest reboot take?

OFFENSE Kyle Palmieri led the Devils with 45 points, which ranked just 91st overall. Increased production up front largely depends on Hischier and Hughes. Hischier, who had 14 goals and 36 points in 58 games, is developing into a top two-way player and inked a seven-year, $50.75-million extension last season.

Hughes disappointed with just seven goals in 61 games, but given that he's 20 until May, the club isn't panicking. Nikita Gusev (44 points), Jesper Bratt (32 points) and newcomer Andreas Johnsson are expected to produce on the top two lines. Reliable vet Travis Zajac is approaching his 1,000th game with the franchise.

DEFENSE The Devils expected much more from Subban in his first season. The 31-year-old had a career-low 18 points, leading to concerns that the former Norris Trophy winner's best days are behind him. With Andy Greene and Sami Vatanen traded in late-season moves, the club is counting on Subban.

Fitzgerald sent a fifth-rounder to Columbus for injury-prone Ryan Murray, who becomes the team's top defense-first blueliner. He'll provide sorely needed grit and leadership. Shero also added Dmitry Kulikov, who can play both sides and move up and down the lineup. Damon Severson and power-play specialist Will Butcher return, while Connor Carrick and promising rookie Ty Smith are expected to have increased roles.

GOALTENDING Talk about an upgrade: the Devils bought out struggling vet Cory Schneider and added 36-year-old free agent Corey Crawford, who played at an elite level last season, with a two-year, $7.8-million deal. The two-time Cup champ with Chicago is expected to share the net with 24-year-old Mackenzie Blackwood, who was stellar at times, posting a .915 save percentage and three shutouts in 47 games.

SPECIAL TEAMS The most notable power-play addition might not be a player. Mark Recchi, the 22-year NHL veteran, joined Ruff's staff after three seasons coaching the power play in Pittsburgh. He takes over a unit that finished 21st. Palmieri is a reliable sniper. Can Recchi get more out of the promising Gusev, who struggled early in his first NHL season but finished strong? The penalty kill, meanwhile, was a bright spot, ranking seventh, but will need to adjust after losing Greene and Blake Coleman.

INTANGIBLES Ruff, 60, probably has suit jackets older than many of the players he'll be coaching in his 20th season behind an NHL bench. Can the old-school leader get the most out of one of the league's youngest rosters? Hischier, just 21, is likely to be named the team's next captain.

ROOKIES Smith, the 17th overall pick in 2018, is expected to crack the roster after averaging well over a point per game in three seasons with WHL Spokane. Nathan Bastian, a 2016 draftee, has an outside shot to earn a spot up front.

X-FACTOR Johnsson, who had eight goals and 21 points in 43 games for Toronto last season after scoring 20 goals and 43 points the year before, was acquired in a salary-centered swap for Joey Anderson. With his quickness and offensive touch, Johnsson is a natural choice to complement Hughes or Hischier in the top-six.

THE BRASS This is Fitzgerald's show now. He convinced ownership to remove the "interim" tag from his title by selling them on a rebuild that peaks as Hughes and Hischier are hitting their primes. The result is a youth movement and a restocked organization with high-level talent.

FUTURE WATCH

THE DEVILS HAD A huge draft, ringing up three first-rounders in Alexander Holtz, Dawson Mercer and Shakir Mukhamadullin while also grabbing one of the best netminders in third-rounder Nico Daws and late-round gems in Ethan Edwards and Artem Shlaine. With Jack Hughes still a teenager and Ty Smith on the way, the cavalry is coming in New Jersey, though it will still take time. The franchise made 19 picks combined in the past two drafts – that's the way you rebuild. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. ALEXANDER HOLTZ, RW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Djurgarden (Swe.)
Quick hands and quick feet help make him a true sniper. Gets to scoring areas effortlessly.
ACQUIRED 7th overall, 2020 NHL '21-22

2. NOLAN FOOTE, LW
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Kelowna (WHL)
Adding speed to his hard shot and big body would do wonders for the power forward.
ACQUIRED From TB, Feb. 2020 NHL '20-21

3. DAWSON MERCER, RW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Chicoutimi (QMJHL)
Two-way winger has good hockey sense in all three zones. Tireless worker but average skater.
ACQUIRED 18th overall, 2020 NHL '22-23

4. TY SMITH, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Spokane (WHL)
Two-way defender with exceptional playmaking skills was named CHL's defenseman of the year.
ACQUIRED 17th overall, 2018 NHL '20-21

5. KEVIN BAHL, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Ottawa (OHL)
Imposing blueliner offers plenty of promise on defensive side. Mobility is the biggest concern.
ACQUIRED From Ari, Dec. 2019 NHL '21-22

6. NIKITA OKHOTYUK, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Ottawa (OHL)
Plays aggressive, combative style to effectively take away time and space from opponents.
ACQUIRED 61st overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

7. SHAKIR MUKHAMADULLIN, D
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Ufa (KHL)
Lanky, smooth-skating D-man plays physical game. Good gap control. He can dangle a bit, too.
ACQUIRED 20th overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

8. JANNE KUOKKANEN, LW
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Charlotte (AHL)
Hip surgery did not slow down this slick, offensive maestro. Produces everywhere he plays.
ACQUIRED From Car, Feb. 2020 NHL '20-21

9. DANIIL MISYUL, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Yaroslavl (KHL)
Showed off his range and mobility at WJC. Uses his size well but still working on breakout skills.
ACQUIRED 70th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

10. GRAEME CLARKE, RW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Ottawa (OHL)
Continued to showcase his dazzling speed and shot after recovering from torn labrum.
ACQUIRED 80th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

BY DENIS GORMAN

THE NEW YORK Islanders unquestionably took a step forward in 2019-20, advancing to their first Eastern Conference final since 1992-93. Will a berth in the Stanley Cup final – or the franchise's fifth Cup – be in the offing in the third year under the stewardship of Lou Lamoriello and Barry Trotz? Prior to the arrival of the decorated GM-coach tandem in 2018, the Islanders often operated like a top spinning on an oil-covered sheet of ice in a funhouse hall of mirrors.

After a deep playoff run and a taste of postseason success, the club sets its sights on a championship quest – and they'll make that push without any external help after a quiet off-season. With big money tied up in a handful of core players – and a big raise owed to RFA Mathew Barzal, the club's MVP – there wasn't much room to maneuver.

OFFENSE The Islanders' offensive attack won't put a scare into many opponents. At the time of the pandemic-induced pause, New York was 24th in goals, with an offense-by-committee approach led by Barzal, who topped the team with 60 points in 68 games.

Brock Nelson (26 goals, including 22 at 5-on-5) was one of nine Isles players to hit double digits in goals. Among those was top-pair D-man Ryan Pulock, who found the net 10 times. Despite the balanced goal distribution, only Barzal and Nelson topped 50 points – Josh Bailey and Anders Lee tied for third with 43 points apiece.

DEFENSE It is an acknowledgement of the obvious that the whole of the Islanders' defense corps is greater than the sum of its parts. New York's blueline checks off all the boxes, highlighted by the top pairing of Pulock and Adam Pelech. The duo was a staple for 38 regular-season games before Pelech was lost for the remainder of the regular season with an Achilles injury in early January. He returned for 21 games before missing the season-ending loss to Tampa Bay in Game 6 of the Eastern Conference final with a broken wrist.

Devon Toews, who averaged 20 minutes in the regular season and playoffs, couldn't be squeezed in under the cap and was traded to Colorado. That opens an opportunity for 20-year-old Noah Dobson to step up and fill those minutes.

GOALTENDING The question entering last season was how the Islanders would adapt with Semyon Varlamov replacing 2018-19 Vezina Trophy finalist Robin Lehner, who left in free agency. Varlamov fared well, compiling a 19-14-6 record in 45 games with a .914 save percentage. Presumed goalie-of-the-future Ilya Sorokin signed in July after his KHL contract with the CSKA Moscow expired. He should see a fair share of the crease as the season goes along.

SPECIAL TEAMS New York's special teams are a mixed bag. Despite having an all-world playmaker in Barzal, a heavy point shot in Pulock and a net-front presence in captain Lee, the power play finished the regular season tied for 24th with aa 17.3-percent efficiency and dropped to 15.4 percent in the playoffs (16th). The penalty kill improved in the playoffs after ranking 15th during the regular season.

INTANGIBLES Lamoriello, Trotz and teammates routinely talked about Jean-Gabriel Pageau being a seamless fit after the center was acquired from Ottawa in a deadline deal. Pageau reflects the broader group, comprised of hard workers who mind the details and bring maturity to the ice. It's a culture that begins with the GM and funnels throughout the organization.

ROOKIES Lamoriello likes his prospect pool, specifically the skill possessed by right winger Oliver Wahlstrom and left winger Kieffer Bellows. That twosome – as well as center Otto Koivula – will contend for roster spots.

X-FACTOR In the days immediately following the team's playoff exit, Lamoriello stressed that the Islanders will play this season at Nassau Coliseum, which will be their last hurrah at the venerable barn on Hempstead Turnpike. Why does this matter? The team compiled a solid 20-9-6 record at home last season.

THE BRASS It was not all that long ago that the Islanders were in the running for Most Dysfunctional Professional Sports Franchise in the New York City Area. Now they might be the best-run organization in the region. Credit must be given to co-owners Scott Malkin and Jon Ledecky, who have allowed Lamoriello and Trotz the freedom and resources to oversee the hockey operations as they see fit.

ILYA SOROKIN

FUTURE WATCH

WITH NO PICKS UNTIL the third round, the Islanders had a modest 2020 draft class led by hardworking winger Alexander Ljungkrantz. But with New York's sturdy roster making the team a tough out in the playoffs, the need for youth is diminished right now. Hot-shot goalie prospect Ilya Sorokin arrives after an exemplary start to his career in the KHL, while skilled winger Oliver Wahlstrom ducked over to Sweden (he's American with Swedish roots) to keep himself sharp. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. ILYA SOROKIN, G
AGE 25 2019-20 TEAM CSKA Moscow (KHL)
The athletic marvel's career KHL averages: .930 SP and 1.70 GAA. His potential is uncapped.
ACQUIRED 78th overall, 2014 NHL '20-21

2. OLIVER WAHLSTROM, RW
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Bridgeport (AHL)
First draft pick of the Lamoriello era was a dandy. A goal-scoring ace with great hands and motor.
ACQUIRED 11th overall, 2018 NHL '21-22

3. KIEFFER BELLOWS, LW
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Bridgeport (AHL)
Scratched after a disappointing start, but skilled winger rebounded with 15 goals in next 26 games.
ACQUIRED 19th overall, 2016 NHL '20-21

4. BODE WILDE, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Saginaw (OHL)
Puck-moving defenseman with a quick release. Big and physical but struggles to close the gap.
ACQUIRED 41st overall, 2018 NHL '22-23

5. OTTO KOIVULA, LW
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Bridgeport (AHL)
Power forward with scoring ability and soft hands. Controls the middle of the ice with imposing size.
ACQUIRED 120th overall, 2016 NHL '21-22

6. SIMON HOLMSTROM, RW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Bridgeport (AHL)
Struggled to produce after hip, thumb and head injuries. A slick-skating finisher with upside.
ACQUIRED 23rd overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

7. SAMUEL BOLDUC, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Sherbrooke (QMJHL)
Sizable defender averaged a point per game after he was traded. Mobile on the power play.
ACQUIRED 57th overall, 2019 NHL '24-25

8. JAKE PIVONKA, C
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Notre Dame (Big Ten)
Son of ex-NHLer Michal excelled with more defensive responsibilities as a sophomore.
ACQUIRED 103rd overall, 2018 NHL '23-24

9. RUSLAN ISKHAKOV, C
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Connecticut (HE)
Slight center added improved finishing to his lethal speed and stickhandling as a sophomore.
ACQUIRED 43rd overall, 2018 NHL '24-25

10. ALEX LJUNGKRANTZ, LW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Brynas Jr. (Swe.)
Grinding winger at his best along the boards and in the corners. Powerful shooter.
ACQUIRED 90th overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

AFTER A SWIFT and successful teardown, the Rangers march on with youngsters.

The two oldest players on the youngest team in the East last season – and key contributors over the past 15 years – are no longer on Broadway: future Hall of Famer Henrik Lundqvist, the team's longtime backbone, was bought out and signed with Washington, and veteran defenseman Marc Staal was traded to Detroit. After Jesper Fast opted for a three-year deal with Carolina, that left Chris Kreider as the last player remaining from the 2014-15 squad that went to the conference final.

The transformation, which started in early 2018, accelerated with a victory in the draft lottery and the selection of consensus No. 1 pick Alexis Lafreniere, who turned 19 in October. With the frozen salary cap, the Rangers had to make room for the ultra-skilled winger and other prospects, including 2019 No. 2 pick Kaapo Kakko, and some arbitration-eligible RFAs: Ryan Strome, Brendan Lemieux, Tony DeAngelo and goalie Alexandar Georgiev.

OFFENSE Returning are the top two scorers, dynamic Artemi Panarin and center Mika Zibanejad, as well as Kreider, who signed a seven-year extension last season. Pavel Buchnevich made strides with 16 goals and 46 points. Along with Kakko and Lafreniere, the Rangers boast six formidable forwards.

Strome should be the No. 2 center behind Zibanejad, but the bottom six is tricky to predict. Expect coach David Quinn to start by mixing and matching with one of the youngsters above, plus center/winger Filip Chytil, Vitali Kravtsov, pivot Brett Howden and wingers Lemieux, Julien Gauthier and Phillip Di Giuseppe.

DeAngelo and rookie Adam Fox packed the most punch from the blueline, combining for 95 points.

DEFENSE A team that finished seventh in the Metro Division and was swept by Carolina in the qualifying round isn't quite locked in on the blueline. The defense is unsettled behind Jacob Trouba, DeAngelo, Fox and Ryan Lindgren.

Brendan Smith, who rotated between defense, the fourth line and AHL Hartford, could end up in the minors again to preserve cap space. Jack Johnson, 33, was an inexpensive depth addition.

There's an opening for Libor Hajek, 22, who was loaned to the Czech League. First-rounder K'Andre Miller, who spent the summer with fitness guru Ben Prentiss, will get a look, as will Nils Lundkvist, a 2018 first-rounder, and big Matthew Robertson, a 2019 second-rounder.

GOALTENDING Replacing 'The King' is Igor 'The Czar' Shesterkin, 25, who capably assumed the No. 1 role late last season. Georgiev, who started 32 games, is the presumptive backup. Shesterkin, a rising star who's entering his first full NHL season, was 10-2-0 with a .932 save percentage but aggravated a groin injury just before the qualifying round and allowed three goals in the series-clinching loss to Carolina.

MIKA ZIBANEJAD

Former Devils veteran Keith Kinkaid signed in October.

SPECIAL TEAMS New York ranked seventh on the power play, and that should keep rolling with units intact and the arrival of Lafreniere. But the Rangers were 23rd on the penalty kill, which lacked structure. The PK should be boosted by longtime NHL coach Jacques Martin. He takes over as an assistant, replacing Lindy Ruff, who was named New Jersey's coach in July. On the minus side, Fast, perhaps the team's best defensive forward last year, is gone.

INTANGIBLES When the Rangers are on their game, they play north-south with speed and refuse to surrender while behind. They're loaded with youth from the net out but need depth at center and more structure on defense. They also need to limit lapses and find ways to be consistently hard to play against.

ROOKIES All eyes will be on Lafreniere, who scored 35 goals and 112 points in 52 games in the QMJHL last year, as well as the unproven Shesterkin. Will Kravtsov and Hajek stick? Miller and Lundkvist are probably a year away.

X-FACTOR How much did NHL experience help youngsters such as Kakko, Fox, Chytil, Howden, Lindgren and the goaltending tandem? Success hinges on their growth. And do the Rangers need to add more grind and toughness into the mix to succeed?

THE BRASS President John Davidson and GM Jeff Gorton continued their push to get younger by finding a trading partner for Staal and buying out Lundqvist, and they were fortunate with the lottery win. A playoff spot is an immediate target.

FUTURE WATCH

WHEN YOU GET THE first pick overall, your draft is already off to a great start, and the Rangers got a game-breaker in winger Alexis Lafreniere. But New York didn't stop there: physical two-way defenseman Braden Schneider was also picked in the first round, while fifth-rounder Evan Vierling could prove to be a steal. In terms of previous draft picks, Vitali Kravtsov is flourishing in the KHL, while K'Andre Miller is close to helping out with his two-way game. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. ALEXIS LAFRENIERE, LW

IT WAS YET another future-focused off-season for the Ottawa Senators.

As one of the seven teams that weren't part of the season restart, because they were too low in the standings, the Senators haven't suited up since a 3-2 loss to Los Angeles on March 11.

Armed with the No. 3, No. 5 and No. 28 selections in the first round of the October draft, the Senators took German winger Tim Stuetzle with their top pick. At No. 5, they nabbed defenseman Jake Sanderson from USA Hockey's National Team Development Program. Then, with the 28th pick, they selected center Ridly Greig, who's plying his trade with WHL Brandon.

GM Pierre Dorion upgraded the roster by swinging four deals. He added two-time Stanley Cup-winning goalie Matt Murray from Pittsburgh, physical D-men Erik Gudbranson (Anaheim) and Josh Brown (Florida) and winger Austin Watson (Nashville). Dorion also signed prized top-six winger Evgenii Dadonov, who scored 25 goals last season, and a reclamation project in winger Alex Galchenyuk. The Sens feel they're headed in the right direction, with a roster full of young talent surrounded by veteran leadership.

OFFENSE The Senators had trouble scoring goals last season, and that's a big challenge for them going into this year. Brady Tkachuk, Connor Brown and Dadonov will be relied on for goals.

The club needs center Colin White to have a bounce-back season, and the hope is Logan Brown will earn a spot with a good camp. Drake Batherson, Josh Norris and Alex Formenton are all on the cusp of making the jump to the big club after standout seasons in the AHL with Belleville.

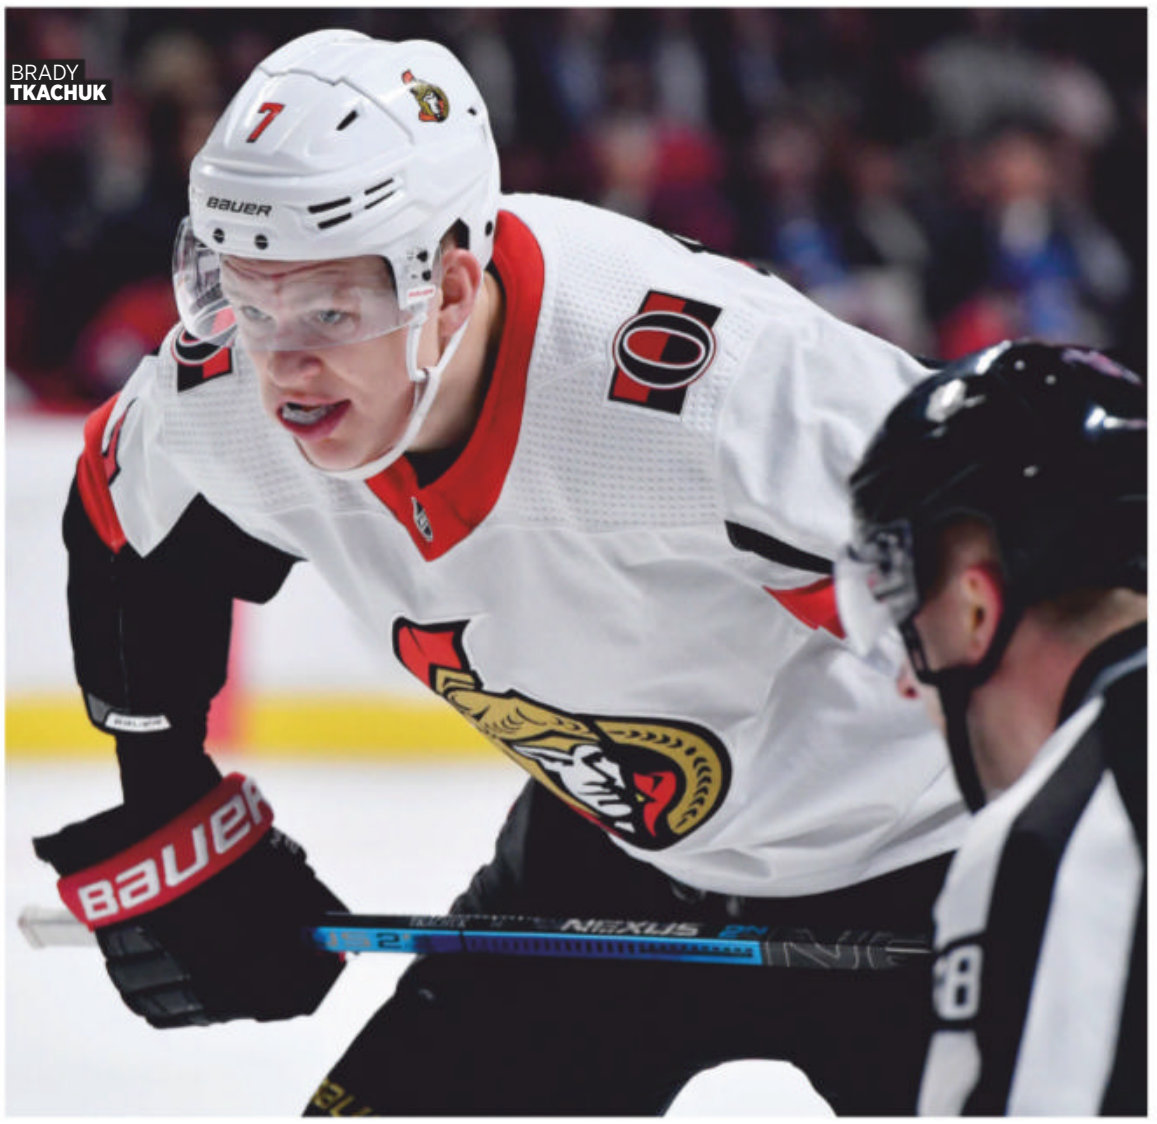
On the back end, Thomas Chabot is going to have to help provide the offense, while the hope is prospect Erik Brannstrom can make the leap to Ottawa.

DEFENSE Coach D.J. Smith likes his team to be difficult to play against, and this was addressed with off-season additions, namely Brown and Gudbranson. Nikita Zaitsev comes back to partner with Chabot, but from there the pairings will change. Mark Borowiecki was allowed to walk as a UFA, which is a big loss in the dressing room and on the ice.

Mike Reilly and Brannstrom should round out the group, but Chabot will be the straw that stirs the drink.

GOALTENDING After a decade in the net, the Sens told Craig Anderson they weren't going to offer him a contract and decided to go in another direction. Initially, the plan was for Anders Nilsson and Marcus Hogberg to carry the load. That had to change because Nilsson hasn't fully recovered from a concussion he sustained in mid-December. Dorion traded for Murray and promptly signed him to a four-year, $25-million deal. That should stabilize the net until some of the young goalies, including Joey Daccord, are ready to take the reins.

ROOKIES Stuetzle broke his hand in practice during the off-season but should be ready to come to North America for camp. There will be a lot of excitement surrounding his arrival. Formenton, Batherson, Norris and Brannstrom all have the potential to be key players.



TKACHUK: ERIC BOLTE-USA TODAY SPORTS

SPECIAL TEAMS This is an area where the Sens must improve. The club ranked last overall on the power play and tied for 28th on the penalty kill. That's clearly not going to cut it for this team to improve. Chabot will be the quarterback on the power play, and he'll play big minutes again. Brannstrom will also get power-play time if he makes the squad. A solid season from Murray will help the penalty kill.

INTANGIBLES Last season's alternate captains – Jean-Gabriel Pageau, Ron Hainsey and Borowiecki – have moved on, so it's time for the young players to step up. The club won't have a captain again, but the likes of Tkachuk and Chabot are expected to help fill that void. Murray and Dadonov have succeeded in the past, but neither has changed teams until now. They'll both be counted on to adapt quickly.

X-FACTOR Goaltending and the development of the many key young players will determine whether the Sens suffer another basement finish or begin climbing the standings and building a winning culture. Murray's ability to remain healthy, in particular, will greatly impact the Sens' outlook.

THE BRASS Owner Eugene Melnyk was thrilled with the changes made in the off-season. He's on the same page with Dorion, and Smith knew he was getting in on the ground floor when he took over behind the bench. H

FUTURE WATCH

OTTAWA USED ITS TWO top-five picks wisely, grabbing a high-end forward in Tim Stuetzle and a fantastic defenseman in Jake Sanderson – the latter continuing a fascinating run of North Dakota commits drafted by the Sens. The Senators have a ton of youngsters vying for future roster spots, from rushing defenseman Erik Brannstrom to AHL rookie-of-the-year center Josh Norris. The internal competition will be fierce, and that's great for the rebuilding squad. – RYAN KENNEDY

JUST BECAUSE THE Flyers won their first playoff series since 2012 and rallied from a 3-1 deficit to take the Islanders to a Game 7 in their Eastern Conference semifinal didn't mean they were about to stand pat.

GM Chuck Fletcher made that clear by signing free-agent defenseman Erik Gustafsson to a one-year, $3-million contract while allowing UFAs Tyler Pitlick and Derek Grant to leave, opening up roster space for up-and-coming talent. Gustafsson was brought in to fill the vacancy left by Matt Niskanen's unexpected retirement.

Fletcher hopes returning forwards Oskar Lindblom (recovering from Ewing's sarcoma, a form of bone cancer) and Nolan Patrick (who sat out last season with a chronic migraine condition) can upgrade the scoring pool and help the Flyers make a deeper post-season run.

Fletcher addressed the team's future goal production by using the No. 23 overall pick on Tyson Foerster, whose 18 power-play goals led the OHL.

With a blend of youth and experienced leadership, the Flyers have been drawing a lot of attention from their faithful fandom.

OFFENSE Coach Alain Vigneault's squad made a vast improvement over the previous season, going from minus-37 to plus-36 in goal differential. Vigneault spread out his scorers across several lines, getting at least 19 goals from five forwards.

Travis Konecny led forwards in goals (24) and points (61) while Ivan Provorov topped the defense with 13 goals and 36 points. Sean Couturier had another exceptional offensive season with 59 points, while also supplying masterful defense.

The prospect of full seasons from promising wingers Joel Farabee and Nicolas Aube-Kubel (who played 52 and 36 games last year) should add more offensive punch.

DEFENSE Getting the 28-year-old Gustafsson was important from an experience standpoint because he and Justin Braun are the only two blueliners over 27. If Gustafsson and Provorov comprise the top unit, the second pairing of Philippe Myers and Travis Sanheim likely remains intact. The Flyers hope Shayne Gostisbehere can return to his 2017-18 form after recovering from a pair of knee surgeries.

Niskanen's on-ice and off-ice leadership will be missed, especially by Provorov. Unless Gustafsson can repeat his 17-goal, 60-point season from a couple years back with Chicago, which is unlikely, the Flyers have some work to do on defense.

GOALTENDING Carter Hart made positive steps in his second NHL season, particularly in the playoffs when he posted back-to-back shutouts against Montreal. No doubt, Hart was pleased the Flyers re-signed mentor Brian Elliott to a one-year extension. Hart was especially brilliant at Wells Fargo Center last season, going 20-3-2 with a 1.63 goals-against average and .943 save percentage. After years of questions in the crease, goaltending may be the Flyers' biggest strength.

SPECIAL TEAMS After finishing in the bottom 10 in both the power play and penalty kill in 2018-19, the Flyers wound up 11th on the PK and 14th on the PP. Selke Trophy winner Couturier is a standout on both units. Provorov and Claude Giroux tied for the team lead in power-play goals with seven. The Flyers took a more aggressive attitude on the penalty kill last season. On the power play, Konecny chipped in with five goals, many in crucial situations.

INTANGIBLES Giroux continues to lead by example and trails only Hall of Famer Bobby Clarke for most games as Flyers captain. Team chemistry was strong in the second half of the year, and that was as evident during a season-closing nine-game win streak and undefeated East round-robin tournament. Vigneault's coaching excellence was recognized as he was a Jack Adams Award finalist.

ROOKIES Morgan Frost heads the list of hopefuls. He played 20 NHL games last year. Also watch for Connor Bunnaman (21 games) and Carsen Twarynski (15), as well as Linus Sandin, Tanner Laczynski, Maksim Sushko and Isaac Ratcliffe, to get a look.

X-FACTOR The Flyers need more from their veterans, namely Jakub Voracek (12 goals), James van Riemsdyk (40 points) and Gostisbehere (12 points in 42 games). Hart must continue to improve, especially on the road. Last year he had an .857 save percentage away from home.

THE BRASS Vigneault quickly won trust with his open communication, detailed preparation and fairness doling out ice time. Ownership, led by Comcast Spectacor's Dave Scott, stays in the background and lets Fletcher do his work. The GM has made a series of win-now moves in his two years on the job.

FUTURE WATCH

FOR THE FLYERS, IT'S not a matter of depth, but who will step up first? Philadelphia has a flowing pipeline with a number of prospects on the cusp – some with NHL experience, such as Morgan Frost, and some without, such as standouts Yegor Zamula and Wade Allison. With 2019 first-rounder Cam York back at Michigan and 2018 top pick Jay O'Brien getting a second chance with BU after a rough go at Providence, the Flyers are keeping a keen eye on the NCAA. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. MORGAN FROST, C
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Lehigh Valley (AHL)
Talented pivot with first-line potential. Consistency and effort are key to success at next level.
ACQUIRED 27th overall, 2017 NHL '20-21

2. TY FOERSTER, RW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Barrie (OHL)
Scoring winger plays gritty style and has a good release. Skating is suspect but great work ethic.
ACQUIRED 23rd overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

3. CAM YORK, D
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Michigan (Big Ten)
Speedy skater showed impressive defensive acumen as freshman. Power-play quarterback.
ACQUIRED 14th overall, 2019 NHL '22-23

4. YEGOR ZAMULA, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Calgary (WHL)
Undrafted gem overlooked due to slight build. Flourished on offense until back surgery.
ACQUIRED Free agent, Sept. 2018 NHL '23-24

5. ISAAC RATCLIFFE, LW
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Lehigh Valley (AHL)
Appealing combination of size and speed. Strong finish to his first pro season after a slow start.
ACQUIRED 35th overall, 2017 NHL '22-23

6. WADE ALLISON, RW
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM West. Michigan (NCHC)
Bounced back from torn ACL with productive senior season. Aggressive style has taken a toll.
ACQUIRED 52nd overall, 2016 NHL '21-22

7. EMIL ANDRAE, D
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM HV71 Jr. (Fin.)
Pint-sized offensive blueliner plays assertive, creative game. An excellent puck distributor.
ACQUIRED 54th overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

8. BOBBY BRINK, RW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Denver (NCHC)
Diminutive sophomore with quick hands needs to improve his skating stride and strength.
ACQUIRED 34th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

9. TANNER LACZYNSKI, C
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Ohio State (Big Ten)
Intelligent and skilled forward who can play multiple positions. A true leader as a senior.
ACQUIRED 169th overall, 2016 NHL '22-23

10. GERMAN RUBTSOV, C
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Lehigh Valley (AHL)
Defensively responsible agitator with raw offensive skills. Will require patience.
ACQUIRED 22nd overall, 2016 NHL '22-23

IT'S A MATTER up for debate: just how far open is the championship window for Pittsburgh and their core stars? Sidney Crosby (33), Evgeni Malkin (34) and Kris Letang (33) won Stanley Cups together in 2009, 2016 and 2017.

After two successive post-season flameouts – getting swept by the Islanders in the first round in 2019 and falling to Montreal in the bubble qualifying round in 2020 – GM Jim Rutherford delivered on a promise to make changes.

The splashiest moves were trading goaltender Matt Murray to Ottawa, dealing winger Patric Hornqvist to Florida and acquiring right winger Kasperi Kapanen from Toronto.

KEY DEPARTURES & UNSIGNED UFAs Matt Murray, G; Justin Schultz, D; Patric Hornqvist, RW; Conor Sheary, RW; Jack Johnson, D; Dominik Simon, LW; Patrick Marleau, LW; Nick Bjugstad, C

Kapanen, a Penguins first-round pick in 2014 before he was shipped to the Leafs for Phil Kessel, is a candidate to join Crosby and high-scoring left winger Jake Guentzel on the top line. Hornqvist was a heart-and-soul guy who played a physical game and hard minutes in front of the net, but he's 34 and has worn down.

OFFENSE Things still revolve around Crosby and Malkin, although wingers Guentzel, 26, and Kapanen, 24, will be prominent in the attack, while right winger Bryan Rust, 28, has quietly become a strong top-six guy.

Jason Zucker, acquired from Minnesota late last season, will most likely be Malkin's left winger. He scored a career-best 33 goals in 2017-18 but hasn't come close since.

Letang is also counted on to continue to be an elite offensive defenseman, along with the emerging John Marino.

The revolving door at third-line center now features UFA signing Mark Jankowski. The 6-foot-4 pivot dropped from 32 points to seven last season in Calgary, but he'll be given a clean slate in Pittsburgh.

Candidates to fill out the bottom six include Jared McCann, Brandon Tanev, Colton Sceviour and Evan Rodrigues. There's also Teddy Blueger, Sam Lafferty and Anthony Angello. Zach Aston-Reese will miss the start of the season because of shoulder surgery.

DEFENSE Marino notched six goals and 26 points in 56 games as a rookie, playing a strong two-way game and demonstrating poise and hockey IQ beyond his 23 years. He's expected to remain with Marcus Pettersson.

Letang anchors the top pairing with Brian Dumoulin, who has developed more of an all-round game. The bottom pairing received a shakeup, as Justin Schultz was not re-signed and Jack Johnson was bought out. Vying for time will be Mike Matheson, obtained from Florida in the Hornqvist deal, free agent signee Cody Ceci, Chad Ruhwedel and Juuso Riikola.

GOALTENDING It looks to be Jarry or bust. As with Murray after Marc-Andre Fleury went to Vegas, Jarry enters a season as the undisputed No. 1 for the first time. He wrested the job from Murray last season, going 20-12-1 with a 2.43 goals-against average and .921 save percentage. Jarry, 25, was a second-round pick in 2013 and needed a few years to develop. Casey DeSmith is projected to be the backup.

ROOKIES Defenseman Pierre-Olivier Joseph, obtained from Arizona in the Kessel trade, is the most intriguing prospect who could debut, along with forwards Sam Poulin, a 2019 first-round pick, and 2019 third-rounder Nathan Lagare.

EVGENI MALKIN

MALKIN: SERGEI BELSKI-USA TODAY SPORTS

SPECIAL TEAMS With the available firepower, the Pens need more from their power play, which didn't find the right chemistry or configuration last season without Kessel manning the left side. Without Hornqvist, someone – perhaps Guentzel – will take on the net-front role, although it's doubtful anyone can match the gusto Hornqvist brought. The penalty kill tied for eighth, and most of the main characters – including Letang and Dumoulin – return.

INTANGIBLES It won't matter what changes the Penguins made or make if core players Crosby, Malkin and Letang don't stay healthy and play to a level that belies their over-30 status. To a lesser extent, the team is lacking in toughness beyond Tanev.

X-FACTOR It's all about the playoffs – not just making it to the post-season for what would be the 15th straight year but also making some noise. If not, explosive changes could follow.

THE BRASS Although coach Mike Sullivan remains in Rutherford's good graces, Sullivan's assistants – Jacques Martin, Mark Recchi and Sergei Gonchar – were jettisoned and replaced by Mike Vellucci, promoted after serving as the team's AHL coach-GM, and Todd Reirden, who returned to his former role after being fired in Washington.

FUTURE WATCH

THIS JUST IN: Pittsburgh has traded this Future Watch report for a veteran winger. Just kidding. But the pipeline is barren thanks to years of going all-in for the Cup. The 2020 draft only marginally helped. The Pens didn't pick in the top 50, and their first two selections were goalies (though Joel Blomqvist and Calle Clang are good ones). That puts pressure on Samuel Poulin, Nathan Legare and Pierre-Olivier Joseph. The last time Pittsburgh had seven picks in a draft was 2012. – RYAN KENNEDY

Burly point-producer with hardnosed approach and tantalizing talent. Skating is a weak point.
ACQUIRED 21st overall, 2019 NHL '20-21

2. NATHAN LEGARE, RW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Baie-Comeau (QMJHL)
Poulin's childhood friend has similar skills: scorer with size and limited skating. Shoot-first attitude.
ACQUIRED 74th overall, 2019 NHL '22-23

3. JOEL BLOMQVIST, G
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Karpat Jr. (Fin.)
Composed, efficient netminder moves well from side to side and focuses on positioning.
ACQUIRED 52nd overall, 2020 NHL '25-26

4. CALLE CLANG, G
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Rogle Jr. (Swe.)
Agile and square in the crease, but sometimes has mental lapses after a stretch of good play.
ACQUIRED 77th overall, 2020 NHL '25-26

5. PIERRE-OLIVIER JOSEPH, D
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM W-B/Scranton (AHL)
Top prospect on the back end has made strides defensively and shows promise on offense.
ACQUIRED From Ari, June 2019 NHL '21-22

6. KASPER BJORKQVIST, LW
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM W-B/Scranton (AHL)
Physical specimen with complete game. Knee, shoulder surgeries ruined his debut AHL season.
ACQUIRED 61st overall, 2016 NHL '22-23

7. VALTTERI PUUSTINEN, RW
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM HPK (Fin.)
High-end hands, shot and speed make him a fit for the power play. Shies away from physicality.
ACQUIRED 203rd overall, 2019 NHL '22-23

8. JONATHAN GRUDEN, LW
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM London (OHL)
Sens draft pick came over in Matt Murray trade. High-energy player with good finishing hands.
ACQUIRED From Ott, Oct. 2020 NHL '23-24

9. ANTHONY ANGELLO, C
AGE 24 2019-20 TEAM W-B/Scranton (AHL)
Budding shutdown center tied for team lead in goals. Penchant for taking penalties is an issue.
ACQUIRED 145th overall, 2014 NHL '21-22

10. JESPER LINDGREN, D
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Toronto (AHL)
Leafs draft pick came over with Kasperi Kapanen. Right-shot defender plays tight, defensive game.
ACQUIRED From Tor, Oct. 2020 NHL '22-23

A FIRST-ROUND EXIT is not what St. Louis had in mind when it thought about defending the 2019 Stanley Cup. But after leading the Western Conference at the pause in mid-March, that's exactly what happened, when the Blues went 0-2-1 in round-robin play and then lost their opening-round series 4-2 to Vancouver.

Now they must learn to live without captain Alex Pietrangelo, who signed a seven-year, $61.6 million contract with Vegas. General manager Doug Armstrong softened the blow by signing UFA defenseman Torey Krug to a seven-year, $45.5-million deal. The former Bruin has the seventh-most points of any defenseman (335) since 2013-14.

KEY DEPARTURES & UNSIGNED UFAs Alex Pietrangelo, D; Jake Allen, G; Jay Bouwmeester, D; Troy Brouwer, RW

But Pietrangelo will be missed, and without Vladimir Tarasenko, who underwent a third shoulder surgery this summer, the Blues have a lot of questions to answer after last season's early exit.

OFFENSE Tarasenko played just 10 games before his injury, and the Blues managed fine without him, finishing No. 14 in scoring. But they lack another quality finisher. The organization that hasn't had a 30-goal scorer other than Tarasenko since Alexander Steen scored 33 in 2013-14.

The Blues do have a formidable top six with David Perron and Brayden Schenn (25 goals apiece last season), along with Jaden Schwartz and Ryan O'Reilly. But they'll need contributions from younger players such as Robert Thomas, who's ready for a larger role, and Jordan Kyrou, who will see more playing time with Tarasenko out.

Meanwhile, the talented blueline should be even more of a threat with Krug.

DEFENSE The Blues will look drastically different without Pietrangelo, who since 2010-11 has led the franchise in ice time. The No. 1 defender role now belongs to Colton Parayko, who logged major ice time last year and has proved capable in his five seasons.

The club will have a more balanced lefty-righty top four with Krug, a 5-foot-9 lefty. But, without Pietrangelo and Jay Bouwmeester, who's expected to retire following a cardiac episode last season, the Blues are losing the size and reach that made them so tough to play against.

The Blues also have Vince Dunn and Hobey Baker winner Scott Perunovich in the fold.

GOALTENDING The pressure is on Jordan Binnington, whose bridge contract expires after this year and no longer has the insulation of Jake Allen (traded to Montreal). Binnington was one of only three 30-win goalies in 2019-20, but he has to redeem himself after a poor post-season. His backup is rookie Ville Husso, a 2014 fourth-rounder who has not played an NHL game.

SPECIAL TEAMS There is a new coach in charge of the power play, with Marc Savard stepping down after one season and Jim Montgomery stepping in. The unit ranked No. 3 under Savard. The drop-off could be minimal, however, because of Montgomery's power-play experience and Krug's expected impact. Over the past four seasons, Krug has 107 power-play points, tied with John Carlson for the most among D-men. There's a lot of work to do on the penalty kill, which was No. 18 before allowing 10 goals on 39 shorthanded playoffs situations.

INTANGIBLES The Blues need a new captain, and the frontrunner is O'Reilly, who won the Conn Smythe and Selke Trophies in 2019. He's strengthened the team's culture with his exemplary work ethic since arriving from Buffalo in 2018. The Blues will have a new personality without Pietrangelo and are also looking to improve their toughness – which led to the signing of rugged two-time Cup champion Kyle Clifford.

ROOKIES Armstrong is putting faith in Husso, who is expected to play around a quarter of the games. After being drafted in 2014, he stayed in Finland for two seasons before making his way to North America for AHL seasoning. The 6-foot-3 netminder, 25, is overdue for an opportunity.

JORDAN BINNINGTON

BINNINGTON: PERRY NELSON-USA TODAY SPORTS

X-FACTOR The Blues traded for right-defenseman Justin Faulk in 2019 and signed him to a seven-year extension, bracing for Pietrangelo's possible exit. After an underwhelming first season in St. Louis, Faulk will be more of a focal point, perhaps partnering with Krug, his 'D' partner at the 2015 World Championship.

THE BRASS The signing of Krug shows that Blues' ownership has committed to spending to the $81.5 million cap despite lost revenues from the pandemic. What's uncertain is if Armstrong made the right call not meeting Pietrangelo's demands.

FUTURE WATCH

FOR A TEAM THAT recently won the Stanley Cup, the Blues are in decent shape when it comes to prospects. Scott Perunovich turned pro after an incredible NCAA career with Minnesota-Duluth, while Klim Kostin took great steps in the AHL last season. In the crease, Joel Hofer helped Canada win gold at the world juniors. In 2020, St. Louis drafted players at every position, with Jake Neighbours as the headliner. He brings a great battle level up front. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. JAKE NEIGHBOURS, LW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Edmonton (WHL)
Physical power forward is excellent on the forecheck. Strong on puck, good hockey sense.
ACQUIRED 26th overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

2. KLIM KOSTIN, RW
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM San Antonio (AHL)
Power forward with plenty of playmaking skills. Good size and speed with improved consistency.
ACQUIRED 31st overall, 2017 NHL '20-21

3. SCOTT PERUNOVICH, D
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Minn.-Duluth (NCHC)
Creative, shifty and physical blueliner turned pro after winning Hobey Baker Award as a junior.
ACQUIRED 45th overall, 2018 NHL '21-22

4. JOEL HOFER, G
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Portland (WHL)
Towering, lanky netminder had a standout performance for Canada at the world juniors.
ACQUIRED 107th overall, 2018 NHL '24-25

5. NIKITA ALEXANDROV, C
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Charlottetown (QMJHL)
Comparable to Tyler Bozak. Dazzled at the world juniors with eight points in seven games.
ACQUIRED 62nd overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

6. NIKO MIKKOLA, D
AGE 24 2019-20 TEAM San Antonio (AHL)
Physical and solid in his own zone. Won gold at the 2019 worlds with Finland. He's on the cusp.
ACQUIRED 127th overall, 2015 NHL '20-21

7. JAKE WALMAN, D
AGE 24 2019-20 TEAM San Antonio (AHL)
Heavy shot from the point. Better preparation has led to more consistency. Getting close.
ACQUIRED 82nd overall, 2014 NHL '21-22

8. VILLE HUSSO, G
AGE 25 2019-20 TEAM San Antonio (AHL)
Rebounded well from injury-riddled 2018-19 when he was leapfrogged by Jordan Binnington.
ACQUIRED 94th overall, 2014 NHL '21-22

9. ALEXEI TOROPCHENKO, RW
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM San Antonio (AHL)
Big, skilled and skates well, but his production is average. Projects as a middle-six forward.
ACQUIRED 113th overall, 2017 NHL '23-24

10. VADIM ZHERENKO, G
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Dyn. Moscow Jr. (Rus.)
Getting experience with a KHL development team. Athletic with good lateral quickness.
ACQUIRED 208th overall, 2019 NHL '25-26

SAN JOSE'S JOURNEY from Western Conference finalists in 2019 to the basement last season was as rapid as it was stunning. The Sharks endured a horrible October, coach Pete DeBoer was dismissed in December, and after interim coach Bob Boughner took over, injuries to key players secured their fate. Their most notable off-season move wasn't a new arrival but a departure – future Hall of Famer Joe Thornton, who signed with Toronto after 15 seasons in San Jose.

General manager Doug Wilson, who added a few role players in the off-season, has expressed faith the team's core will rebound in 2020-21. That means Erik Karlsson, Tomas Hertl, Timo Meier,

Kevin Labanc and Martin Jones will all have to be better to make a playoff push possible. Further, team chemistry will also have to improve, as captain Joe Pavelski's exit in the 2019 off-season shook the franchise.

OFFENSE An area of weakness last season was a lack of depth up front, particularly at wing. Rather than replace the offense that departed with Pavelski, Gustav Nyquist and Joonas Donskoi, management counted on young players to contribute. That didn't happen, and some – like Labanc, and Marcus Sorensen – regressed instead.

Ryan Donato was acquired from Minnesota and will skate in the top nine, while Matt Nieto returns for his second stint in teal. The Sharks re-signed Patrick Marleau, and while it is difficult to say how much the 41-year-old can still contribute, he sits just 45 games away from breaking Gordie Howe's record for games played.

DEFENSE Naturally, the spotlight will be on Karlsson. While he didn't have a terrible 2019-20, with six goals and 40 points in 56 games before a broken thumb ended his season in mid-February, he made far more defensive miscues and soft plays with the puck than usual. Perhaps groin surgery in the 2019 off-season was at least partially to blame.

Brent Burns' scoring also declined dramatically, while Marc-Edouard Vlasic's regression continued. Burns will likely be paired with Radim Simek, who struggled last season after enduring major knee surgery the previous March, while second-year pro Mario Ferraro will begin on the third pair.

GOALTENDING The duo that combined for the NHL's worst even-strength save percentage in each of the past two seasons is no more. Devan Dubnyk replaces Aaron Dell and will be paired with Martin Jones in a 1A-1B setup. Jones posted an .896 SP the past two seasons. Dubnyk was at .890 last year, but in the six previous seasons his numbers were average to great. The tandem will compete for playing time.

SPECIAL TEAMS Despite finishing 29th in the standings, San Jose had the NHL's top penalty kill. They lost two key pieces, trading Barclay Goodrow to Tampa and allowing Melker Karlsson to walk as a UFA. Expect Nieto to take up minutes on the kill. The power play wasn't as strong, as the Sharks have struggled to use Erik Karlsson and Burns together effectively. Evander Kane was the best weapon with 14 power play goals, fourth in the league, as he took advantage of getting prime time on the top unit for the first time in his career.

INTANGIBLES Many Sharks players, as well as Boughner, mentioned cohesion was an issue. Pavelski was the true heartbeat of the team when he was allowed to depart, and in a dressing room full of big personalities, there were issues. Logan Couture enters his second year as captain and is tasked with helping fix the fractured culture.

ROOKIES The most intriguing prospect is 2018 first-rounder Ryan Merkley, a right-shot defenseman with skill. That's not a position of need, so he may start in the AHL. Also in the mix are 2020 NCAA goals leader John Leonard out of UMass, Arizona State defenseman Brinson Pasichnuk, and 2017 sixth-rounder Sasha Chmelevski, a winger who put up solid numbers in his first AHL season.

X-FACTOR Karlsson's health. Entering the second year of his eight-year, $92-million deal, Karlsson will be counted on to regain his elite form. Were last season's struggles simply because of his recent groin problems or have the numerous injuries caught up with him for good? The Sharks had better hope it's not the latter.

THE BRASS Wilson remains in charge of hockey operations, a role he's had since 2003. Team owner Hasso Plattner gave Wilson a vote of confidence last January when the Sharks were floundering, but it's difficult to know if the GM would survive another bad year. There's no logical successor on staff.

FUTURE WATCH

THE SHARKS HAD A productive draft, and the timing couldn't have been better: San Jose was dead last in Future Watch last year. Though the team didn't pick until late in the first round (landing the nifty Ozzy Wiesblatt), San Jose made nine selections, amassing a promising combination of skill and drive. Second-rounder Tristen Robins has both and was a late riser. The Sharks will have roster spots open for prospects. Noah Gregor and John Leonard are two to watch. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. RYAN MERKLEY, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM London (OHL)
Offensive dynamo was one of major junior's best passers. Undersized and unreliable defensively.
ACQUIRED 21st overall, 2018 NHL '20-21

2. OZZY WIESBLATT, RW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Prince Albert (WHL)
Darting player not shy about going through traffic to generate offense. Needs to bulk up.
ACQUIRED 31st overall, 2020 NHL '22-23

3. JOACHIM BLICHFELD, RW
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM San Jose (AHL)
Natural goal-scorer with outstanding offensive instincts. His 200-foot game must improve.
ACQUIRED 210th overall, 2016 NHL '21-22

4. THOMAS BORDELEAU, C
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM U.S. NTDP (USHL)
Third-generation player with deep hockey bloodlines. A speedy, creative playmaker.
ACQUIRED 38th overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

5. NOAH GREGOR, C
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM San Jose (AHL)
Effective two-way center with promising speed had 28-game NHL trial. Needs to add muscle.
ACQUIRED 111th overall, 2016 NHL '20-21

6. TRISTEN ROBINS, RW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Saskatoon (WHL)
Super-quick and agile sniper has a terrific release. Fast hands make him a deft playmaker as well.
ACQUIRED 56th overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

7. DANIIL GUSHCHIN, RW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Muskegon (USHL)
High hockey IQ and offensive flair puts him in danger zone. Size, defensive game need work.
ACQUIRED 76th overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

8. SASHA CHMELEVSKI, C
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM San Jose (AHL)
Good hands, vision and playmaking ability. Must improve his skating and quickness.
ACQUIRED 185th overall, 2017 NHL '21-22

9. JOHN LEONARD, LW
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Massachusetts (HE)
Biggest weapon is his shot, led the NCAA in goals as a junior. Excellent speed, potential top-sixer.
ACQUIRED 182nd overall, 2018 NHL '21-22

10. ARTEMI KNIAZEV, D
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Chicoutimi (QMJHL)
Solid first pass and gets physical when necessary. Explosive skater flashes two-way potential.
ACQUIRED 48th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

TAMPA BAY LIGHTNING

2ND

THN POWER RANKING

BRAYDEN POINT

BY ERIK ERLENDSSON

A TAMPA BAY Lightning team built to win a championship, that flirted with one for half a decade only to suffer several disappointments in that pursuit, finally grabbed the silver chalice in 2020.

After defeating Dallas in six games to capture the second Stanley Cup in franchise history, the Lightning had little time to revel in the title as the roster dismantling started almost immediately.

In a salary cap straight jacket, Tampa GM Julien BriseBois had to wriggle out of it by parting ways with some key contributors. Kevin Shattenkirk left for Anaheim, Carter Verhaeghe went south to the Panthers and Zach Bogosian signed with Toronto all in the first day of free agency.

In order to repeat as Cup champions, the Lightning will rely heavily on the core that still remains – Victor Hedman, Nikita Kucherov, Brayden Point, Andrei Vasilevskiy and Steven Stamkos.

OFFENSE Point's emergence as a star was on full display during the Cup run, transitioning from a complementary player to line-driver alongside former league MVP Kucherov.

There is still plenty of talent to put pucks in the net. A healthy Ondrej Palat notched double digits in playoff goals on the top line. Yanni Gourde is a two-time 20-goal scorer looking to rebound. And Stamkos looks to regain his form as one of the top scorers in the game after injury kept him out of all but five shifts in the playoffs. The Lightning may have lost some of their overall depth, but the quality remains elite.

DEFENSE Hedman is a perennial Norris Trophy candidate and Smythe Trophy winner, anchoring the strongest group of left-defensemen in the league, with Ryan McDonagh and Mikhail Sergachev anchoring the other pairs. Any of these three can play in all situations and log 20-plus minutes.

What the Lightning lack, however, is depth on the right side after the departures of Shattenkirk, Bogosian, and Jan Rutta, leaving Erik Cernak and Luke Schenn, who re-signed for another year, as the top three right-handed defensemen. Cal Foote, a 2017 first-rounder, might break into this group.

Any blueline with Hedman is formidable, but the quality of the right side will determine whether or not the group is elite.

GOALTENDING Three-time Vezina Trophy finalist Andrei Vasilevskiy returns for his fourth year as the full-time starter. 'The Big Cat' logged every single minute of ice time in the playoffs and put up Smythe-worthy numbers on the way to a title.

With ageless Curtis McElhinney back for another year, Tampa Bay can scale back the starts for Vasilevskiy and ensure he's rested for another playoff run.

SPECIAL TEAMS When clicking, the top power play unit is among the best in the league with Stamkos at the left circle, Kucherov at the right, Point in the slot and Hedman up top. Sergachev is emerging as quality quarterback for the second unit as well. The power play has been top five for three straight years.

Tampa Bay needs more out of its penalty kill, which battles bouts of inconsistency despite a Vezina goaltender and Selke Trophy candidate in Anthony Cirelli. A full season with Barclay Goodrow and Blake Coleman – a dynamic duo in the playoffs – will provide a boost.

INTANGIBLES The Lightning are skilled and mature enough to fight through a Stanley Cup hangover, but only Pittsburgh has repeated as champion in the salary-cap era. The Bolts also managed to win without Stamkos playing a central role, and the possibility of moving him isn't out of the question. His contract contains a no-movement clause, but the fact he's not considered an untouchable can't be overlooked.

ROOKIES The two likeliest freshman candidates are Foote, who enters his third year as a pro, and diminutive forward Alex-Barre Boulet, the AHL's top rookie in 2019 and a second-team all-star with Syracuse. He led the Crunch in goals each of his first two pro seasons – with 34 and 27.

VASILEVSKIY: JOHN E. SOKOLOWSKI-USA TODAY SPORTS

X-FACTOR Stamkos missed all but one game of the 2020 playoffs due to sports hernia issues but remains one of the top goal-scorers of his generation. A healthy Stamkos for the regular season and playoffs gives Tampa Bay its best shot at a repeat.

THE BRASS The trust between BriseBois and Jon Cooper is as strong as any GM-coach relationship. BriseBois never lost faith during some setbacks, and Cooper rewarded that by guiding the team through an inconsistent start last season, followed by a franchise-record win streak and a title.

FUTURE WATCH

PART OF THE REASON the Lightning won the Stanley Cup was because the franchise has been so good at finding talent, whether via the draft or undrafted free agents. Tampa Bay didn't pick until late in the second round in 2020 but made astute selections, starting with big Jack Finley and second-half riser Gage Goncalves. While the Bolts' pipeline doesn't feature a lot of flashy names, there are plug-and-play guys – like Alexander Volkov, who got into a game in the Cup final. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. HUGO ALNEFELT, G
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM HV71 (Swe.)
Followed up golden performance at the world U-18s with bronze at the WJC. Fierce competitor.
ACQUIRED 71st overall, 2019 NHL '24-25

2. CAL FOOTE, D
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Syracuse (AHL)
Boasts a booming shot and well-rounded arsenal of skills. Top-pairing potential.
ACQUIRED 14th overall, 2017 NHL '20-21

3. ALEXANDER VOLKOV, RW
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Syracuse (AHL)
Hardworking, two-way winger on cusp of regular NHL role. Modest stats belie his talent.
ACQUIRED 48th overall, 2017 NHL '21-22

4. ALEX BARRE-BOULET, C
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Syracuse (AHL)
Former AHL rookie-of-the-year finished in top five in points. Tenacity and skill outweigh his size.
ACQUIRED Free agent, March 2018 NHL '21-22

5. JACK FINLEY, C
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Spokane (WHL)
Towering two-way pivot has heavy shot and uses his body well. Quickness and balance need work.
ACQUIRED 57th overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

6. BORIS KATCHOUK, LW
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Syracuse (AHL)
Drafted for his offensive prowess but evolved into a two-way presence at multiple positions.
ACQUIRED 44th overall, 2016 NHL '21-22

7. TAYLOR RADDYSH, RW
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Syracuse (AHL)
Skilled contributor who can protect the puck with big frame. Average skater must win board battles.
ACQUIRED 58th overall, 2016 NHL '21-22

8. GABRIEL FORTIER, LW
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Moncton (QMJHL)
Determined competitor with solid fundamentals, strong work ethic. Production will decide his role.
ACQUIRED 59th overall, 2018 NHL '22-23

9. SAMMY WALKER, C
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Minnesota (Big Ten)
Smallish sophomore plays an elusive game down low and shows an extra gear in the open ice.
ACQUIRED 200th overall, 2017 NHL '23-24

10. MAXIM CAJKOVIC, RW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM St. John's (QMJHL)
Speedy winger can carve up opposing defenses and finish plays. Calm leader, good hockey sense.
ACQUIRED 89th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

IT WAS CLEAR on Feb. 22 that it wasn't going to be Toronto's year. It was the Leafs vs. Canes in Toronto, and both Carolina goalies fell to injury by the mid-point of the second period. The scenario required the home team to provide an emergency backup, so Toronto's 42-year-old Zamboni driver and practice goaltender, David Ayres, took over the net. Down 3-1 and expecting to burn out the goal light, Toronto instead allowed the next goal, mustered only 10 more shots, and lost 6-3. It was a front-page humiliation of the highest order.

After the pandemic pause, the Leafs lost to Columbus in a five-game qualifier, displaying their identity of inconsistency, defensive ineptitude and immaturity. GM Kyle Dubas' offseason moves addressed those issues. T.J. Brodie, the primary addition, signed a reasonable four-year deal. Dubas traded Kasperi Kapanen and Andreas Johnsson to make the dollars fit.

Dubas also signed four notable vets, all at least 6-foot-2, to inexpensive one-year deals: Joe Thornton, Wayne Simmonds, Jimmy Vesey and Zach Bogosian. A Shark for 15 years, the 41-year-old Thornton believes Toronto can deliver him his first Cup. Given the Leafs haven't won a round in the Auston Matthews era, that's an unlikely outcome.

OFFENSE The big four of Matthews (47 goals), Mitch Marner (51 assists), John Tavares (26 goals) and William Nylander (31 goals) carried the league's third-best offense. Zach Hyman missed 19 games but still scored a career-high 21 times. He elevates any line. The other top-six left wing spot will belong to Ilya Mikheyev, Alexander Kerfoot or Nick Robertson.

Beyond the top five forwards, the lineup will be musical chairs. Thornton or Jason Spezza can shift to the wing or take turns as the No. 3 center if coach Sheldon Keefe wants size there instead of Alexander Kerfoot. Robertson is skilled enough to hang with one of the big-money tandems. His puck-hunting prowess could also complement the slow-but-shrewd Thornton. Others in the bottom-six mix are Pierre Engvall, Travis Boyd, Joey Anderson and KHL import Alexander Barabanov.

DEFENSE The Leafs ranked 25th in goals against and allowed the third-most goals in the third period. Morgan Rielly, no longer burdened by Cody Ceci, gets a new partner in Brodie. The longtime Calgary defender has declined but is a major upgrade, and balances the pair. Jake Muzzin anchors the second duo with Justin Holl or Travis Dermott.

Mikko Lehtonen, a 26-year-old KHL lefty with offensive pop, will get an opportunity after choosing the Leafs over multiple suitors. Bogosian's physical dimension will get him playing time. Rasmus Sandin, 20, and Timothy Liljegren, 21, are on-the-cusp options who've had a taste of the NHL.

GOALTENDING After posting save percentages of .917, .918 and .918, Frederik Andersen dipped to .909 last season. He's still a solid stopper with a great temperament who's been a fringe Vezina Trophy candidate on porous teams. Jack Campbell, acquired from Los Angeles last year, is a capable backup option.

SPECIAL TEAMS The four-forward top power-play unit featuring Matthews, Marner, Tavares and Nylander will remain intact, with Rielly manning the point. Lehtonen or Dermott will helm the second unit, with Thornton as a fixture. New assistant coach Manny Malhotra will run the PP. The penalty kill was poor, allowing the 11th-most goals despite taking the seventh-fewest minors. Brodie, Bogosian and Vesey will see PK time.

INTANGIBLES Four straight first-round exits must weigh on the club's collective consciousness – for Andersen, especially. The young stars need to consistently be, as previous coach Mike Babcock said, "real good pros." Finally, the motivation to get 'Jumbo Joe' a Cup can't be overlooked.

ROOKIES Robertson led the OHL with a remarkable 55 goals in 46 games before debuting in the Columbus series and scoring once, looking oddly comfortable for a teenager seeing his first NHL action. Liljegren has developed at a healthy rate in the AHL and could factor in.

MARNER: JEAN-YVES AHERN-USA TODAY SPORTS

X-FACTOR The scoring will be there and Andersen will do his part, but the Leafs' success ultimately rests on their team defense. The blueline has been upgraded, but the burden to defend better is shared by the entire roster.

THE BRASS Besides Malhotra, Dubas hired veteran coach Paul MacLean and former Florida assistant GM Eric Joyce as director of hockey strategy.

FUTURE WATCH

GM KYLE DUBAS SEEMS to have a type right now – and size is not part of the equation. Toronto's 2020 draft class was filled with slight kids with other skill sets that stood out to Leafs scouts. Finns were popular, with defenseman Topi Niemela playing against men last year and forwards Roni Hirvonen and Veeti Miettinen both showing flair. Top prospect Nick Robertson fared well in the post-season bubble, while Swedish defender Timothy Liljegren is getting close. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. NICK ROBERTSON, LW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Peterborough (OHL)
OHL's leading goal-scorer impressed in his first taste of NHL playoff hockey. Top-six potential.
ACQUIRED 53rd overall, 2019 NHL '20-21

2. RODION AMIROV, LW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Ufa (KHL)
Versatile speedster plays with intensity and flair. Not out of place in the trenches and defensively.
ACQUIRED 15th overall, 2020 NHL '22-23

3. TIMOTHY LILJEGREN, D
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Toronto (AHL)
Puck-moving defender creates chances for his teammates. Must cut down on careless decisions.
ACQUIRED 17th overall, 2017 NHL '21-22

4. NICK ABRUZZESE, C
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Harvard (ECAC)
ECAC's highest-scoring freshman finished in top three in points. Elite IQ with positional flexibility.
ACQUIRED 124th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

5. FILIP HALLANDER, LW
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Lulea (Swe.)
Two-way forward plays 200-foot game. Second-rounder came over in Kasperi Kapanen trade.
ACQUIRED From Pit, Oct. 2020 NHL '22-23

6. MIKHAIL ABRAMOV, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Victoriaville (QMJHL)
Uses elite vision and playmaking prowess to create offense. Still developing physically.
ACQUIRED 115th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

7. RONI HIRVONEN, C
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Assat (Fin.)
Whirling dervish is an elite playmaker with deft hands. Competes hard despite slight frame.
ACQUIRED 59th overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

8. SEMYON DER-ARGUCHINTSEV, C
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Peterborough (OHL)
Pass-first mentality and magic hands led to third-most assists in OHL. Slight frame, shaky defense.
ACQUIRED 76th overall, 2018 NHL '23-24

9. TOPI NIEMELA, D
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Karpat (Fin.)
Slight-framed defender stays out of trouble due to his skating. Good gap control and high hockey IQ.
ACQUIRED 64th overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

10. MIKKO KOKKONEN, D
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Jukurit (Fin.)
Physically mature with a well-rounded game. Undersized, mobile...fits the mold in Toronto.
ACQUIRED 84th overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

THE WINDS OF change were already blowing before the Canucks blew away expectations with a memorable playoff performance inside the Edmonton pandemic bubble, because the off-season cap crunch was looming.

The post-season run ended with a Game 7 loss to Vegas in Round 2, raising expectations for 2020-21. Dispatching the Wild, Blues and rallying from a 3-1 deficit against the Golden Knights was proof that 10 playoff newbies – including the electrifying Elias Pettersson and Quinn Hughes – weren't spooked by added attention and expectations. They amassed 18 and 16 points, respectively, in 17 games to quicken the pulse of a hockey-mad market.

KEY DEPARTURES & UNSIGNED UFAs Jacob Markstrom, G; Chris Tanev, D; Tyler Toffoli, RW; Troy Stecher, D; Josh Leivo, RW; Oscar Fantenberg, D; Louis Domingue, G; Tyler Graovac, C

The contracts of unproductive Loui Eriksson and Brandon Sutter, combined with Pettersson and Hughes a year away from huge pay increases, tempered the enthusiasm.

Unable to meet the contract demands of free agents Jacob Markstrom, Chris Tanev and Tyler Toffoli, GM Jim Benning opted to sign Braden Holtby. He then salvaged the off-season with the low-cost acquisition of Nate Schmidt – an upgrade over Tanev – but there remains a gaping hole up front.

OFFENSE Replacing Toffoli at right wing on the top line won't be easy. He had six goals and 10 points in 10 regular-season games after being acquired from L.A. Unable to afford a replacement for Toffoli, the vacated slot could have a revolving door. Jake Virtanen had a career-high 18 goals but hasn't demonstrated the consistency of a top-six forward.

The league's eighth-ranked offense was buoyed by Miller's career-best 72-point season as well as 20-goal campaigns for Pettersson (27), Bo Horvat (22) and Tanner Pearson (21). Horvat also struck for 10 goals in 17 playoff games and dominated the faceoff circle with 59-percent efficiency.

DEFENSE Schmidt's ability to push the play and defend makes him the logical choice to play with Hughes, replacing the shot-blocking Tanev. Schmidt, 29, was deemed expendable when Vegas signed Alex Pietrangelo, and the Canucks traded a 2022 third-round pick for a gregarious guy who could surpass his career high of 36 points. Schmidt's $6-million cap hit for five seasons is palatable because the blueline is in transition, with only Tyler Myers signed past 2020-21. Alex Edler could pair with Myers, but Troy Stecher wasn't re-signed and went to Detroit. That leaves Jordie Benn and rookies Olli Juolevi, Brogan Rafferty, Jack Rathbone and Jalen Chatfield to vie for third-pair spots.

GOALTENDING Markstrom, who finished fourth in Vezina Trophy voting, got a six-year, $36-million commitment and a no-movement clause from Calgary. Markstrom went 7-0-1 in games where he faced 40-plus shots, and matching that will be tough for Holtby, 31, and Thatcher Demko. They could split the cage as Holtby, who signed a two-year, $8.6-million deal, looks to regain his former Vezina form after a lousy season in Washington.

ROOKIES The third defense pairing could feature a rookie in Juolevi, the No. 5 pick in 2016, Harvard standout Rathbone or 25-year-old AHL star Rafferty. Juolevi plays a quiet game, and Benning said the 22-year-old is ready for the NHL.

QUINN HUGHES

HUGHES: GERRY THOMAS-USA TODAY SPORTS

SPECIAL TEAMS The power play was a weapon as the fourth-best unit in the league. Toffoli's departure is minimized by the playmaking and improved shooting of Hughes, who led all rookies with 25 man-advantage points and finished second to Colorado's Cale Makar in Calder Trophy voting. Horvat had 12 power-play goals followed by Miller (nine) and Pettersson (eight). A 16th-ranked penalty kill needs help, especially down low, and Schmidt should help.

INTANGIBLES Will a new home help Holtby bounce back? He could benefit from the guidance of goalie coach Ian Clark and have ample opportunity in a condensed schedule. Demko should be buoyed by replacing an injured Markstrom in the playoffs and posting 42-, 48- and 33-save performances against Vegas.

X-FACTOR Pettersson was often treated like a piñata last season, yet the slick Swedish center had 27 goals and 66 points and was hard on the puck, taking and delivering checks and backchecking diligently. He can be the catalyst for the Canucks to do more off the rush and improve their 5-on-5 offense.

THE BRASS Coach Travis Green deserves an extension for getting his club to buy into a mantra to beat the playoff odds. A patient style based on forechecking and turnovers is hard to play. Next up for Benning: new deals for Pettersson and Hughes.

FUTURE WATCH

WITH NO SELECTIONS UNTIL the third round in 2020, it was an understated draft for the Canucks, though there is long-term upside in defenseman Joni Jurmo and power forward Jackson Kunz. Vancouver went into the off-season with a strong pipeline, highlighted by the forceful Vasily Podkolzin and the ultra-talented Nils Hoglander. On the back end, Brogan Rafferty was a nice find in U.S. college and fellow NCAA product Jack Rathbone has begun his pro career. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. VASILY PODKOLZIN, RW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM St. Petersburg (KHL)
Strong power forward who is willing to fight and play physical. Claimed silver at the 2020 WJC.

VEGAS GOLDEN KNIGHTS

STONE: PERRY NELSON-USA TODAY SPORTS

BY SCOTT ZERR

THE GOLDEN KNIGHTS got their superstar on skates, a name that would be the equivalent of a Las Vegas hotel landing an A-lister for a long-term residency.

With Alex Pietrangelo finding his way to the fortress, the Golden Knights made the biggest statement of the NHL's free-agency period. The biggest name on the market was theirs. In order to make that happen, though, Vegas was forced to reshuffle things – with Paul Stastny and Nate Schmidt shipped out to make room.

The wonky 2019-20 crusade ended with the Golden Knights struggling to get past upstart Vancouver before being wiped out by Dallas in the conference final. Pietrangelo's arrival certainly addresses some concerns for the next edition of the Golden Knights, but the harmonious band of merry men who were so beloved for their underdog expansion-season heroics are now facing unprecedented expectations.

OFFENSE There are a lot of high-end names in the top-nine forward group – Jonathan Marchessault, Reilly Smith, William Karlsson, Alex Tuch and, of course, Max Pacioretty and Mark Stone. What the Knights lack is a superstar-level game-breaker.

When this forward group saw their numbers fall a notch or two last season, the Golden Knights had their share of struggles racking up goals. Still, Stone is one of the league's best two-way forwards, Karlsson is a top-drawer shooter and Pacioretty is coming off a 30-goal campaign. A sophomore jump from Cody Glass can round out the group.

Throw in a back-end boost from Pietrangelo (52 points) and the continued emergence of Shea Theodore (46 points) and the Golden Knights shouldn't struggle to score.

DEFENSE Pietrangelo and Theodore could very well become the top twosome in the league, with each anchoring their own pairing in the top-four. However, the Vegas blueline group will have to move on without Schmidt, a creative offensive player and team leader.

Nic Hague and Zach Whitecloud will vie for full-time roles with the exits of Schmidt and popular veteran Deryk Engelland. The Golden Knights made a commitment to keep Nick Holden in the mix, but will that – and the Pietrangelo acquisition – ultimately force out Alec Martinez?

GOALTENDING Just when it appeared team icon Marc-Andre Fleury was on his way out, the Golden Knights reversed course and decided to keep Fleury and newly determined No. 1 Robin Lehner. It's a formidable tandem, possibly the best in the league, but also one of the most expensive at $12 million, with $7 million of that tied up in Fleury. Keeping Fleury cost the club Schmidt, Stastny and potentially other free-agent acquisitions.

SPECIAL TEAMS The lack of a true high-powered offensive force didn't seem to hinder the Golden Knights, who had the ninth-best power play. Theodore has become a key driver on the man advantage, but they'd like more out of Karlsson here, not to mention their entire second unit, namely Tuch and Smith. Despite Stone's presence, Vegas had one of the league's worst penalty kills, though it was much better in the playoffs.

INTANGIBLES The run to the Stanley Cup final in Year 1 seems a distant memory. Does coach Peter DeBoer have the right message to get this group over the hurdles that have tripped them up the past two playoffs? And, social-media illustrations aside (google "Allan Walsh Fleury sword"), did being forced to retain all that cap money in the goaltending department come at too high a price?

ROOKIES With the big bucks all spent, the Knights need their loose change to pay dividends. Glass and Nicolas Roy need to confirm their spots in the top-nine forward group, while Hague and Whitecloud must emerge as fixtures on the back end. NCAA standout Jack Dugan will make his pro debut with the team's new AHL affiliate in suburban Vegas, the Henderson Silver Knights.

X-FACTOR Gone are the days of the 'Golden Misfits.' The off-season departures were counterbalanced by a massive acquisition, but suddenly team harmony has been broached as an area of concern. The Fleury-DeBoer Photoshop incident and numerous rumors of potential trades featuring the core group have some concerned that this roster isn't as tight as it once was.

THE BRASS Kelly McCrimmon is now firmly entrenched as the GM, and he's been bold with off-season moves that look great but have questions attached. Owner Bill Foley clearly made his presence felt in determining Fleury was staying put and has shown no hesitation when it comes to a spend-to-win approach. H

THE GOLDEN KNIGHTS HAVE drafted some very good players in their brief history – they just haven't had to use many of them yet. When you go to the Cup final in your first year, that can happen. Only Cody Glass and Nic Hague have played NHL games in a Vegas uniform, but that will change soon thanks to the likes of Jack Dugan and Peyton Krebs. In 2020, the Knights added a smart offensive weapon in Brendan Brisson, plus a mobile defenseman in Lukas Cormier. – RYAN KENNEDY

WASHINGTON CAPITALS

7TH

THN POWER RANKING

BY BEN RABY

WHILE THE CAPITALS finished atop the Metropolitan Division for a fifth straight year, it was hardly a smooth ride. Washington was a modest 15-14-3 from Dec. 23 until the pandemic pause. The hope in D.C. was that one of the NHL's oldest rosters would benefit from a break and a chance to reset. Instead, a lackluster round robin and a first-round exit to former coach Barry Trotz and the Islanders ultimately cost bench boss Todd Reirden his job.

GM Brian MacLellan expressed concern over a slipping culture and a lack of accountability. Enter Peter Laviolette, entrusted with restoring both. Laviolette has shown a knack for quick turn-arounds. That bodes well in Washington, where the urgency is high for an aging core.

Henrik Lundqvist's chase for a Stanley Cup brings him to town to partner with Ilya Samsonov. MacLellan also solidified the top four on the back end, re-signing Brendan Dillon and landing Justin Schultz.

OFFENSE The odometer keeps turning and Alex Ovechkin keeps scoring. His 48 goals secured a record ninth career goal-scoring title, pacing the league's second-best offense. Even in an abbreviated season, Ovechkin's 35 even-strength goals were his most in a decade.

The entire top-six from the 2018 Cup run remains intact. T.J. Oshie, Tom Wilson and Jakub Vrana have each hit the 20-goal mark in consecutive seasons. Nicklas Backstrom, 33, begins a five-year deal at $9.2 million annually.

Lars Eller had a career-high 39 points in 69 games last season, but scoring was otherwise limited from the bottom six.

In Nashville, Laviolette leaned heavily on his 'D' to chip in offensively. That won't be an issue for John Carlson, who led NHL D-men with a career-best 75 points. Schultz hasn't shown it much the past few years, but he also has an offensive touch.

DEFENSE Carlson emerged as a first-team all-star and was second in Norris Trophy voting, scoring 1.09 points per game. He will do heavy lifting on a pair with Dillon, who acclimated nicely after a late-season trade from San Jose. Dillon re-signed for four years and provides a welcome physical presence.

Schultz bolsters a second pair alongside Dmitry Orlov, but depth questions remain. Trevor van Riemsdyk arrives from Carolina, but Michal Kempny could spend much of the year on LTIR with an Achilles injury.

Improving team defense is a priority, as odd-man rushes and high-danger chances against were plentiful. After the all-star break, the Capitals went 8-9-3 with a league-worst goals-against average.

GOALTENDING For the first time since 2011, someone other than Braden Holtby will be the opening-night starter. Samsonov, 23, is the goalie of the future, but it's unclear what his workload will be in 2020-21. The 2015 first-rounder impressed as a rookie, but with just 26 appearances, and none in the playoffs, Washington sought insurance. Lundqvist, 38, provides it, though he didn't sign strictly to be a mentor. A motivated 'King Henrik,' who just had a career-worst season, will push to start.

ALEX OVECHKIN

SPECIAL TEAMS The power play was mediocre, ranking 17th. The top unit returns, though, and Ovechkin can still rip it from his office. Schultz could quarterback the second unit. The sixth-ranked penalty kill shot up from 24th in 2018-19. Jonas Siegenthaler and Carl Hagelin were among PK leaders for the second-busiest unit in the league.

INTANGIBLES MacLellan sought a coach who could "push some buttons" with certain players. Lundqvist will command respect as an incoming veteran voice. The Caps play heavy, with Wilson, Dillon, Ovechkin and Garnet Hathaway among the league's top-20 hitters last season.

ROOKIES Mobile defenseman Martin Fehervary, 21, didn't look out of place in six games and a playoff cameo. No. 1 prospect Connor McMichael had 102 points in 52 games with OHL London. Openings are limited, but McMichael will get a chance.

X-FACTOR With an older core, more will be expected of Evgeny Kuznetsov, 28, and Vrana, 24. Vrana has 30-goal potential, but he has no points in his past 15 playoff games. Kuznetsov, who admits he's not always fully invested, can help keep the Cup window open by adopting an "all-in" mentality.

THE BRASS Laviolette is Washington's seventh coach in the Ovechkin era but just the second with prior NHL head coaching experience. The only other – Trotz – helped deliver the Cup in 2018. With Ovechkin entering the final season of his 13-year contract, he and MacLellan can talk extension. H

FUTURE WATCH

THE CAPITALS TEND TO have small drafts, but lately those crops have contained some big-time picks. Connor McMichael, their first-rounder in 2019, is a perfect example, and the junior sniper is virtually ready. Hendrix Lapierre, another production machine, missed most of his draft season due to injury but started off strong in 2020-21. Bogdan Trineyev, the 2020 fourth-rounder, is also off to a great start back home, playing for a powerhouse Dynamo Moscow junior team. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. CONNOR MCMICHAEL, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM London (OHL)
Scored at nearly a goal-per-game clip. All-around talent turned elite sniper. Special-teams ace.
ACQUIRED 25th overall, 2019 NHL '20-21

2. HENDRIX LAPIERRE, C
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Chicoutimi (QMJHL)
A top-10 talent based on sublime skill set. Slid in draft due to vertebrae/concussion issues.
ACQUIRED 22nd overall, 2020 NHL '22-23

3. ALEXANDER ALEXEYEV, D
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Hershey (AHL)
Heavy shot and untapped offensive potential. Injury troubles continued with a concussion.
ACQUIRED 31st overall, 2018 NHL '21-22

4. MARTIN FEHERVARY, D
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Hershey (AHL)
Impressive mobility and maturity translated perfectly to the top pairing. Capable in all situations.
ACQUIRED 46th overall, 2018 NHL '20-21

5. ALIAKSEI PROTAS, C
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Prince Albert (WHL)
Belarussian behemoth ranked in top 10 in points despite unpolished game. Must improve skating.
ACQUIRED 91st overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

6. LUCAS JOHANSEN, D
AGE 23 2019-20 TEAM Hershey (AHL)
Injuries plateaued his progress. Has the tools to contribute on both ends but focus is defense.
ACQUIRED 28th overall, 2016 NHL '21-22

7. BRETT LEASON, RW
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Hershey (AHL)
Late-bloomer in junior experiencing growing pains against men. Potential power forward.
ACQUIRED 56th overall, 2019 NHL '22-23

8. BOGDAN TRINEYEV, RW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Dynamo Jr. (Rus.)
Heavy-hitting big winger plays a grinding North American game. Skating is an issue.
ACQUIRED 117th overall, 2020 NHL '24-25

9. KODY CLARK, LW
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Hershey (AHL)
Son of Wendel battled injuries last season. Tenacious with good size and a strong shot.
ACQUIRED 47th overall, 2018 NHL '22-23

10. GARRETT PILON, C
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Hershey (AHL)
Rich's son is a versatile forward with a scoring touch. Nightmare in front of the net.
ACQUIRED 87th overall, 2016 NHL '21-22

THE JETS WERE all fits and starts in 2019-20, and the shutdown came just as Winnipeg was enjoying its best stretch of the campaign with wins in eight of their past dozen games. Failing to recapture that momentum on the restart led to a truncated post-season, however, and it may signal the start of a downturn.

The cap crunch continues to hinder the Jets' ability to strengthen the bottom of the lineup, and an off-season in which Patrik Laine's name swirled around the rumor mill has the roster feeling as unsettled as it has since his arrival to the club four seasons ago. Within Winnipeg, there remains hope for a resurgence, but the clear-eyed outlook suggests this could be the beginning of the end for a core that came oh-so-close a scant three years back.

OFFENSE Paul Stastny's first foray in Winnipeg was remarkably productive for both sides, and the reunion plugs what has been a persistent gap at second-line center and rounds out a lethal top-six. Each of Mark Scheifele, Blake Wheeler, Kyle Connor, Nikolaj Ehlers and Laine scored at least 20 goals last season, and there's no reason to question a repeat performance.

There's less certainty about the secondary scoring, however. Beyond the five aforementioned attackers, Jack Roslovic (29 points) and Andrew Copp (26) were the only other Jets forwards to crack 20 points. Given Stastny is the only notable forward addition, the big guns will have to do their usual heavy lifting to make up for a dearth of depth scoring.

DEFENSE Dustin Byfuglien's retirement snuffed out any hope Winnipeg had of No. 33 returning to patrol the blueline. However, the finality has allowed the Jets to begin reassembling their stable of rearguards in earnest.

Steady Josh Morrissey is the undoubted top gun, while Neal Pionk's impressive debut in Manitoba's capital assuaged concerns the Jets had been taken to the cleaners in the Jacob Trouba trade. Rounding out the top half of the back end is Dylan DeMelo, who was a savvy trade-deadline addition turned cost-efficient off-season signing.

Ideally, youngster Ville Heinola, who got a taste of NHL action last year, and Dylan Samberg will step in and succeed immediately, but that's no guarantee. Veteran insurance pieces Derek Forbort, Luca Sbisa and Nathan Beaulieu don't do much to alleviate doubt about the defensive depth.

GOALTENDING The next challenge for Vezina Trophy winner Connor Hellebuyck, who was unquestionably the Jets' most valuable player last season, is piecing together consecutive top-notch campaigns – a hurdle he hasn't cleared throughout his career. With the blueline in flux, Hellebuyck needs to continue his game-stealing ways.

SPECIAL TEAMS The Jets' 174 times shorthanded were second-fewest in the NHL – a requisite degree of discipline given a nightmarish penalty kill. It was a shooting gallery for the opposition, and an already overworked Hellebuyck did headstands to keep the kill respectable. DeMelo's deadline arrival was transformative, as Winnipeg's PK clipped along at 90.9 percent in the final 10 regular-season games.

INTANGIBLES Not only is Wheeler versatile enough to shift to second-line center duty in a pinch, but his exemplary leadership has a trickle-down effect on his teammates, and the never-say-die Jets snatched victory from the jaws of defeat on several occasions. When trailing after two periods, Winnipeg won six times and picked up a point on three other occasions.

ROOKIES The Jets waited patiently to get their hands on NCAA standout Samberg, a rangy and smooth-skating blueliner who could become a top-pair fixture in the future. He won't be thrust into the spotlight, but there'll be plenty of opportunity to step up.

X-FACTOR Laine's situation is becoming awfully reminiscent of Trouba's tense tenure in Winnipeg, which ended with the Jets shipping out the coveted rearguard. How a contentious off-season and Laine's apparent desire to find a new home impacts his play will go a long way in determining whether he's a Jet beyond the trade deadline.

THE BRASS Inking an extension in February indicates Paul Maurice has the organization's full support, but the Jets have only won three playoff games since their run to the West final in 2018, and they reasonably would have missed the playoffs altogether without Hellebuyck's Herculean play last season. Maurice could very well be the first to go if results take a nosedive.

VILLE HEINOLA

FUTURE WATCH

IT WAS A SMALL 2020 draft class for Winnipeg, but there were potential steals. Cole Perfetti fell to the Jets at No. 10, while Daniel Torgersson and Anton Johannesson have promising upsides. Otherwise, the Jets have a decent system with a few players ready to step in soon, led by defensemen Ville Heinola and Dylan Samberg, plus center David Gustafsson. The big X-factor is Kristian Vesalainen, whose development has been slow since the Jets drafted him in 2017. – RYAN KENNEDY

TOP 10 PROSPECTS

1. VILLE HEINOLA, D
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Lukko (Fin.)
Great hockey sense and elusive below the goal line. Still developing but has a high ceiling.
ACQUIRED 20th overall, 2019 NHL '20-21

2. COLE PERFETTI, LW
AGE 19 2019-20 TEAM Saginaw (OHL)
He's not big and his skating is middling, but his hockey IQ and finishing ability are off the charts.
ACQUIRED 10th overall, 2020 NHL '21-22

3. KRISTIAN VESALAINEN, RW
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Manitoba (AHL)
Big talent found a home with the Moose. Using his time to learn new skills and versatility.
ACQUIRED 24th overall, 2017 NHL '20-21

4. DYLAN SAMBERG, D
AGE 21 2019-20 TEAM Minn.-Duluth (NCHC)
Stifles opponents as a shutdown defender. Needs to improve his skating as a rookie pro.
ACQUIRED 43rd overall, 2017 NHL '21-22

5. DANIEL TORGERSSON, LW
AGE 18 2019-20 TEAM Frolunda Jr. (Swe.)
Hardworking and reliable north-south winger plays a smart, two-way game.
ACQUIRED 40th overall, 2020 NHL '23-24

6. DAVID GUSTAFSSON, C
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Manitoba (AHL)
Sound defensively and an accomplished faceoff man. Reliable in his own zone.
ACQUIRED 60th overall, 2018 NHL '22-23

7. DECLAN CHISHOLM, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Peterborough (OHL)
The offensive talent is apparent, but his two-way game needs refining time in AHL.
ACQUIRED 150th overall, 2018 NHL '22-23

8. MIKHAIL BERDIN, G
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Manitoba (AHL)
Skilled puckhandler and agile in the crease. NHL backup material in the future.
ACQUIRED 157th overall, 2016 NHL '23-24

9. SIMON LUNDMARK, D
AGE 20 2019-20 TEAM Linkoping (Swe.)
Good skater who can distribute the puck well. Sacrifices the body and blocks shots.
ACQUIRED 51st overall, 2019 NHL '23-24

10. LOGAN STANLEY, D
AGE 22 2019-20 TEAM Manitoba (AHL)
Stay-at-home defenseman with imposing size. Conditioning still needs work.
ACQUIRED 18th overall, 2016 NHL '21-22

THE THIRD TIME'S A CHARM

The first two times are looking pretty good, too, with Quinn and Jack Hughes on their way in the NHL. But both bros say to watch out for youngest sibling Luke

THE HUGHES BOYS
Jack was a No. 1 overall pick and Quinn broke out as a Calder finalist. Now it's Luke in the spotlight as he enters his draft year.

IT WAS APRIL 2019 and the Hughes family was kind enough to welcome a writer and videographer into their home in Canton, Mich., to talk to their talented son, Jack, who was on the verge of being taken first overall in the NHL draft by the New Jersey Devils. About halfway through the interview, down the stairs bounded a kid who was all arms and legs and personality. It was Jack's 15-year-old brother, Luke, who was ripping it up at the time as a D-man with the Detroit Little Caesars under-16 team.

Luke hung around for a little while, suffered the requisite amount of abuse from his older brother with a smile, then made his exit. "Nice meeting you," he said, "but I'm going to rip some 'Chel.' " That meant he was going off to play some NHL19. Two years later, so much has changed for the Hughes clan. Jack indeed went first overall in 2019 and, as the first player to go directly from the U.S. National Team Development Program to the NHL, endured a not-so-unforeseen up-and-down rookie season. With two years at the University of Michigan behind him, older brother Quinn did not ease his way into the best league in the world, but rather he burst onto the scene as a Calder Trophy finalist and the most dynamic young player on the NHL's most dynamic young team.

And the 2020-21 season is Luke's time to go under the draft microscope that Quinn navigated in 2018 and Jack a year later. That happy-go-lucky 15-year-old with boundless energy has changed a little over the past couple years, which comes part and parcel with the stakes getting higher as your draft year approaches. A little more measured and rehearsed, but still with a youthful exuberance that comes through on the ice. Playing for the U.S.'s under-18 team this season, Luke had five assists in nine games in October, which are not eye-popping numbers, but older brother Quinn has a bold statement about Luke. "He's going to be a really good player," Quinn said. "He's probably better than I was at the same age."

Wait, what's that? He's better at the same age as a player who scored 50-plus points in his first season as an NHL defenseman? All right, you have our attention now. And to be sure, he's a lot bigger than his older brothers, which does not bode well for them in sibling tussles. Luke is up to 6-foot-2 and 176 pounds, which is three inches taller than Jack and four inches taller than Quinn. "I'm really excited by hearing that," said Luke of his older brother's comparison. "Quinn is a really good player, and so am I. I'm just trying to be myself and play to the best of my abilities."

Luke isn't the biggest defenseman in the 2021 NHL draft, not even close. Owen Power, who could be Luke's teammate at Michigan next season if he doesn't go straight to the NHL, is 6-foot-5 and 214 pounds. Luke's teammate Roman Schmidt, who, like Luke, played a good number of his formative years in Toronto, stands 6-foot-5 and weighs 205 pounds.

With a Sept. 9 birthday, Luke will be one of the youngest players in the 2021 draft, 10 months younger than Power. But there might not be a better skater among defensemen in the draft than Luke, which isn't surprising considering what dynamic skaters his older brothers are. His edge work is exceptional, and he has the ability to create offense and move the puck, both by skating and making a good first pass. He will undoubtedly bulk up this year and for the duration of time he spends at Michigan, where he committed when he was just 15.

One thing Luke will have as an advantage this year is he has two incredible mentors on how to handle the rigors and pressures that come with a draft year. The COVID-19 pandemic has provided him with the unexpected bonus of his brothers both being able to be on hand for his home games. "They both did a really good job controlling their emotions and being themselves during their draft year," said Luke of his older brothers. "It's an exciting year. At the end of the day, I'm my own player, but I watched my brothers go through it, and I thought they were great. I'm just trying to play every game to the best of my abilities because (with COVID-19) you never know when it's going to be our last game."

Five years ago, the Hughes family bought a 2015 GMC Terrain that Quinn used to get back and forth from their home in Canton to the NTDP's headquarters in Plymouth. That car was passed down to Jack for his two years with 'The Program,' and now Luke is behind the wheel. There's been a lot of greatness in that car over the years. Whether Luke becomes the best of them all remains to be seen. He can't go any higher in the draft than Jack, but he'd love to slide in ahead of the No. 7 spot, where Quinn went in 2018. (Luke is projected right now to be a top-five pick.) If he does that, the Hughes would become the first brothers ever to have three top-10 NHL picks. Not even the Sutters or the Staals did that. "I'm not worried about that," Luke said. "I'm just worrying about getting better every day. The right team will pick me, whoever wants me." H
